ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

We've been fortunate in the last few years to feature some of the best covers we've ever had on The Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide. That tradition obviously continues with the forty-second edition.

Joe Jusko, an awesome cover artist in his own right, brings all of his power into the spotlight with his simultaneously faithful and inventive recreation of John Buscema's cover for The Avengers #58 for our cover. He's well matched with the amazing Adam Hughes, who not only shows why he's a fan favorite, but also that he has great subtlety with his Catwoman cover (did you catch the shadow or what's in her bag?). Matt Wagner and colorist Ryan Brown also knocked their cover - the limited edition hardcover featuring Batman and Grendel created exclusively for The Hero Initiative - out of the park.

This year's edition includes new articles by Pat Calhoun and Rob Hughes, an interview with our old friend and founding Comic Book Marketplace editor Gary M. Carter, and the usual spectacular efforts by our Mark Huesman and J.C. Vaughn.

Special Thanks to the Overstreet Advisors who contributed to this edition, including Grant Adey, Bill Alexander, David Alexander, Tyler Alexander, Lon Allen, Dave Anderson, David J. Anderson, DDS, Matt Ballesteros, Stephen Barrington, L.E. Becker, Robert L. Beerbohm, Jim Berry, Jon Bevans, Dr. Arnold T. Blumberg, Steve Borock, Kevin Boyd, Michael Browning, Shawn Caffrey, Mike Carbonaro, John Chruscinski, Gary Colabruzzo, Bill Cole, Frank Cwiklik, Brock Dickinson, Peter Dixon, Gary Dolgoff, Walter Durajlija, Ken Dyber, Bruce Ellsworth, Richard Evans, D'Arcy Farrell, Stephen Fishler, Dan Fogel, Steven Gentner, Steve Geppi, Douglas Gillock, Tom Gordon III, Andy Greenham, John Haines, Jim Halperin, Mark Haspel, Ronnie Hayes, Greg Holland, Ph.D., Cat Jones, Dennis Keum, Phil Levine, Ben Lichtenstein, Paul Litch, Jon McClure, Todd McDevitt, Mike McKenzie, John Jackson Miller, Steve Mortensen, Tom Nelson, Jamie Newbold, Terry O'Neill, Michael Pavlic, Jim Pitts, Bill Ponseti, Mick Rabin, Jeff Rader, Yolanda Ramirez, Greg Reece, Rob Reynolds, Barry Sandoval, Brian Schutzer, Alike Seki, Doug Simpson, Marc Sims, Ben Smith, Mark Squirek, Tony Starks, West Stephan, Al Stoltz, Doug Sulipa, Chris Swartz, Michael Tierney, Ted VanLiew, Frank Verzyk, John Verzyk, Rose Verzyk, Eddie Wendt, Mike Wilbur, Vincent Zurzolo, Jr., as well as to our additional contributors, including Stephen Baer, Ron Ballard, Ivan Briggs, Mike Bromberg, Jonathan Calure, Bruce Darling, Peter Gaskin, Paul Howley, John Korfel, Ben Labonog, Jason Lohr, Rod Matlack, Bill Parker, Dan Paulun, James Pender, Dennis Petilli, Michael Proteau, David Singleton, Ron Stewart, Mel Taylor, and Tom Trombley. Without their active participation, this project would not have been possible.

Additionally, I would like to personally extend my thanks to all of those who encouraged and supported first the creation of and then subsequently the expansion of the Guide over the past four decades. While it's impossible in this brief space to individually acknowledge every individual, mention is certainly due to Lon Allen (Golden Age data); Mark Arnold (Harvey data); Larry Bigman (Frazetta-Williamson data); Bill Blackbeard (Platinum Age cover photos); Steve Borock and Mark Haspel (Grading); Glenn Bray (Kurtzman data); Gary Carter (DC data); J. THE BEST COMIC BOOK PRESSING IN THE INDUSTRY.

Pressing is the most radical concept to emerge in the comic book market since CGC. Matt Nelson, owner of Classics Incorporated, offers the most effective, safe pressing in the industry--and the most trusted eye for any comic book in any grade. He has evaluated over 100,000 vintage comic books the past decade including many of the most valuable and scarce comics in the world. No one else can offer a more complete knowledge of a book's grade, value and demand in the marketplace.

Our multi-step comic book pressing process has evolved through thousands of hours of research and experience from pressing tens of thousands of comic books. Another key to successful pressing is to understand how it relates to CGC's grading standards which we have mastered through thousands of CGC submissions each year. Without doubt, we identify and maximize your collection's potential better than anyone else in the industry.

*This copy of
was submitted to us as

After our expert pressing and resubmission to CGC, the book received an unrestored grade of CGC 7.5 and a value increase of $25,000.

Be wary of others who offer to press comics; they usually don't maximize your books' grades, or worse, damage occurs from improper pressing. There are countless kinds of comics and types of defects, so there is no simple way to press a book. You must consider the company who has invested the most research and development into a process that accounts for all variables. Just ask around. Our reputation is second to none! Our website classicsincorporated.com answers many questions about pressing, such as:

- What exactly is pressing and how did it begin?
- How do I spot good pressing candidates?
- What grade range is the best for pressing?
- What is your success rate with pressing and restoration check?
- Is it possible to press 9.8s into 9.9s?

"Unbelievable! Out of 18 CGC graded comics I submitted you, 14 went up! And four made a double jump in grade! I was unsure about this whole thing, but you took the time to explain the process to me. You guys are top-notch. Consider my mind blown."

Our state-of-the-art, tamper-proof holder provides long-term protection for your comics.

When a Comic Book becomes a Treasure

An Independent Member of the Certified Collectibles Group

"The addition of CGC's independent, third-party certification to the marketplace has been one of the most important changes for collectors and dealers alike in the last decade."

—Robert M. Overstreet

The Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide

CGC Grading Services

CGC is the only third-party comic book certification service, having graded more than a million comics in its 10 years. Our industry-leading grading team is prohibited from the commercial buying and selling of comics, to ensure accuracy and impartiality. Each book is evaluated by our team, and any detected restoration is noted.

Community Resources

With a membership in the CGC Collectors Society, collectors can interact on our Message Boards, receive monthly eNewsletters, access our Comics Population Report and more. Most notably, members can showcase their collections online in the CGC Registry, and compete in the annual CGC Registry Awards.

Your Comic Books

www.mycomicshop.com/sell

Visit our web site to find out why collectors and dealers just like you sell us over 120,000 comics a month. Our easy online selling system lets you turn your unwanted comics and graphic novels into cash.

Thanks so much for being there. For personal reasons, I've needed to liquidate my prized comic collection of 40 years. I procrastinated, moved them around, sold a few on eBay, but really just let them sit for a very long time. Then, finding you, you purchased my bulk as a collection, but advised me to sell my older and key issues via your online want list system where I'd likely do better. I appreciated that you tried to help ME on what to do vs. just "sell it to us cheap". I think I'm about at $10,000 just from you. So, finally, I'm about to send my prizes, and I have confidence you will be fair. I'm also impressed that you upgrade many of my comics above the grades I gave them, even though it meant you'd owe me even more money! So, thanks for turning something that could have been very, very difficult into a process that was easy and painless.

Dozens of dealers advertise here. Why choose us?

- We provide the largest comic-buying customer base available. More buyers means your items sell more quickly and fetch higher prices. Mycomicshop.com has more visitors and buyers than any other comic retailer or comic-focused auction service.
- Free eBay listings. Your consignments are listed simultaneously on mycomicshop.com and eBay at no extra charge, giving your items unparalleled visibility in the market. We are the only major consignment service that offers this.
- We make selling "raw" comics as easy as selling CGC-graded slabs. All consignments are graded free of charge, and because our customers trust our grading, you'll get higher prices than if you listed the comics yourself on eBay. We can recommend CGC-grading when the cost/benefit warrants it, and handle the CGC submission for you at our full 20% dealer discount.

We are the fastest-growing consignment service. Why? Low 4-10% commission, strong prices, hassle-free sales, and an industry-leading sales platform. Call 682-232-4855 or visit www.mymcomicshop.com/consign to learn more. Cash advances up to $1M available.

✦ Why do ALL the other dealers in this book sell to me?

Because over the past ten years or so I have been buying comics from dealers throughout the country. In fact, over the years I have bought comics from just about every dealer who advertises in this book. I spend millions of dollars a year buying. If professional dealers sell me comics, why can't you? A dealer is extremely knowledgeable, has shown his comics to all kinds of buyers from retail customers to every other dealer in the country at shows. They choose to sell to me because of honesty, financial reliability, and of course the prices I pay.

OVERSTREET MARKET REPORT 2012

A YEAR OF RECORD-BREAKING SALES IN A PERIOD OF ENTHUSIASM AND CAUTION

by Robert M. Overstreet

A record-setting price of $2,161,000 was paid for this CGC-certified 9.0 copy of Action Comics #1, formerly belonging to Nicolas Cage. Also impressive were sales of a CGC-certified 9.2 copy of Batman #1 for a record $850,000 and this CGC-certified 9.4 copy of Daredevil Battles Hitler #1 which brought $38,837.

Although most auction results in 2011 were mixed, the comics market again scored many record sales in both Golden Age and Silver Age comics. The news of the year (at least to date) was the $2,161,000 sale of a CGC-certified 9.0 copy of Action Comics #1 in November by ComicConnect. This turned out to be the copy stolen from Nicolas Cage's home over a decade ago which had resurfaced. As Rob Reynolds of ComicConnect remembered, "Eleven years ago, the comic was stolen out of a display vault at his house after a party. ComicConnect was contacted by a California entrepreneur hoping to make a few bucks buying the contents of auctioned-off storage units." Surprisingly, the Action #1 was found in one of these units and ended up in their November 2011 auction.

We continue to observe successes among rare, vintage, high grade comics, particularly those featuring characters that have broken through into other media, whether those of long standing such as Superman or more recent ones like Green Lantern (even though the movie didn't perform to the standards its enormous budget might have suggested). It's very important to note, however, that performance in other media – or lack thereof – is no guaranty of reciprocal performance for the comic book source material. In fact, this is clearly evident in the Golden Age marketplace.

In addition to the record-setting first $2 million comic, some key Golden Age sales of 2011-2012 included Action Comics #1 CGC 1.8 ($110,000), #1 CGC 3.0 ($298,750), #1 CGC 4.5 ($345,000), #10 CGC 9.0 ($258,000), #13 CGC 9.2 ($185,000), CGC 5.0 ($35,850), and #19 CGC 9.4 ($79,000), as well as Adventure Comics #40 (CGC 8.0 $59,750), All American Comics #16 CGC 8.0 ($203,150), #17 CGC 9.0 ($19,120), All Star Comics #3 CGC 8.5 ($49,294), All Winners #1 CGC 9.6 ($49,294), CGC 9.2 ($35,850), and Archie Comics #1 CGC 3.5 ($20,315).

The noteworthy Golden Age sales included Batman #1 CGC 9.2 ($850,000), CGC 8.5 ($274,850), Captain America Comics #1 CGC 6.0 ($65,725), CGC 7.0 ($90,000), CGC 9.2 ($343,057), #2 CGC 9.4 ($113,525), #3 CGC 9.2 ($50,787), Daredevil Battles Hitler #1 CGC 9.4 ($38,837), and Detective Comics #27 CGC 6.5 ($522,812), #28, CGC 7.5 ($32,265), #29 CGC 7.0 ($83,650), #33 CGC 8.0 ($92,612), and CGC 9.2 ($194,000).

Top highlights also included Eerie #1 CGC 9.2 ($13,145 and $9,560), Fantastic Comics #3 CGC 5.5 ($19,120), Flash Comics #2, CGC 9.0 ($168,000), Marvel Comics #1 CGC 7.5 ($113,525), Marvel Mystery Comics #4 CGC 9.2 ($50,787), #5 CGC 8.5 ($33,460), #9 CGC 4.0 ($10,157) and CGC 7.5 ($35,850), #40, CGC 9.0 ($21,510), Red Raven #1 CGC 9.0 ($41,825), CGC 4.5 ($8,365), Richie Rich #1 CGC 9.6 ($23,900) #2, CGC 9.6 ($8,962), Sub-Mariner #1 CGC 8.5 ($44,812), Superman #1 CGC 2.5 ($36,500), #1 CGC 5.5 ($214,000), Walt Disney Comics & Stories #1 CGC 8.5 ($25,500), Whiz Comics #2(#1) CGC 6.0 ($176,007), and Young Lovers #18 CGC 7.5 ($1,314). Even with all the media hoopla, driving forces in the marketplace appear to be what they've been in previous years, particularly for Golden Age titles.

"Classic covers of the Golden Age sell in every grade and generally at above Guide prices. Hitler cover appearances are at an all time high and WWII covers are especially hot and show no signs of slowing down," West Stephan wrote. "Nice iconic covers, coveted titles, and important appearances fare better than the ordinary material around them, as it has always been," Stephen Gentner added.

Likewise, there have been plenty of notable sales of Silver Age comics as well. The Silver Age market tends to be somewhat more reflective of the characters' success in other media, but again this notion only serves as an indication, not a hard and fast rule. Among the more significant ones were Action Comics #242 CGC 7.5 ($3,734), #252 CGC 9.2 ($25,500) and CGC 9.0 ($13,145), Amazing Fantasy #15 CGC 7.0 ($33,460), CGC 8.5 ($107,300), and CGC 9.4 ($325,000), Amazing Spider-Man #1 CGC 9.0 ($38,837) and CGC 9.2 ($59,750), #129 CGC 9.0 ($539) and CGC 9.6 ($1,900 and $1,750), Avengers #1 CGC 9.2 ($60,000), CGC 9.4 ($100,000), CGC 9.6 ($250,000), and #4 CGC 9.6 ($80,000).

The Silver Age highlights also include Brave & the Bold #28 CGC 8.0 ($11,054) and CGC 8.5 ($20,000), Daredevil #1 CGC 9.6 ($37,344), Fantastic Four #1 CGC 5.5 ($19,120) and CGC 9.4 ($300,000), #4 CGC 9.6 ($44,812), #5 CGC 9.4 ($65,725), #12 CGC 9.4 ($48,201) and CGC 9.6

($65,725), Flash #105 CGC 8.0 ($8,664), CGC 9.2 ($26,290) and CGC 9.4 ($38,837), House of Secrets #92 CGC 9.4 ($1,673), Incredible Hulk #1 CGC 8.0 ($34,500), Iron Man #1 CGC 9.6 ($2,749), Journey Into Mystery #83 CGC 8.5 ($26,500) and CGC 9.4 ($222,200), Justice League #1 (CGC 9.0) $18,000, and Superman's Girlfriend Lois Lane #1 CGC 8.0 ($8,963 and $16,730).

Also definitely worth a mention were such Silver Age sales as Our Army At War #81 CGC 8.5 ($6,573), #83 CGC 7.5 ($9,600) and CGC 8.0 ($16,783), #112 CGC 8.5 ($3,107), #128 CGC 9.4 ($2,629), Sgt. Fury and His Howling Commandos #1 CGC 8.0 ($2,629) and CGC 9.4 ($28,680), Showcase #4, CGC 8.0 ($23,900), CGC 9.0 ($38,837) and CGC 9.2 ($100,000), #22 CGC 8.0 ($23,900), Tales of Suspense #39 CGC 9.6 ($375,000), CGC 9.4 ($130,000) and CGC 9.2 ($72,100), and X-Men #1 CGC CGC 8.0 ($13,145) and 9.6 ($200,000), and #2 CGC 96 ($23,500).

You can find our top sales lists beginning on page 157 in this edition.

The tone and vigor of the market reports submitted by the Overstreet Advisors was varied, presenting a diverse and inconsistent view of the marketplace this year. As you read them for yourself, you will see there are many positive indications, but it is definitely not an across-the-board feeling of robustness. Given the state of the national and international economies, this should not be too surprising.

Bill Ponseti wrote, "Although there were a fair amount of big sales in 2011, the market clearly had cooled off some from the prior year's frenzied pace." He continued, "Even in a year of market correction downward, plenty of comics and cash changed hands in all segments that I track... Three million dollars for a comic book seems more and more likely as higher and higher graded copies of Action Comics #1 are released into the market."

Some notable Silver Age sales included this CGC-certified 9.6 copy of Tales of Suspense #39 selling for $375,000, a CGC-certified 9.2 copy of Amazing Spider-Man #1 selling for $59,750, and this CGC-certified 9.2 copy of Showcase #4 selling for $100,000.

Terry O'Neill of Terry's Comics wrote, "Golden Age sales have been mixed. At some shows, high grade will sell well, at other shows lower grade will sell well." He continued, "Timely, DC, MLJ, and Quality are selling at or above Guide. Early Disney comics are selling well at Guide."

For every cautionary voice, though, there are also enthusiastic entries. As Frank Cwiklik of Metropolis Comics said in his market report, "Everyone wants in. The runaway success of high-profile books sold by us has attracted buyers who are looking for tangible investments that are not prey to the volatility of the stock market or real estate." He continues "The new buyers coming in are impressed by the stability and simplicity of the comics market, and like having an asset that they not only understand, but that brings them great pleasure."

Many times over the years, we've heard dealers and seasoned collectors speculate that all the great collections have already been found. As we've also seen over the span of the Guide's history, we keep finding out that this isn't actually true. Major collections still turn up.

The emergence of the new Super Soldier and Billy Wright collections proved that all the great collections had not yet been found.

As Jamie Newbold of Southern California Comics wrote, "We purchased several unique collections. . . . One collection consisted of 375 Golden Age comics from the mid-1930s to the early 1940s. The DCs and Centaurs went quickly." His company was hardly alone.

The Super Soldier collection of 250 Golden Age comics including many Timelys was sold by Metropolis and released simultaneously at Comic-Con International: San Diego and on the company's website. As Frank Cwiklik pointed out, "...nearly half the collection was sold within the first week."

Heritage Auctions offered the Billy Wright pedigree collection in February 2012, consisting of Golden Age comics including many #1 issues and high grade runs of top titles covering the period of 1936 through 1941. This collection of slightly over 340 issues sold for a record $3.9 million. And we're continuing to see the impact of Twin Cities pedigree collection, too. It's not only pedigrees that are performing, though.

Brian Schutzer of Neat Stuff Collectibles and Sparkle City reported, "Golden Age was very strong in 2011. The Golden Age market appears to be poised for a big jump in interest and prices over the next few years."

Providing a grounding perspective, Dave Anderson pointed out that "the huge sales that get all the attention are very unique, exceptional books and those that have bought them paid those prices because they felt they may not soon get the opportunity to buy them again. The majority of the books sold throughout the year are not of that caliber and sell for much closer to Guide prices."

It has been reported to us that many of the Bronze Age key issues in 9.2 to 9.6 grade are being pressed to increase the grade to a higher level. This process is adding more 9.8 books to the census population. Consequently, because 9.8 copies have become more common, we have seen prices for many of them level off and even decrease.

"The Bronze Age has been affected in an adverse manner by the increase in the number of high-grade copies joining the census. I have found that the prices have plateaued to a certain extent," said Vincent Zurzolo of Metropolis Comics.

Brian Schutzer of Neat Stuff concurs. "2011 continued the downward trend of prices attained for high grade Bronze books. It now appears that a correction has taken place in the Bronze market and price stabilization seems to be taking place," he said.

However, Tom Nelson of Top Notch Comics writes "Incredible Hulk #181, first Wolverine, observed online sales of double Guide in the good to fine conditions."

A note on digital comic books from Stephen Gentner:

"It's hard to read how the digital comic market will help or hurt our hobby. The newer and younger readers whose first blush with comics is in digital form, will remember looking at a computer screen to fondly remember their youth and favorite characters. To older collectors, the idea of reading a comic book is exactly that...a [periodical]. The tactile sensation of turning pages and smelling newsprint (or ink), is a big part of the experience. Yet, if the newer reader never knew what that was, they have no frame of reference to "miss it." Instead of taking a stack of books over to a buddies house and share and read, today's comicphile will meet their buddies either on-line, or go to Starbucks with their laptops to share."

We know a number of our readers in both the consumer and dealer ranks are concerned about this topic. For our part, while we are following it closely, the wider dissemination offered by the internet should mean that more potential collectors than ever will be exposed to what our hobby offers. After all, if even a small percentage of the group not presently reading comics starts discovering what we have to offer, we could be in for the biggest growth we've ever seen. That's not to say it will happen, just that we should be skeptical of those who tell us they're certain of what will happen.

As has been recent history, 2011 was a volatile year for investments in the age-old, tried and true stock market. The stock market had many days last year on which it would jump up 200 points, but to go down 200 points the very next day. We were hit with continuous bad news coming out of Europe and the U.S. had its credit rating downgraded by S&P. In all, 2011 was a difficult year to navigate where investments were concerned. Could the alternative be comic books?

In recent years comic conventions across the country have grown in number of attendees. There are three giant shows – Comic-Con International: San Diego, the New York Comic Con, and Chicago's C2E2. There are also a number of thriving mid-level shows and a surprising number of small ones, and many of these latter two groups are comic-centric where the largest ones tend to have a more multi-media approach (there's even a new comic-centric one in San Diego starting this fall).

With San Diego presently around 130,000 attendees and NYCC at about 100,000, comic books are now firmly rooted in the consciousness of the general population. The old media and new media coverage of these events is growing (San Diego was even shown on Bloomberg TV). As the idea of collecting comic books reaches more and more people through all of these outlets, our hobby continues to grow and is today accepted as one of the top collectibles.

Will we as a hobby or industry capitalize on this time in the sun? That remains to be seen. In the meantime, while we're thinking about the market as it may be in the future, let's concentrate on the market as it is right now.

2011 showed thousands of price changes reflected in this edition. The following market reports were submitted from some of our many advisors and are published here for your information. While the opinions in these reports belong to each contributor and do not necessarily reflect the views of the publisher or the staff of The Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide or Gemstone Publishing, they will provide important insights into the thinking of many key players in the marketplace.

See you next year!

Artist's Editions

One of the interesting additions to the comic book market this past year also has some potentially strong implications for the already vibrant original comic art market. IDW Publishing's Artist's Edition books feature the complete black and white line art for stories which are scanned in full color so that blue pencil marks, paste-up components, editorial components in the margins, other corrections, and aging are all evident. The pages are reproduced at their original size, making for some big books (and very big in the case of the Wally Wood editions). They're hardcovers with relatively small print runs.

As we're working on this edition of the Guide, IDW has thus far released Dave Stevens' The Rocketeer: Artist's Edition (one version), Walter Simonson's The Mighty Thor: Artist's Edition (three versions – the standard featuring the cover art from Thor #337, a San Diego con variant featuring the cover art from Thor #338, and a blank cover edition featuring hand drawn Thor or Beta Ray Bill sketches by Simonson, which came in its own slipcase), John Romita's Amazing Spider-Man (two versions – a standard one and variant version with self-portrait cover of Romita and many of his characters. The limited version has signatures by both Romita and Stan Lee, and original drawings by Romita), and Wally Wood's EC Stories: Artist's Edition (three versions – a standard one, a variant cover edition of 100 copies featuring a self-portrait by Wood, and a second printing edition with a new cover, which we have not seen yet as I write this).

These are scheduled to be followed by Will Eisner's The Spirit: Artist's Edition and David Mazzucchelli's Daredevil: Born Again – Artist's Edition (which will have regular and signed, limited versions). As one would expect with success, at least one other publisher has announced a similar project.

We'll see if the strong prices (up to 3x cover, with cover $100 or higher) paid for some of these volumes stand up over time, particularly in the face of the second printing on the Wally Wood book. They are uniformly selling above their offering prices. Given what's been happening with select original art, perhaps these products we timed perfectly.

Regardless, we'll keep an eye on them..

Grant Adey Fats Comics Australia

Some very exciting news for buying comics in Australia, 2011. I have started to see the first of eBay-bought collections arriving on the floor of my shop, high grade keys, CGCs, mid-grade Golden Age, pedigrees. What I have seen so far is very impressive. Most Australian comic book Internet collectors took to eBay in 2001 like ducks to water, and for the first time high grade U.S. comic books were being auctioned off by the droves. With plenty of talk rooms/forums to inform collectors on what to buy, the Internet buyer was well informed. It was an emerging market in the U.S. where anybody who had a computer could sell comics. The results here are nothing short of amazing.

For one reason or another, comic collections don't always remain in the hands of the collector. Also for one reason or another, the owner decides for a quick tasty sale on the lot here and now. More boxes of comics end up on my shop floor rather than eBayed. The other shops on the East Coast of Australia dumped vintage comics for the assurance of guaranteed sales of new issues rather than the unknown monthly figures of back issues. The last couple of months have been a bonanza for the Silver Age collectors who shop in my store. All of those U.S. "chuck 'em out" auctions from 2001 - 2008 have been a blessing. For the first time in 10 years, I have been able to compete with U.S. stores on price, and quality, sometimes better.

Here are some sale prices: Action Comics #1 Poor book-wormed $7000 (the Action #1 was a deal I brokered from one collector to another, neither asked for my advice, nor was it given), Detective #27 coverless $2500, Amazing Fantasy #15 (3 copies) all GD+ $2500 ea, Amazing Spider-Man #1 (3 copies) GD/VG $1500, Mickey Mouse Magazine #1 Good $800, Avengers #1 CGC 6.5 $1600, Avengers #1 CGC 1.5 $500, Avengers #2 FN $650, Fantastic Four #12 CGC 5.0 $300, ASM #4 VG $400, Incredible Hulk #2 to #6 GD+/VG $1200, Incredible Hulk #181 CGC 9.2 $1500 & 181 Fine $250, Conan #1 to 10 VF $300, Strange Tales #101 VG/FN $150, Green Lantern #1 VG $200, Giant-Size X-Men #1 FN/VF $350, X-Men #94 FN/VF $180, Sub-Mariner #1 FN/VF $200.

The tyranny of distance also played a role in what Australian collectors bought, and importation freight charges have always dictated that it's better to buy small and good rather than a big pile of ordinary stuff, locally called tipsy run. Along with every comic collection comes the associated trinkets, also bought along with comics are: Vintage Cereal rings, Syroco figures, toys and original art. I bought Bernie Wrightson's 4 water color covers for the cult with receipt from Bernie, a Dick Ayres Strange Tales page, a Jerry Robinson Joker sketch signed, a Kirby Captain America splash page, I'm handling things here that were never seen outside the USA.

Selling Comics: Australia is a very unique market, some books get way over the odds while other gems flounder. For example Amazing Spider-Man #300 I get $300 lucky if it lasts a week on the shelf, Batman The Killing Joke 1st print $100, Transformers '88 #1-4 set VF $85, Predator anything #1-4 $35, Aliens #1-4 set $35, Gold Keys double Guide, TV comics e.g., Buffy photo covers $20, Angel $15, Battlestar Galactica $15, Wolverine #1 '88 $100. I don't sell new issues so "new" meaning last 10 years or so. New comic sales are a value for money thing, I build sets from the collections I buy. If #9 is that month's hot book I don't care, there it is #1 to 10 $15 take em all. I have ended $1 comics. Shop rent, insurance and administration has put floor space at a premium and dollar boxes don't cut the mustard anymore. My used trade paperbacks at $15 to $20 fly out the door, priced same as a set of #1-4.

Selling, I tried some new approaches this year taking a trade booth at the Gold Coast Hot Rod Show, a 3-day indoor event at the Gold Coast Convention Centre. Booth cost was a reasonable $300, I must admit it did look a little odd with pop culture in a sea of chrome parts, but one thing hot rod owners have is wives and children with time and money. Sell out items were Charlton Hot Rod comics, Ed Roth books, how to draw books, Australian reprints of Matt Baker Romance comics, Movie comics, swinging '60/'70s comics with psychedelic covers, sold all Aragonés/Wolverton Plop comics, Horror, all these comics sold at $6 to $8 ea. Plus there was the associated toys, bobble heads, magazines etc.

It was a very successful weekend and it resulted in expanding shop customers. My shop has been in the one location since 1974, although I am the 4th owner, still I have reached local people who never gave comics a second thought. The marriage of convention to shop with website or eBay works well. I don't believe convention to Internet works, follow up sales for purely Internet sellers just doesn't happen, something gets lost. I think it's commitment to a product, let's face it, most websites that are selling comics today could change to ladies handbags and Tiffany lamps tomorrow and know one would really be surprised. The newspaper auction pages here are filled with "failed Internet business" ads. The bricks and mortar shop still holds lots of advantages over online businesses, in-house buying stock, in-house appraisals, insurance valuations, consignment with 1st owner insurance, warranty, money back or exchange, payment plan, trade up or down.

More on Selling Comics: This past year has seen some great things in comics, Marvel movies, TV's Big Bang Theory gaining more popularity, and closer to roots, record if not "science fiction" numbers being paid for comics at the big 2 auction houses. Vincent Zurzolo and the ComicConnect team has had many record sales of Action #1, chalked up 2 more pedigrees that is an enormous amount of work, plus a selling buying trip to Europe. I have sold comics at conventions on 3 continents, San Diego, London and home in Australia, and its tough traveling internationally dealing with manifests forwarding freight C.O.s and customs specially in these uncertain times. Rick Milne from radio 4BC in Brisbane has invited me in for his talk back collectors show and I'm sure one of the topics will be Action #1.

I have invited Al Stoltz from Basement Comics to visit Australia next year, a simple 10 day meet and greet at all the major comic shops on the East Coast of Australia. Well known Phantom collector Pete Klaus from Baltimore visited us this August. It was great to see "Pistol Pete" talking comics and collecting, he is so passionate. The international network of comic retailers and collectors brings flavor and excitement to the industry. I would like to see a tightening up of comic retailers shops coming under certain big 2 brand names with a corporate uniform look and code of conduct. This is the next step for the industry.

A Little Bit of History: I spoke with Tony Albanese in Brisbane recently. Tony is one of the founding fathers of Australian comic book retailers. My question to him was why I couldn't find any early U.S. comics locally. His answer: During World War 2, all periodicals were no longer sold outside America. The stories were sold to Australia/England and reprinted in black & white. In Australia no imports were looked at until 1959, the first few available were Harveys like Casper, Wendy etc., Atlas TTA #24, Strange Tales #88 and some Westerns, Dell Four Colour series, Charlton Super Suspense and some assorted issues. DC stories sold well in reprints and only new titles were to be imported: Justice League, Green Lantern, and some issues of their war titles. In 1963 Dell split the licensed properties like Tarzan and the Disneys to a new imprint called Gold Key and concentrated Dell to promote company owned new titles. For the next few years Australian publications still sold well but once Stan and Jack filled the racks with all Marvel comics in colour no more new Australian comics were produced. The first US editions in Australia, I found, were Amazing Spider-Man #2 and Fantastic Four #4 in 1962.

So with no imports of U.S comics from 1939 (Australia joined the war in Europe in 1939) to 1959, this explains the huge amount of American reprints and lack of finding U.S editions.

Australian Phantom/Disney/Crime Reprints:

Australian Frew Phantom comics consist of U.S newspaper strips reprinted in B&W, starting in 1948. Golden Age Phantoms continue to rise in value, high grade gaining about 10-15% a year. Very stable gains. On the other hand, Disneys seem to be falling slowly, losing 15-20%. Best buys are the U.S Crime and Romance reprints. Pre-code Crime reprint comics can be bought at a fraction of the U.S. print cost, no censorship here. Most are identical copies with the exception of b&w interiors, colour covers all printed on newsprint paper. I have sold a Venus #1 reprint, brutal covers, marijuana stories, Matt Baker romance covers/stories, Mary Worth love stories, torture covers, gangsters in drag, etc., etc. And there are some shocking advertisements that take the back covers. Most Australian comic collectors just don't see what's wrong on these covers, or don't care, I dunno. But a 50 year old man leering behind a young dancer back stage is a little different in my opinion.

Some of the Australian '50s comics I was able to buy are stamped "foreign file copy". The collection was the finest array of Australian comics ever brought to auction, 1930s Buck Rogers, Kit Carson, Indian Fighter, Prince Valiant, Jungle Jim, Popeye, Crime and Punishment, Police File, Brenda Starr, Felix the Cat, Ripley's, Teenage Love, Taxi O'Hara, Mandrake, Ben Bolt, Don Winslow, Secret Agent X-9 to name a few of these incredibly rare gems.

Australian print runs are microscopic, so a lot of the '30s and '40s comics are very likely to be the only ones known.

Comics printed in Australia during 1939 to 1945, the WWII years, are of the poorest quality paper and the b&w interiors change from black ink to blue to red (clearly a case of whatever a printer could lay his hands on at the time), none were stapled, just a glued spine and quite frequently the guillotine failed to cut leaving a folded comic uncut. I have found U.S. comics which have been bound into a 100 page giants by publishers, e.g. American Disneys with the covers torn off then 4 comics bound with a new wrapper saying Donald Duck bumper issue 1 shilling (10c). Same went for Westerns and Romance comics. Australian comics went to dollars and cents pricing in 1966.

Many thanks to Mike Clarke and Bruce (Rooster) Ellsworth for their help and support again this year, from the furthestmost outpost this is Slim signing off till 2013.

Foreign File Copies from the 1950s are incredibly rare reprint gems.

Greetings from Central California. Well some good news for price variant collectors. It appears another 15¢ test market price variant has been discovered in the hobby. Dell's regular size comics that were published cover month dated 2/57-7/58 can be found with both 10¢ and 15¢ cover prices on them with the 15¢ editions being test market price variants that were test marketed regionally in the USA. Almost immediately after the 15c price variant test market period ended, Dell released another variant, a "10¢ Now" cover variant. The "10¢ Now" cover variant editions are found on Dell regular size comics cover month dated 9/58, 9-10/58 and 9-11/58. For example Dell's Uncle Scrooge #23 9-11/58, Comic Album #3 9-11/58 and Walt Disney's Comics and Stories #216 9/58 all exist as "10¢ Now" cover variants that I have seen.

I purchased in 2011 a Pep Comics #156 15¢ price variant (unslabbed) in VG+ for $95.00 about 7x Guide. Archie 15¢ price variants, still new to the hobby, are quite difficult to find, especially in mid to high grade and are mainly found in low grade VG or less when found as far as I can tell. One might note Pep Comics #153-159 15¢ price variants have all surfaced in the hobby and I believe all the Archie 15¢ price variants will in due time. I compiled a list of Dell 15¢ price variants seen below and hope it helps collectors out as to where to look for them. I hope everyone fills the holes in their collections.

While doing some research for one of our clients I had an occasion the reference past editions of The Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide. During an exhaustive study of the first 41 editions of the Guide one of our researchers pointed out the fact that among all the dealers that have placed ads in the Guide over the past 4 decades, no one has had ads in more editions than I have. I have had full page ads in every edition beginning with the second one that appeared in 1971. I would have placed an ad in the first edition but it seems that there was no solicitation of advertising for that issue. My earliest ads were directed towards mail order buyers and sellers and were generated from my office in Hollywood, CA. In 1973 I opened the American Comic Book Company, a retail store and mail order chain in Southern California, and ran ads under that name until my move back to Florida in 1989. We have always had one or two staff members as Price Guide advisors since the beginning.

I can fondly remember those early days of collecting and dealing with comic books before there was any reference material or historical documentation available to comic book fans. You had to physically get the material in your hands to track down origins, artist and character appearances, etc. To be able to dig out information from the long lost pages of the four color treasures that we still seek today just added to the thrill of the hunt. Early fanzines began to pick up speed in the early 1970s and were an important source of information and documentation for early comic book historians. Now there is a ton of information available about the history of comic books and collecting. Reprints of older comics give us all an opportunity to see the material first hand but there is still a lot of work to be done and ground to cover in documenting the phenomenon of collection.

In the past, collecting was looked down upon and considered to be "Americas Secret Hobby". With the advent of the internet and the proliferation of the comic book inspired movies, the hobby has become an acceptable part of mainstream America. With several comic books selling for million dollar prices, collectors now have to compete with investors.

The State Of The Market

We can sum this up by saying that 2011 had our biggest volume of sales, ever. Original owner collections popped up like never before. A few years ago we thought that virtually all the original owner collections had been unearthed. Fortunately our assumption was in error as we have had monstrous collections come in during the last 14 months. Two of the owners had just recently become aware that a collector's market existed. In both of these cases the original owners had amassed their collections during the 1940s and had gone on to other pursuits during the 1950s and beyond. Both lived in the North Eastern US and had large family homes where the collections stayed unmolested for decades. One of these fellows had moved back into the family home a couple decades earlier and had actually become a hoarder. His children had become concerned that he was headed for the TV program Hoarders and took on the task of cleaning the place up and in the process unearthed a shockingly valuable collection of comic books.

Considering these recent acquisitions I have come to realize that there are many more original owner collections that will come to the market in the next few years. As the population ages the folks who bought material as kids in the 1940s begin to expire and their heirs will be disposing of lots of valuable collector's items. Maybe those of us in Florida will finally have a geographic advantage as lots of old timers choose to spend their last days in the hospitable climate that our state offers. Actually one day after we submit this report we are headed to look at an original owner collection, the old timer has passed away and the heirs finally cleaned out the house and sold it. They were astute enough to gather all the collectibles and put them into a storage unit. They were visiting Florida and brought us several boxes of material, which proved to be excellent. Now that the weather has improved we will travel to their site and liberate the remainder of the collection.

Clearly the ongoing economic problems are a concern to all of us. When your house is worth only one half of what you owe on it you have a problem. When a lot of people are in this situation we all have a problem. The drag on real estate values has also put a strain on the values of some collectibles. This creates a unique economic triangle. Economic strain forces prices downward. As prices drop bargain hunters and bottom feeders thrive and compete for the available material. The increased competition drives prices upwards.

Even economic disasters cannot diminish the passion of the collector. The pride of ownership and the thrill of the hunt are not quenched by financial crisis. The intensity of the collector is a stronger force than an economic depression. Could it be that in hard times each acquisition is more precious? We have seen many record prices in the last year and this trend is not likely to stop and will certainly improve with the economy. Expect price increases.

Golden Age And Other Comics Related Items

Timely: Pre-1955 comic books are still the backbone of the hobby. Relative to the number of books available the demand for vintage Timely comic books is without equal. Captain America is still the most popular Timely hero. Next in popularity come Marvel Mystery, Human Torch and Sub-Mariner. The multi-character titles are equally popular. Titles like Daring Mystery, All-Winners, All Select, USA and Mystic had short runs and seem that they could be collected as complete sets. This has not been the case as several of these issues are quite scarce and those collectors who have completed sets of any of these titles are to be congratulated. The fact that these multi-hero titles had many origins, first and single character appearances is only eclipsed by the fact that some of the top Golden Age artists worked on these books. Several have stories and covers by Joe Simon, Jack Kirby and Alex Schomburg in addition to editorial guidance from Stan Lee.

These books are regularly selling for 1-1/2 times listed Guide values and 2 or more times Guide value in higher grades. Certainly this is not breaking news to anyone, the important fact here is to recognize the consistent rate of appreciation that the Timely super-hero issues have had over the last four decades.

As the earlier issues get harder to find, the Timely collectors have taken a more serious approach to locating the Western, War, Romance and Funny Animal issues. Forty years ago very few people would have projected that Super Rabbit and Annie Oakley would be titles that are highly sought after in 2012. Ask yourself "how many copies of these titles have you seen at comic cons this year"?

DC Comics: Where would comic book collecting be today without DC Comics. They have had a major influence on the hobby, our culture and the world. Even terrorists in the remote areas of Afghanistan know who Batman, Superman and Wonder Woman are. Without a doubt DC Comics are the most collected of the Golden Age. The main titles are always in demand to the point that we often sell out of Action, Detective, Batman and Superman issues. We have recently seen increased want lists for Flash, All-American, Sensation, Star-Spangled and believe it or not, Boy Commandos.

The 1950s era DC issues with the best sell thru rate were the 5 major War titles. Our Army At War is the key series and seems rather low in Guide values resulting in many of the issues being snapped up at double Guide prices. The other War titles sold between full Guide and 1-1/2 x Guide. Key issues were the exception and many went for double Guide. In most cases prices drop for the 1966 and later issues. This time period drop does not apply to the DC Romance titles. Later issues have brought 3-5 x Guide values on a very consistent basis. One sleeper from DC is Blackhawk. This series began at the start of the Golden Age and was published originally by Quality Pubs. Although it started as a War title it morphed into a Sci-fi Super-hero series at about the time that most publishers were dropping the costumed characters. Blackhawk was continuously published when Flash, Hawkman, Human Torch and Sub-Mariner were being dropped in the late 1940s. As a War and Sci-fi title it fit in perfectly with the trends of the 1950s. The series enjoyed almost constant publication through 1984 and has had some mini-series and special issues hit the stands into the 1990s. This seems like the type of book that will always be available, but don't count on it. We have noticed a few investors quietly hoarding copies of this series.

The Silver Age DC keys are not cheap, but think what their values could be in 5 years. Investors are buying these now. They are also buying high grade DC digest titles.

Other Publishers: Among the fastest sellers are Fawcett and Fiction House. Marvel Family has been our best Fawcett title, we attribute this to multiple super-heroes appearing in a fairly low priced series. All the Fawcett Super-heroes are bargains when compared to DC and Timely. They are an acquired taste but we have seen a couple of convention investment buyers snapping up higher grade copies in the last 6 months of 2011.

Fiction House is still the top of the Good Girl Art publishers. Don't expect this to change and don't expect your local dealer to have copies in his inventory forever. The only Planet Comics we located all year long were ones that we took in trade from other dealers. They used to be easy to find. Sheena remains an American icon and everyone seems to love the issues that have girls stepping out of panels. We are not sure who started that concept, possibly it was Matt Baker.

Fox Comics: They are now the targets of many Good Girl Art collectors and still sell faster than they can be found. At some point every existing copy will be in the hands of collectors. How far are we away from that time? The early super-hero issues from Fox are fun to own and read. This inconsistent but entertaining publisher featured the Blue Beetle as their headline character. In the first issue of his title he had a different but similar costume in each of the 4 stories. The 1950s saw Fox trying to gain readers by producing comics with more adult themes such as Phantom Lady, Rulah and All-Top. Several Fox issues were cited in Seduction Of The Innocent, a book that attempted to show the deviant nature of comic books and their detrimental influence on children. Fox romance and crime titles were loaded with good artists and wild stories. All the Fox titles have had brisk sales and have brought at least full Guide values and in many cases they have sold for as high as double Guide for key issues.

Quality Comics: Strong sellers were the Blackhawk titles and early Hit and National issues. Plastic Man, Spirit, Dollman and Kid Eternity issues were consistent movers. Romance issues with Bill Ward art brought 1-1/2 x Guide with the other issues selling with little resistance at full Guide.

Archie Comics: These have been popular from the Golden Age to now. We see the $2.99 Archie Digests in the check out lines of the grocery store every week. Archies are the only comics that we ever see at the grocery store. What does that tell you?

We sell some of the Golden Age issues almost every week at full to 1-1/2 x Guide. Almost every time we offer them for sale we get several low-ball offers at 1/4 to 1/2 of the Guide prices. This must mean something.

St. John and Avon: These publishers produced lots of key issues. They are often overlooked because they did not have long runs of any of their series. The Matt Baker issues of the St. John Romance titles have been bringing 4,5 & 6 times Guide. Do you ever see them for sale at any conventions? Popular Avon issues have art by Wally Wood and Everett Raymond Kinstler. There were lots of Sci-fi, Romance and Crime issues that today are bargains at double Guide prices.

Pre-Code Horror Comics: These have made a comeback after a couple years of low demand activity. The more bizarre and lurid the issue, the more people want it. Prices are creeping up on these. I remember as a child seeing some of these issues on the newsstands and I was terrified. I never read one until I found a few EC comics around 1956. I have been collecting them ever since and it seems that a lot of collectors are in competition with me for the few issues that become available.

EC Comics: Although there are a multitude of reprint editions, the original comic books still have a loyal following of serious collectors. As one of them told me, "there is nothing like holding the original book and feeling the coarse newsprint paper with the slightly musty old book store odor". Reading the original satisfies the senses like no reprint ever can. We had several hundred original EC comics in stock in the past, now we have several hands full. Yes, we need more of them.

Silver Age Comics: Marvel titles are in heavy demand. The great thing is that all conditions sell well. Amazing Spider-Man is by far the most popular title of all time and is like money in the bank. Fantastic Four, X-Men, Iron Man and Avengers are extremely popular.

Batman far outpaces the other DC characters and Superman and Wonder Woman are also in high demand. Remember, these characters enjoyed continuous publication throughout the 1950s when all the other super-heroes had ceased to exist.

Warren Publications and Other Magazine Format

Comics: Vampirella and Mad had both been in a slump in 2010 but had terrific rebounds in 2011. I'm not sure why they had a down year in 2010, maybe we did not do enough to promote them. Creepy and Eerie were again popular with back issue collectors. Famous Monsters of Filmland, which is not actually a comic book, is still the flagship Warren title and should be listed in the Guide since so many comic book collectors also cherish this title.

Eerie Publications remained strong sellers. Their violent covers and stories appeal to collectors of the unusual and bizarre. Their key titles were Witches Tales, Terror Tales, Weird and Horror Tales. It is interesting to note that their titles were almost all swipes of previously used titles and their earliest issues reprinted Ajax/Farrell pre-code horror comics. These titles were created in 1966 as a reaction to the repressive Comics Code and there a lot of collectors for them. Many issues sell in the double Guide range and are hard to locate in higher grades.

Pulp Magazines: The super-hero pulps had a deep decline in popularity during 2011. We cut prices on many issues and still had trouble moving them. The Detective and Crime pulps were on fire and Science Fiction pulps could be considered hot items. As write this our shipping department is packing several thousand dollars in pulp orders. They are all sci-fi and Detective issues. As of early 2012 we had had a few orders for Shadow, Doc Savage, The Spider and Operator #5 pulps. We anticipate that the turn around for the super-hero pulps is underway.

Acquisitions: One year ago we did a market report stating that we would wholesale product rather than taking on additional storage space. We have received so many collections during the year that we have been forced to reverse our strategy and we are now receiving contractor proposals for enlargement of our current structures. We have several collections to pick up in early 2012 and need space for processing. Accordingly we have had to increase our staff and expand our management team. We did get a huge influx of inventory from a long time dealer who finally retired and placed his entire inventory and collection for sale with us. We will probably be offering this material over the next several years as we have only been able to move a small part of the comics to our location. As in the past we did a large volume of our business off of want lists, however internet sales still top all other areas.

Conventions: After several years of not setting up at any conventions our management team adopted an intensive convention schedule beginning in late 2011. If you see us at any of the future conventions please stop by our booth and introduce yourself, we are always interested in meeting other collectors. One hidden gem for convention attendees is the Tampa Bay Comic Con. I have nothing to do with this except as an exhibitor but I want to spread the word to collectors that this is one of the best local type cons for older comics in the U.S. It has recently had a new management team step in and expand it to a multi-day show. Many dealers from as far away as Canada have been setting up at this show and the variety of older books for sale is shocking compared to many similar size shows. If you have a chance to attend the Tampa Con you will not be disappointed.

In Appreciation: We want to take this opportunity to give a word of thanks to the Edgar Rice Burroughs and Frank Frazetta families. We have been through some tragedies and triumphs together and we just want to say "keep up the good work".

2011 was a very exciting year in the comic collecting world. Several new collections surfaced and nearly anything in high grade sold for well above Guide prices, and in many cases, for record prices. Despite the bad economy, there is no reason why this trend cannot continue. It is important to recognize however, that the huge sales that get all of the attention are very unique, exceptional books and those that have bought them paid those prices because they felt they may not soon get the opportunity to buy them again. The majority of the books sold throughout the year are not of that caliber and sell for much closer to Guide prices.

Mainline titles of recognizable characters sell for Guide or slightly above, second tier titles sell for 20-30% below Guide due to less demand, and very common low interest titles sell for 50% or less of Guide values especially if in lower grades.

Bob Overstreet has done a nice job over the years in making the Guide prices reflect the majority of the market and then reporting the record sales in his market report rather than have Guide values reflect the record sales.

In 2011 the biggest news was DC's "New 52". And big it was with all of the #1 issues going into second or more printings. We underestimated the impact of this radical idea but DC kept us well supplied with additional copies. The entire concept was unprecedented.

Even after the first few issues of each title, sales have been very good for DC comics. Whole new groups of readers and collectors have been coming into our shop; including younger ones. The new interest in the Justice League, Batman titles and Superman titles have been tremendous. The $2.99 issues (plus a few $3.99 ones) have been very popular with the readers.

Marvel, however, has not been able to match the success of DC. For the most part, Marvel sales have been flat and even declining with too many X-titles glutting the market. Marvel needs a new and imaginative approach, like DC, to put some life into its line of comics. Marvel's Amazing Spider-Man, Avengers line and main two X-Men comics are selling well but it seems future growth in these titles will be limited.

DC's "New 52" was a big hit with Action Comics #1 and other issues going into multiple printings.

With the exception of The Walking Dead, we order very few Image comics. There is no demand for them, including Spawn. The Zenescope Entertainment Grimm Fairy Tales titles sell well especially with the variant covers that are offered. On a more adult theme, Broadsword's Tarot, Witch of the Black Rose is an incredible back issue seller. They are impossible to keep in stock.

Dark Horse doesn't do well but the quality of its comics is good. The lone exception is Buff, The Vampire Slayer. This has a strong cult following. Our best sellers for IDW are the Godzilla titles. We were caught off guard when sales jumped quite a bit after their introduction.

Trade paperbacks and hardcover comics are difficult to sell. We only take special orders on these. Most comics published over the past 30 years are hard to sell with most winding up in the 25-cent or dollar boxes. The 25-cent section is red hot and sometimes hard to keep filled.

Silver Age Marvel keys do well when priced right. Issues such as Tales of Suspense #39, #52 (1st Black Widow) and #57 (1st Hawkeye) don't last long in the shop. Sales of early Fantastic Four are nearly comatose. The exceptions are the first appearance of Black Panther (#52) and issues 48-49-50 (Galactus-Silver Surfer). Miscellaneous Tales To Astonish and Tales Of Suspense just languish in the shop. The Incredible Hulk isn't much better with most collectors only looking for #181 (1st Wolverine).

X-Men from the 1960s are very hard to move; even in nice shape. The exception to this is #1. With Avengers, the most sought after are #1 and #4 (Captain America). Amazing Spider-Man key issues have slowed down quite a bit with most being out of our customers' price range.

Even 1960's Batman and Detective comics have experienced a slow-down. Issues from the 1970s do well, however. Superman, World's Finest and related titles (Lois Lane, Jimmy Olsen and Superboy) do OK marginally.

The high unemployment rate in our area has forced many collectors to sell their collections to us. Unfortunately, almost all the comics brought in are from the '80s on up and these we sell very cheaply. We did get an exceptional Silver Age collection (mostly Marvels) and the key issues sold very quickly. The collection totaled over 10,000 issues.

Sales of Golden Age and CGC comics are for the most part dead or on life support. Everyone wants a bargain on these titles but that's not going to happen on key issues. Sales of humor comics (Disney, Warner Bros., numerous other companies) from the 1940s and 1950s, are practically nonexistent. We had a large group of Carl Barks Donald Duck Four Colors from these eras but managed only to get 20 to 25 percent of Guide for them (we were glad to get it too!).

Ebay is a vast wasteland with most sellers not knowing what they are doing or expecting premium prices for their items. In some cases, though, eBay can be a buyers' paradise with established sellers. Heritage Auctions offers good deals from time to time with My Comic Shop.com and Metropolis Comics being in the exceptional range.

Wizard World Chicago (2011) saw a sharp drop in the number of comic book dealers from 2010. There were few bargains to be found. Metropolis, Graham Crackers and Harley Yee were the mainstays. Also, there were many copies of Amazing Fantasy #15, Tales Of Suspense #39 and Tales To Astonish #27 glutting the dealer room. Overall the convention was very well attended.

Sales of the 2011 Overstreet Price Guide were very strong and probably the best ever for us. We expect the 2012 edition sales to be even stronger.

Prices That Should Go Up: Detective Comics #359 (1st Barbara Gordon Batgirl, 1/67) has been a very hot item. Early Lois Lane issues and Superboy in top condition.

Prices That Should Go Down: All Dell titles, humor and otherwise, are vastly bloated and very hard to sell. Marvel's Conan (early issues) DON'T SELL! Anything past #24 goes in the 25-cent box. X-Men #5-115. The reprint issues (67-93) especially. 1960s Adventure and World's Finest comics. Fantastic Four #8-47, 51-on up; Captain America #101-on up. Journey Into Mystery/Thor #101-on up. Tales of Suspense #40-49, 59-99; Tales To Astonish #35-on up. Incredible Hulk #103-179, 183-on up. All Showcase and Green Lantern #8-75; The Atom (All), and all Adam Strange Mystery In Space.

Sales: Journey Into Mystery #83 (Good-) $700.

Amazing Spider-Man #3 (fair) $150; #4 (GD/VG) $300.

L. E. Becker WARP 9 Comics

2012 already? The year has flown by quickly with record sales of Silver Age comics (Amazing Fantasy #15...$1.1 Million!!), publishers scrambling to raise their print runs, Big box stores starting to carry direct market product, and the ever "dangling threat" of digital comics. Hmmm...you know, looking at these three topics, I just realized...they were ALL items of interest that I had talked about for the last THREE years within Overstreet's market report. So what's next?

DC Comics: The New 52 Relaunch...Things must have been REALLY desperate at the WB office for them to even OK this. A desperate gamble that paid off...kinda. The first issues of almost all of the new DCs sold out for us. I say "almost" as a few of the titles were heavily ordered for the variants, or as we knew that a few would be great back issue sellers. Some no-brainers such as Justice League #1 sold out at our competitors instantly. We were getting phone calls from shops in OTHER STATES to supply them. A book by Geoff Johns AND Jim Lee, and many of the retailers I talked to didn't even bump their normal orders by at least 25%? After market prices have stabilized since #3 was released, but it still commands a $10.00 price The bigger Justice League #1 surprise was the 2nd printing fiasco. Everyone's orders were cut by 68%! So a smaller shop who ordered say 10 copies, only received a maximum of 3! Slap on a variant cover, and it's the second coming of Batman #608 second print! Right now we get an easy $20.00 for this one, but I can see this printing shoot as high as $50.00 in the next year or so when supply dries up more.

Other DC 52 titles that are selling well are Batman (due to Scott Snyder & Greg Capullo), Action Comics, Detective Comics, Batgirl, Justice League Dark, and Aquaman. The 2 surprise hits, however, are Animal Man and Swamp Thing! Written by Jeff Lemire and Scott Snyder, respectively, both of these titles have been exceptionally strong sellers, even out-selling certain key Marvel titles. Of course, with the good comes the bad, as Blue Beetle, Men of War, Static Shock, and Green Lantern Corps are way under performing.

Talking to a few retailers, I was told by a few that many did not order crazy numbers (even though many of the 52 titles had future returnability, which we took full advantage of), because of the new digital release program. Many of my peers felt that there would be no need to order multiple copies due to same-day digital release. I am going to say the same thing as I said before about digital format vs. print format: as long as comics are perceived as a collectible, the print format is NEVER going to die. The digital target audience is for the casual or lapsed reader. The collector will ALWAYS buy the print format. Will that change years from now when the cost of print becomes so high that every publisher will begin producing on a digital format? Perhaps. But as of now, the print format (according to Dan Didio, EIC of DC Comics) outsells digital at 64,000,000 copies to 1,000,000 (or 64:1). Digital is a great format, true, but it still has a long way to go to catch up, or even surpass the print format. In my opinion, I don't think I will see it in MY lifetime (my grandkids might).

Besides the new 52, DC has a minor hit on their hands with the various computer/gaming comics. Online sales of such titles as God of War, Assassins Creed, and Batman Arkham City are well beyond cover price for complete sets. For example, a full set of Assassins Creed: The Fall went for $40.00 and Arkham City has closed for about the same. I should reiterate however, that these sales are through the internet (ie: eBay). In the store, sales are non-existent.

Vertigo needs a shot in the arm. There are not many new projects coming out that are getting people excited.

Spaceman did well, however the new main stays such as Unwritten, Sweet Tooth, and I Zombie, have fallen off, selling at the single digits. The one trend I am seeing with Vertigo titles (I have said before), is that the TPBs sell better than the normal issues. Scalped sells 10 copies within the store, however, we sell almost double that in the trades.

Marvel Comics: Fear Itself, although a very good story, fell kinda flat in its sales. The constant crossovers did NOTHING to help sales, and perhaps, arguably, hurt sales of the regular titles, as the trade dress for the series crossover, made each title look like it was a mini-series and NOT an issue of the regular on-going. For example, Avengers normally sells for us an average of 75 copies. Once the Fear Itself trade dress was placed though, sales dropped by 8-15%. Many regular customers missed an issue of the normal book because it looked like part of a mini-series.

Marvel had a few re-launches this year also, like DC. Captain America, Daredevil, Uncanny X-Men, Wolverine and the X-Men, and Incredible Hulk. All sold very well (of course the accompanied variant cover didn't hurt either). The biggest surprise however, was Ultimate Comics Ultimate Spider-Man! We heard MANY grumbings from our customers. "A ethnically different Spider-Man? How absurd/stupid/racist (that one I didn't understand)". "This title will be cancelled within 6 months!" Does NO ONE remember Spider-Man 2099? Long story short...a HUGE shot in the arm for the Ultimate series! Sales have almost doubled. #1s are all over the place, however, #2 commands $10.00, and #3 about $8.00.

Ultimate Spider-Man #160 and Fantastic Four #587, both death issues of Spider-Man and the Human Torch respectively, were also great sellers, although many fans did not/do not believe those characters will stay dead (SPOILER! Fantastic Four #600 came out...with a newly resurrected Human Torch...go figure).

Independents: Image leads the way again with such titles as Severed, and The Vault. Dark Horse's Mass Effect comics are still doing well (see the previous remarks about DC's video game lines), but the relaunch of Buffy and friends... well...they just ran out of steam. IDW actually had some great books that have sold well such as Godzilla: King of Monsters (which had a retailer variant that we participated in), Next Men, True Blood, and the biggest surprise of all, TEENAGE MUTANT NINJA TURTLES! Nice to see that the classics (and YES, I do believe that 1984 WAS a classic time for certain comics) are still sought after.

I'm a collector and dealer in the Northwest, Seattle and Portland mainly, with about 25 years experience. I sell comics on eBay (As jb233 – always buying!) and, generally speaking, I have few gripes. I find it to be a fair marketplace and one that has allowed me to grow my personal collection and shift my inventory in a way I couldn't have imagined 15 years ago. Certainly, it would be great if the fees were less (we are the 99% after all) but, given the service, I can't really find the voice to object.

This year, I sold over 10,000 comics, working for one special client in my region who owns a massive collection. Our top books included summer sales on an Action Comics #24 in CGC 8.5 that sold for $4400, an X-Men #1 in CGC 4.0 for $1690, Journey Into Mystery #83 in CGC 3.5 for $1725, Incredible Hulk #181 in CGC 9.0 for $1325 and many nice CGC comics including 5 copies of Marvel Premiere #1, all in CGC 9.2 that went for between $66 - $116.

As I write this, Nic Cage's Action Comics #1 in CGC 9.0 has just become the champion money comic of all time. Can you believe it? Someone paid over two million dollars for a comic book. We've come very far, very fast and there is no end in sight for high-grade keys. It seems like all we hear about are records being broken by this or that auction house - and this highlights the most definitive trend in collecting old comics, the bifurcation of the hobby/business where slabbed, pedigreed "museum pieces" are bought and sold as serious investments versus . . . everything else.

While this observation is nothing new, I can confirm that while the big keys break records, the polar opposite end of the spectrum – the low-end books – continue a slight downward trend. Much of what I've sold this year consisted of 30-50 book lots, typically Bronze and Silver Age low-mid grade runs of titles from all publishers and genres but focusing mainly on your typical DC and Marvel super-heroes. Without exception, I saw a 10-20% price dip in mid-summer for these lots. Furthermore, the market for these books has not recovered despite an ever growing customer base, and a (knock-on-wood) perfect customer record with over 1800 feedbacks.

Last year I reported that Craigslist was a great avenue for collectors to pursue the hobby . . . Man, how quickly things change these days! Unfortunately, at least in my region, Craigslist is overrun with collectors and resellers who use apps and programs to alert them with instant messages whenever a comic listing is posted. This means that an iPhone message or email is instantly relayed when someone posts anything with 'comics' in the title. I've tried to keep up with this set of aggressive Craigslisters with little success. Where a few years ago, I routinely pulled great collections off of Craigslist, I now find that I am never (NEVER) the first to reply and typically the books are gone or going out the door. I've also noted that the quantity and quality of comics listed on Craigslist has dipped this year. Oh, well. It was fun while it lasted.

The highlight of the year for me was a private sale at a local comic shop, Excalibur Comics of Portland, owned and operated by Peter and Debbie Fagnant. Peter opened Excalibur in Portland in 1974 and he's kept his doors open for 37 consecutive years, focusing, primarily, on comic books.

In October, Peter invited me to a special sale on the very next evening after the shop was closed. I showed up to find twelve other collectors and dealers waiting as Peter carefully laid out around 700 comics in small stacks corresponding with titles. Then, when everything was set, he turned us loose. This collection of mostly high-grade comics, focusing on Good Girl Art from the 1942-48, with nearly all Fiction House and Quality titles represented, probably should have been submitted to CGC as a pedigree collection. In my 25 years of comic hunting, I've never seen a collection quite like it. Runs of Phantom Lady, Blue Beetle, Planet, Hit, National as well as complete runs of Torchy, Seven Seas, and all of the Fox jungle books – many in devastatingly high grade. I'm certain the only place I'll ever see more Matt Baker and Lou Fine covers in one place is my Gerber guides . . . It was quite a night! And made even more amazing because these books were nearly thrown away by the original owner's elderly wife but saved from the trash heap by a neighbor that suggested they call the local comic store. Thanks again Peter and Debbie.

Speaking of old collections, if you have an interest in the history of the pedigree collections, you owe it to yourself to click on over to Steven Ritter and Matt Nelson's site, (www.comicpedigrees.com.) There, they've painstakingly detailed the top comic collections ever found. Literally hours of great reading on this site and highly enjoyable. Thanks guys.

To further investigate the frequent fluctuations of recently sold books, check out the Stock Exchange column at the Bleeding Cool website (www.bleedingcool.com). This column – and the site in general – are highly recommended for news on comics and they frequently track the sales of old books in up-to-the minute articles.

Good hunting to all in 2012.

Steve Borock Heritage Auctions

Before I talk about the market, I would like to thank Bob Overstreet for 42 years of greatness! Without Bob, the market would not be where it is today, happy and healthy. I would also like to give a shout out to J.C Vaughn and Mark Huesman for their hard work on the Guide. These fine folk never get the credit they deserve.

Collectors still savor the Good Girl Art from Fiction House and Quality. (Jungle Tales #78 shown)

This year's market report can be summed up in just a few words: THE MARKET IS ON FIRE FOR THE RIGHT COMIC BOOKS AND COMIC ART! As I write this, we have just finished the current Heritage Signature Auction and it brought in almost nine million dollars! That blows away any auction in the history of our hobby and blows away the record that Heritage previously held before by about three million dollars, a new world record!!!

It has been three years since I left my position as President and Primary Grader at CGC and joined Heritage Auctions and I am still having a blast! The main reason is that I am able to go around the country helping collectors and many dealers of comics bring their collections to market and getting them the highest prices. In the last year, Heritage has brought most of the best material in our hobby to market, such as the Savannah Collection, the final pieces from the Edgar Church/Mile High collection, the Billy Wright collection, and many, many more, all realizing record prices.

Action Comics #6 CGC 8.5 $34,655
Adventure Comics #320 CGC 9.8 $2,031
All-American Comics #16 CGC 8.0 $203,150
Batman #1 CGC 8.5 $274,850
Captain America Comics #3 CGC 9.2 $50,787
Daredevil Comics (Battles Hitler) #1 CGC 9.4 $38,837
Detective Comics #29 CGC 7.0 $83,650
Detective Comics #33 CGC 8.0 $92,612
Fantastic Four #4 CGC 9.6 $44,812
Fantastic Four #5 CGC 9.4 $65,725
Fantastic Four # 12 CGC 9.6 $65,725
Incredible Hulk #1 CGC 6.5 $11,950
Marvel Mystery Comics #40 CGC 9.0 $21,510
Star Trek (Gold Key) #1 CGC 9.6 $22,705
Tales of Suspense #69 CGC 9.6 $2,629
Tales to Astonish #50 CGC 9.8 $2,390
Wonder Woman #6 CGC 7.5 $5,975

Let's not forget the original art! Heritage has brought more amazing vintage original art to public auction in the last year than all the other auction houses combined. The prices realized have been through the roof! Three covers alone from the late, great Jerry Robinson's collection totaled almost half a million dollars!

As I mentioned before, the market is on fire for the right pieces. By "right pieces" I mean rare comics and high grade vintage comics (pre-1968), as well as classic original art. Will this trend last? I don't know, but I have been in our hobby since I was a kid and I have never seen more enthusiasm from collectors than I do at this point in time.

Much of what I will be writing next is some of the same things I have written in the past, but I think it is very important that I reiterate some of these points.

Modern comic books: I love them! I read at least one new comic a day and up to as many as ten. There is such great stuff being published, but like movies, TV shows, novels, and other entertainment, you still need to weed through the bad and mediocre to get to the good and the great. Now, about investing in Modern comics, I have to say: BE CAREFUL! If a comic book comes and you can't find it that week or that month, have some patience. If you are looking for a reading copy, most will be available as a collected trade within six months to a year. If you are looking to put a high grade copy in your collection, most of the time, when the "hype dies down, you will find it at a much lower price as well. I personally believe that most Modern comics will not be a good place to put your hard earned money as an investment. With a few exceptions, you are better off putting money into pre-1968 comic books.

Speaking of places to put your money....please check out The Hero Initiative (www.Heroinitiative.org). This is the one place where we can really help the people who bring and have brought us the many, many hours we have enjoyed with these wonderful comics. To quote the website:

"The Hero Initiative is the first-ever federally chartered not-for-profit corporation dedicated strictly to helping comic book creators in need. Hero creates a financial safety net for yesterdays' creators who may need emergency medical aid, financial support for essentials of life, and an avenue back into paying work. Since its inception, The Hero Initiative (Formerly known as A.C.T.O.R., A Commitment To Our Roots) has had the good fortune to grant over $500,000 to over 50 comic book veterans who have paved the way for those in the industry today." This is fueled only by your contributions. Remember: If you would accept help, you should give it as well, fair is fair. Let's hope most of us never need any financial help, but let's help those that do.

I will end my report the way I have for the last couple of years: Even though I believe in this market, there is no "free lunch". If you are going to invest in comics, you had better love what you buy. If the economy ever gets really bad, just like if you own stocks or precious metals, you will not be able to sell them for a really high price very quickly and you can certainly not use them to house or feed yourself or your family. The best advice I can give, and have been doing so for as long as I remember, is: "Buy what you love and can afford." It's really that simple. Enjoy collecting and reading comic books, enjoy the friendships we make in this wonderful hobby, look at and enjoy all the cool stuff around us, from original comic art to movies based on our favorite comics to comic book memorabilia, and it will all seem worthwhile in the end.

Thank you for taking the time to read this and HAPPY COLLECTING! - Steve

Kevin Boyd Director, Joe Shuster Awards

One highlight of the year for comics in general was DC's New 52 relaunch/reboot. First announced in the Spring and a reality in September, it seemed to both infuriate long-time readers but also caught the interest of lapsed readers - everyone wanted to know just what was happening to the DC Universe in general - causing a huge upswing of interest in DC Comics publications in September and October, and a lot of interest in the product at retail outlets and on the secondary market. As I write this, the books are cooling off, but there is no doubt that this attention-getting move improved the sales of many flagging titles such as Justice League, Action Comics, Superman, Wonder Woman and The Flash. Some number one issues were selling as high as $20. Demand definitely outstripped supply for a short time, but the heavy reprinting of the books will likely compromise any long-term collectability.

2011 was the year that most comics publishers embraced digital formats seriously. Unfortunately it was done without any visible strategy, but it is literally changing the business of comics, whether we like it or not. No publisher seems to quite know yet how to integrate the existing (yet declining) print markets with a complimentary digital strategy that doesn't throw out the direct market. My hope is that the highlight of 2012 is that someone comes up with a formula that integrates a proper multi-media roll-out strategy that wasn't ad hoc. Between digital publishing and intensive reprinting of back issues in various print formats such as hardcovers and trade paperbacks, we are in the midst of a period of immediate availability of almost all types of comics and comic strips. Basically if you are interested in reading it, it's probably available to you in some format.

Original Art collecting is still a fun and thriving aspect of our community. At events across the world every weekend it seems, fans are obtaining sketches, commissions and/or original published artwork from creators and a new breed of convention sketch artists has emerged.

I used to be the Director of CGC's Signature Series program, but work and changes to the program led to my stepping back and congratulations should go to the fine work of CGC's Signature Series Director Joe Pierson, who tirelessly works for fans and collectors at events big and small alike. The last couple of years we've seen tremendous growth and interest in sketch covers - comics printed with blank covers so that fans can get their favorite creators to draw on the cover for them, and there's been huge interest in getting these unique pieces of original art CGC graded. One quick visit to CGC's message boards will establish the preponderance and variety of sketch opportunities from artists of all kinds, professional and amateur alike.

What I see and hear from my friends and associates in the field is that there is still steady demand for quality Golden, Silver and Bronze Age comics. Record sales continue to be seen for key books in high grade, such as ComicConnect's recent sale of a CGC 9.0 Action Comics #1 for $2.16 million. Personally I seen a slight decline in the use of eBay for private sales, and a growing shift towards using alternate methods such as the CGC forums and the ComicArtFans website to sell original art and back issues, particularly CGC graded back issues, online. On a more prestigious level, auction houses such as Heritage, ComicConnect, and ComicLink continue to get record sale prices for key books and original comic art pieces.

As for comics in other media, the success of superhero movies does not seem to have that great of an effect on sales of new comics and back issues, however the massive success of the Walking Dead television show has created a lot of interest in the Walking Dead back issues.

I'm also here to wave the Canadian flag a little bit and promote the Canadian comics scene. Canadian creators were at the forefront of comics publishing on all fronts - web-comics, self-publishing, mainstream comics, comics for kids and alternative/artistic comics making this another banner year for Canadian creators. Some of the Canadian publishing highlights were: Chester Brown's Paying for It, Darwyn Cooke's Parker: The Martini Edition, Francis Manapul's The Flash, John-Paul Eid's Le Fond de Trou, Jeff Lemire's Animal Man, Frankenstein and Sweet Tooth, Stuart Immonen on Marvel's Fear Itself, Kate Beaton's Hark! A Vagrant, Michel Rabagliati's Paul au Parc, the amazing webcomics of people like Emily Carroll and Connor Willumsen, Jon Klassen's hilarious children's book I Want My Hat Back, Ramon Perez's adaptation of Jim Henson's A Tale of Sand, and the astounding collections of Hal Foster's Prince Valiant from Fantagraphics.

Canada has two official languages, and I'm happy to report a thriving French language comics scene based out of Quebec. There were dozens of high quality graphic albums published featuring the work of Quebecois creators like Michel Rabagliati, Jean-Paul Eid, Maryse Debuc and Marc Delafontaine, Guy Deslisle, François Miville-Deschênes, among others.

Certainly there is no better example of the diversification of the field than in the 2011 Joe Shuster Award winners, announced at the Calgary Comic & Entertainment Expo in June. Highlights include Francis Manapul (Outstanding Artist for The Flash), Fiona Staples (Outstanding Cover Artist for IDW's Mystery Society and others), Émilie Villeneuve (Outstanding Writer for the French language graphic novel La Fille Invisible), Tin Can Forest (Outstanding Cartoonist for graphic novel Baba Yaga and the Wolf), Koyama Press (Outstanding Publisher), Scott Chantler (Comics for Kids for his graphic novel Three Thieves: Tower of Treasure), Emily Carroll (Outstanding Webcomics Creator for His Face All Red and other stories), Montreal's Planète BD (Harry Kremer Retailer Award) and our Hall of Fame Inductees Todd McFarlane and Chester Brown.

We were saddened by the recent loss of two Golden Age creators and the Awards Association would like to thank Alvin Schwartz and particularly the ambassador of comics - Jerry Robinson for their contributions to comics and comics creators. Jerry was of great help to the organization when we launched the Joe Shuster Awards in 2004. Our condolences to their families and friends and to the generations of comics fans who mourn the loss of these great men.

The comics world was saddened by the passing of Jerry Robinson. (His classic cover to Detective Comics #70)

Canadian comic events grew tremendously this year. The largest --- FanExpo Canada, continues as North America's third largest event (after San Diego and New York) with attendance above 80,000. Shows like the Calgary Comic & Entertainment Expo, The Montreal Comic-Con and the Central Canada Comic-Con (in Winnipeg) all saw major spikes in attendance and interest, and retailers at these events were fairly positive in their outlook on convention sales in general. Special mention should be made of the Toronto Comic Arts Festival and the Festival de la bande dessinée francophone de Québec (FBDFQ), two unique events which display the strengths of Canada's indie/artistic comics community and French language comics scene respectively. Finally, special mention should be made to the growing zine community that gathers regularly for events such as Canzine in Toronto and Vancouver, and Expozine in Montreal. The next generations of comics creators are cutting their teeth on zines and webcomics, and there are a lot of great comics being published.

I get the sense that we are on the verge of some major changes to the comics industry, so it will be interesting to see what will happen in 2012.

It's been another impressive year for comics and collectibles. We have all seen constant record prices for rare keys like Action Comics #1 and Detective Comics #27 in all grades. The news media has continued to follow these megasales and these have and will create new interest in the hobby. If it's rare and quality it continues to sell well and typically for strong prices. Lesser grade books with weaker demand continue to sell when priced fairly and discounted.

While Tropic Comics primarily deals in comics and related comic and entertainment collectibles we also deal in many historical items and collectibles in other fields including general Americana. It's been a solid year overall, even though the economy is not where it was a few years ago... The recovery continues and so does the passion for collecting and investing in comics and collectibles.

We can't say enough good things about CGC certified comics and the continued positive sales that third party independent grading has brought to the comic hobby. We are still in the early years in regards to certification when compared to coins or baseball cards. We are seeing a lot of success in Bronze Age and later certified comics. Collectors are buying these books to complete their runs or add to their registry collections. While some comics and titles in these eras have seen corrections when compared to prices several years ago there are numerous hidden gems that sell for real money compared to their non-certified counterparts.

This year will no doubt be a banner year for comic book movies with The Avengers and The Dark Knight Rises hitting theaters. We've seen solid interest in related titles and issues of these comics. Collectors are longing to finally see the Avengers assemble in May. It is a great time to be a comic fan!

Brock Dickinson Collector

In last year's Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide, Ken Dyber of Cloud Nine Comics suggested that "I hope Overstreet will consider expanding the number of new advisors that have a good amount of knowledge of Copper -- Present books, as these are the largest percentage of books bought/sold in the marketplace, yet, least represented by advisor reports in the Guide." Hopefully, this is an area where I'll be able to contribute some useful content.

Speculating on Modern comics has had a bad rap since the crash of the 1990s. And in some sense that's justified -- if we all collect only those things that we personally love to read, rather than things we hope might become valuable, our hobby will likely be better off in the long run. However, that doesn't mean that the laws of supply and demand, the vagaries of the distribution system and the rising popularity of individual characters or creators won't still drive price increases, even in Modern comics!

I'll be focusing this report on the period from the late Bronze Age (say, about 1977 or 1978) through to the Modern period. There's actually been quite a bit of action in this area over the past year, and signs of more to come. Perhaps the key trend is a search for scarcity -- anything that collectors believe to be rare or scarce (both relative terms in this context, of course) seems to be attracting significant interest. Here's a few ways this trend is playing itself out: Small Press Successes: Over the past few years, we've seen a number of small or independent titles reach huge audiences. Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles (with their multimedia presence) or Bone (with more than 7 million books in print) are classic examples. Often these titles have small initial print runs, and once they become hits, there's no way that supply can keep up with demand. The past year has continued to see strong growth on the original Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, with prices on #1 reaching the stratosphere, and #2-6 rising rapidly. Bone #1 also commands significant prices -- but there are other titles also fitting this pattern:

Acme Novelty Library #1 ($50), #2-4 ($30 each)
Albedo #2 ($800 for the first Usagi Yojimbo appearance)
Caliber Presents #1 ($40 for the first Crow appearance)
Comic Primer #2 ($80 for the first Grendel), #5 ($40 for the first Maxx)
Creatures of the Id #1 ($30 for the first Madman)
Cursed Pirate Girl #1 ($80), #2 ($120), #3 ($30)
Dime Press #4 ($100 for the first Hellboy appearance)
Grendel 1983 series #1 ($100)
John's Byrne's Next Men #21 ($40 for early Hellboy)
Love and Rockets original black and white cover #1 ($250)
San Diego Comic-Con Comics #2 ($100 for early Hellboy)
30 Days of Night #1 ($80)

Last Issues: Perceptions of scarcity also drive this trend in the market, with many collectors believing these issues to be scarcer than other issues in a run. While this may or may not be true, it has caused demand for many issues to soar. Copper Age final issues of many War and Horror titles (like Sgt. Rock #422, Weird War Tales #124 and House of Mystery #321) are difficult books to find in strict high grade, while some titles (such as Silver Surfer #146) do seem to be scarcer. However, many final issues of popular 1990s titles (like Captain America #454, Incredible Hulk #474 and Thor #502) still had significant print runs, and supply is such that they command only a small premium. Some final issues of Marvel's Star imprint are seeing price increases, with Masters of the Universe #13 ($30) leading the way. The key issues in this area are probably Conan #275 ($40), Creepy #146 ($60), G.I. Joe #155 ($80), Promethea #32 ($15), Savage Sword of Conan #235 ($15), Star Wars #107 ($50), Transformers #80 ($80) and Vampirella #113 ($300).

Reprints: While most reprints tend not to be particularly collectable, the increasing interest in "scarcity" is driving some reprints to higher prices. The 2nd printings for Batman #608 and #612 often reach $40, and the 2nd printing of Superman/Batman #8 goes for $12; these prices are all much higher than for 1st printings. More pronounced examples of this activity are seen in issues like Silver Surfer #50 (3rd printing) which can reach $10 as its 1st printing counterpart collects dust in the dollar bin. Incredible Hulk #377 (3rd printing) appears to be quite scarce, with copies often surpassing $50. Later printings of Batman Adventures: Mad Love will often fetch $30 or more, meaning they are priced roughly the same as copies of the 1st printing. Wolverine (3rd series) #66 2nd printings can reach $20.

"Scarce" Issues – Some issues are seen by collectors as scarce due to distribution issues, which can drive prices up. Examples currently heating up the market include recalled issues like the Elektra #3 nude variant ($30) and All-Star Batman and Robin #10 ($15), as well as the pulped Elseworlds 80-Page Giant #1 ($200). Of greater interest, though, are widely collected titles where past print runs are not sufficient to meet collector demand. This is most evident on The Walking Dead from Image Comics, where #1 is now a $600 book, followed closely by #2 at $350, with later printings also commanding significant premiums. The growing popularity of this title – and a boost this past year from its development as a television series – has meant that supply is inadequate to meet increasing demand. Numbers 3 through 10 are also skyrocketing in price, but this year's breakout book has been #19, the first appearance of the tough-as-nails character Michonne; this now routinely reaches $100. Walking Dead #63 (featuring the first appearance of Chew as a flipbook) also commands about $20. Other long-running books that have gone through "dry spells" are seeing similar (though certainly less pronounced) price hikes. Amazing Spider-Man remains one of Marvel's top sellers, but only a decade or so ago, this was not the case, and the relatively lower print runs of some issues are driving prices up; numbers 403, 410, 416, 430-432, 434, 435 and 437-439 and numbers 19 and 21-29 from its renumbered period are all commanding premiums. Uncle Scrooge comics continue to attract attention, especially the scarce Gladstone run from 1996; number 310 is a $120 book, while 309 and 311-318 all command significant premiums.

Variants: Variants are a source of constant debate among collectors of Modern comics. While they are less common than "regular" issues, there is a growing sense that this manufactured scarcity is somehow counterproductive to the hobby, or even destructive. To be fair, most variants have limited collectability. They may see an initial price spike before settling down to normal prices. Every now and then, though, something captures the imagination and takes off. The Maxx #3 black variant, of which less than 15 copies are thought to exist, is said to be worth $1,000 or more, though sales to back this claim up are lacking. The legendary Miracleman 2-D #1 (with some 100 copies released by Eclipse comics to readers with vision problems preventing them from seeing 3-D images) is the basis of many Holy Grail-style searches throughout fandom. With only a handful of known copies still in existence, this book in strict high grade could also break the $1,000 mark quite easily. But most variants – even those produced as 1 in 200 editions – are much more common, with more reasonable prices. Among those that seem to be developing some staying power in the market are the DC Whitman variants (especially tougher issues like Sgt. Rock and Warlord), Amazing Spider-Man #400 with a white cover ($75), #408 ($100) and #678 ($140), IDW's Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles #1 variants (of which there are many!) and the Adventures of Superman #500 platinum edition ($50).

Image #1s: Following on the huge price increases in Walking Dead #1, Image Comics found a way to make the lightning strike again with Chew #1 ($200) and Morning Glories #1 ($40). This – and the generally high quality of story in many of its new launches – has prompted a speculator run on many first issues of new Image series. This has spurred repeated sell-outs of Image titles, and although prices are not stable, it is likely that some of these titles will see higher prices in the future as demand outstrips supply. Among the titles falling into this category are Skull Kickers, 27, Nonplayer, Prophet, Fatale, and Thief of Thieves.

There were some other big stories in the past year in this Cooper to Modern segment of the market, though perhaps not so directly linked to perceptions of scarcity. These include:

Heroines: The 1950s gave us Good Girl Art, and the 1990s brought us Bad Girls – but comics featuring female leads were increasingly hot this year. Aspen's Lady Mechanika led the way, with price increases on #0 ($60), #1 ($40) and #2 ($8), while Zenescope's Grimm Fairy Tales continued to rise – issue #1 now commands $60 or more. Basement Comics Cavewoman is also in demand. Over at DC, The Brave and the Bold #33 (starring Wonder Woman, Zatanna and Batgirl) sells for $25 or more (as a prelude of sorts to Batman: The Killing Joke), as do Batman: Harley Quinn and Batman Adventures #12 (with an early Harley Quinn appearance). The Brian Bolland covers on Wonder Woman #s 63 to 100 are heating up, with the iconic cover on #72 commanding $20. For Marvel, the first appearance of the Black Cat in Amazing Spider-Man #194 ($60) continues to be strong, while her more recent appearances in Amazing Spider-Man #606 and #607 are hot fetching $8-$10. Cover art by J. Scott Campbell is helping drive those latter two issues, and is also pushing up the variant cover of Amazing Spider-Man Presents: Black Cat #1 (prices vary widely, but average about $50). Variants are often key in this sector, where current interest levels are even heating up older variants on previously cold 1990s titles, including Danger Girl variants. And over at Archie, the early Cheryl Blossom appearances are through the roof – Archie's Girls Betty and Veronica #320 goes for $150 or more, while Jughead #325 (Cheryl's 2nd appearance) is almost as strong.

Television Tie-Ins – Fans of cult television have descended upon the back issue market, looking for fixes of their favourite television series. Hot comics in this area include Futurama #1 at $20 (with other issues heating up as well), Simpsons/Futurama Crossover Crisis #1 and #2 at $10 each, and Jericho (both the IDW and Devil's Due series) at about $10 each. Boom's Adventure Time #1 looks to be poised for similar success, with early sell-outs.

Finally, here's a quick rundown of a few other Late Bronze and Copper to Modern issues that seem to be generating some activity in the current market: Amazing Spider-Man #252, 298, 300, 361; Animal Man (New 52) #1; Batman #357 & 497; Batman: Vengeance of Bane #1; Birds of Prey #8; DC Comics Presents #26, 27 & Annual 3; DC Special #29; DC Special Series – all issues except the Swamp Thing reprints; Dead @ 17 #1; Deadpool #54, 55, 69; Fables #1; Hack Slash #1; Harbinger #1; House of Mystery #290; Iron Man #282; New Mutants #98; New Teen Titans #s 2, 10; NYX #3; Powers (first series) #1; Spectacular Spider-Man #64; Uncanny X-Force #4; X-Men #266 and Y: The Last Man #1.

Sales in this end of the market may not generate the excitement of a $2 million Action Comics #1, but the vast majority of collectors are active in the Modern market. While we all look to avoid the kind of speculator-driven bubbles of the past, it's arguable that more quality material is being produced by more publishers in more genres than at any other time in the history of our hobby. With the relatively low print runs of Modern comics, the search for great reading and great art will continue to create situations in which demand outstrips supply – and in which the Modern market produces its own key books, hot titles and record-setting sales.

2011 - The Year of the "Outbidding-Purchases":

I am pleased to say, that despite being known worldwide as a "strict grader" of comics, I was able to come out on top bidding on and winning a major collection, plus getting another major "score" because of other relevant buying factors. Details to follow...

2011 Buying Experience (From Winter to Winter):

In January of 2011, a fellow from a "small and friendly" town in Colorado called me with quite a nice offering: over 5 pallets (around 150 boxes) of older comics featuring a near-complete Marvel run (Amazing Spider-Man, Avengers, Fantastic Four, Journey into Mystery #83-up, X-Men #1-up, etc.) plus DCs from the 1960s and up and "nice-shaped multiples" of mid-'70s to late 1980s comics.

He didn't want the "hassle" of tons of folks pouring through his beloved treasures; instead, he wanted one "right guy" for his collection. I replied, enthusiastically, "Well, I could be that person." A couple weeks later, I was bound for Montrose, Colorado. The seller mentioned that one buying outfit was too pushy and he didn't want to feel like he was being force-fed into a deal he may not have been comfortable with. An auction house that brags of "big, aggressive buying" wanted him to sell them only the early keys (Fantastic Four #1, Amazing Spider-Man #1, etc.).

This is known in the industry as "cherry-picking". I prefer to buy the entire collection myself. They told the seller, "Simply ship us the whole collection, then we'll make an offer." Being a smart seller, he preferred not to be "cherry-picked," so I come along and I spend many hours looking over his collection. What really helped was that he took several digital pictures of some of the more prominent comics, as well as some of his multiple Bronze and Copper comics. That, and my conversations with the seller, convinced me that he was serious to sell and realistic: he wasn't about to give away the collection, but he understood that (a) the value of his treasured comics depended on the conditions (grades) of the books, and (b) that I must make a profit in order to justify the purchase.

The seller and his wife were very nice folks, and their books were "nice" too. The Silver Age comics were in Good to Fine shape, and many of his "later books" (1975-1990) were in awesome (9.4-9.8) shape. His 1960s DCs varied from "so-so, to nice." Since I truly enjoy buying comics in all conditions, low-to-high, I could maximize what I could offer him for the collection, which was close to $100,000. We made the deal – I had a shipper pick-up the 5 pallets, and then I found that due to extreme Winter conditions, I'd be stranded for a couple of days.

Although I missed my wife, I took advantage of these couple of days off and visited (along with my assistant on this trip who had never been to the U.S.A. "Mountain West" states before) nearby points of interest, including the Black Canyon of the Gunnison (a true scenic wonder, to be sure), and a "jewel of a town", Ouray, Colorado, as well as frequenting daily the local coffee house in Montrose.

When the comics came in, I worked with my small but capable staff, to lay out and totally organize the collection. I have eight aisles of 8-foot high steel-shelves in my 4,800 sq. ft warehouse, wherein reside over 4,000 boxes of comic books, magazines, and some original art and pulps. But, I always enjoy buying more, so I make sure to have space for incoming goodies! (We also have a nice view of Mount Tom, a local mountain, from our windows.)

So, we sold the major Marvel titles as "runs of an issue" over the months... and then, the "real work" of the collection began. I've been going through boxes, looking for comics that are potentially "CGC-worthy" (in some cases – such as Amazing Spider-Mans in the #201-251 range, they must be a potential 9.8 to qualify. Amazing Spider-Man issues in that number range in 9.6 or less just don't sell for enough to make it worthwhile to CGC 'em (and I must admit I've gotten pretty good at determining which of them would most likely be graded 9.8, or only a "mere 9.6" or less.)

As of this writing, I still have about 60 boxes from the collection to look through, and hopefully, will get through them by the time you read this.

Another collection I bought, later in the year, had runs of many titles from the late '40s to the present (one of my favorites being a run of Superman #45-423). For this collection, I was willing to pay 50% more than another prominent dealer, who charges twice as much as me. How can this be? It's because I have a "Ready Clientele" of customers who know they can depend on grading and purchasing satisfaction from me, and I can work on a much smaller profit margin than do many other comic dealers. Plus, I enjoy having a "multi-decade supply" of comics for my customers' continu-eBay: It has become a larger part of my selling than I care to admit to myself (though my regular "year-after-year" buyers, and the "newer-recruits" to making GDC purchases are still the mainstay of my business.) eBay, in many ways, is a hassle: and very time-consuming. With over 4,000 boxes in my warehouse, I so far have less than 5,000 comics on eBay! Those are "Worthy oldies" being offered, for sure, but still... We have a "boss" staff, that is overall quite computer and eBay-literate and works well with eBay customers. Still, the eBay overhead can be a bit much, but on the other hand, it does bring in additional satisfied buyers (we presently have a 100% eBay-satisfaction rating.) I'm hoping to finally have our newly-revised website (www.gdcomics.com) ready by the time you read this.

I'm proud to say that my warehouse is more organized than ever, thanks largely to my "crack crew." Most of my 50,000+ Silver Age and back, as well as many of my 200,000 (or-so) Bronze Age comics, are now in order, as are over a thousand boxes of mid-'80s through 2000s. I love to buy collections, dealers' stock, and other "Warehouses" of comics, "lock, stock, and barrel", resulting in the "sick" amount of comics that I own. I am proud to say as well that when I am offered an Inheritance collection. I truly do give them, and the collection (or dealers' stock) the respect that it, and they, deserve. I realize that many of these sellers are putting their financial fate in the buyers' hands, so I pride myself in doing the right thing for them. In addition to making things a bit better at this difficult time for them, it adds to the credibility and respect for our treasured hobby.

Golden Age: I still do great with these, on comics like Timelys (especially Captain America Comics!). I find myself comfortable paying close to Guide. I can often sell them, somewhat over Guide, and I do well with Poor to Good condition Timely comics, as well as higher grade ones.

DC Comics: Ahhh... early Action and Detective comics, I can get over Guide for, so of course I pay for 'em accordingly. Mid to late '40s Super-hero DCs, I get Guide for, and non-Superhero DCs (Boy Commandos to Gangbusters) have, in my experience, suffered in sales over the last couple of years, so I often discount these. I'll still buy them, but I must take the above into account when I do so.

Other Golden Age: Super-hero oldies sell, as do Pre-code Horror. I especially like buying EC collections (I scored

It's not shocking that Pre-code Horror
is selling well.
(Shock SuspenStories #7

many of them last year) and Super-hero Golden Age collections that include runs of 1930s and early '40s stuff.)

Silver Age Marvel: I do great with 1960s comics, especially Marvels. I've scored many runs of these this year, in all grades. The main problem for me is that, as I grade them, I can't help but re-read, or at least re-look through them. These great "1960s babies"... I never tire of them.

I find myself continually running low (and then replenishing) 1960s-1975 Amazing Spider-Man, Captain America, Iron Man, X-Men, etc. Those early Marvels I consider to be the true "brick and mortar" of today's comic market, in almost all grades.

DC Super-Hero Titles: Green Lantern issues are solid sellers (especially #1-20), as are Batman comics. Most other Super-hero 1960s DCs sell kinda slow, but I like "stockin' 'em" anyway!

DC War Titles: Our Army at War issues sell solidly enough.

DC Mystery and Horror Titles: They sell pretty steadily. In "sharp" shape, most Silver Age DCs do quite well as they are kinda tough to get in that condition.

Other Silver Age Genres: Well known TV Comics sell pretty well (Gold Key Star Trek and I Love Lucy, just to name a couple) and Herbie Comics (The Fat Fury!) move well enough.

Bronze Age: They've been, in general, slowly but steadily increasing in value. One can still, however, get many of them, for a dollar a piece, or less. Quite a bargain, I'd say, for comics over 30 years of age! I like being well-stocked in Bronze and early Copper comics, as for the generation immediately following the Baby Boomer generation, these are the books with which they grew up.

The best Bronze sellers are 1970-1975 Amazing Spider-Man, Batman, Captain America, Detective, Fantastic Four, Hulk, Iron Man, and X-Men, plus DC 1970s Horror comics.

Modern Age (1980s – 2000s): Folks, there are a lot of these out there, so, to really move them pretty well, the best way is in sets. I sell many of them on eBay, at around 60¢-$1.00 a book, and for that reason, I enjoy buying runs of comics from that era.

Original Art: These are the great "Wild West" of comic-related collectibles. Many 1960s "better artist" pages (such as Kirby, Ditko, etc.) that were worth $200 a piece or less in the 1980s, are now worth thousands of dollars per page. Of course, I love getting in these "unique-wonders."

Hey, have a grr-reat Comic book enjoying year! G.D.

Walter Durajlija and Marc Sims Big B Comics

Big B Comics had a great 2011! We had strong showings at the Toronto area conventions we attended, including our best Canadian Fan Expo ever in August 2011. The Montreal Comic-Con was also a huge surprise with the building over capacity both days! Back issue sales for us are always led by Spider-Man. I honestly don't know what we'd do without the guy. We bought and sold 2 copies of Amazing Fantasy #15, one was a CGC 3.5 and the other an un-graded 1.8, both went for about 15% above Guide and both to very happy local buyers. As always, if we had more of them we could have been selling them every month. Every issue of Amazing Spider-Man sells for us and sells quickly. We truly believe that there is no title that is more collected than Amazing Spider-Man.

We saw a pickup in Golden Age comic sales by the end of 2011. We sold about a half dozen mid-grade issues of All-American and Green Lantern that had been sitting for a while at our shop. Maybe it was a fluke but it does seem that there was a bit more interest locally for DC Golden Age than in years past. Golden Age Batman and Timelys sold well for us as well, which is never a surprise. The supply of original owner Golden Age in our region is relatively scarce so we don't see much coming into the shops anymore. As a result, any thing new and cool that we do get doesn't tend to last long.

Bronze Age keys did OK this year. We were able to get full Guide for nice copies of Green Lantern #76, Amazing Spider-Man #129 and Incredible Hulk #181 though we did see a softening in price on some of the lesser Bronze Age books in high grade. I think many investors are seeing that it's wiser to buy 5 copies of Amazing Spider-Man #129 than one each of 5 different lesser or equal Bronze keys. X-Men #94 and Giant-Size X-Men #1 especially couldn't sell for Guide unless in ultra high grade. They both appear frequently in collections that we have been buying for the last 5 years.

Our website comicbookdaily.com enjoyed strong growth in readership in 2011. The comic book collecting component of the site, which includes my weekly Undervalued Spotlights and my Auction Highlights columns, saw a twofold increase in regular readers. My Auction Highlights did reveal a negative trend in realized prices for a large part of the back issue market.

The price correction is still happening in the graded back issue comic market, especially for the Bronze Age to Modern Age. International press coverage of high profile sales like the $2.16 Million received for the CGC 9.0 copy of Action Comics #1 presented a rosy picture to those outside the collecting community. In reality there was, and still is, quite the drastic correction occurring just below the headlines. Seasoned collectors agree this correction is needed and it's my view that corrections like this weed out the sunny day speculators, ultimately leaving behind a more stable market.

Unfortunately there are still investors and collectors out there that overreact to a newly graded "highest grade" copy. Thankfully more and more collectors and investors are realizing (some the hard way) that CGC Census scarcity is not the same as actual scarcity. We need years and years of adding to the CGC Census before we can get even a remotely accurate handle on the general scarcity of a comic. We at Big B Comics advise all our customers investing in the graded back issue comic market to steer clear of the best graded or even second best graded copies. One need look no further than the $1.1 Million paid for a 9.6 Amazing Fantasy #15 in March 2011. At the time it was the only 9.6. Now at the time of this writing there are 3 (2 universal, one restored). Maybe there will be a 4th by the time you are reading this. What we can guarantee is that whoever shelled out over a million bucks for that 9.6 because it was the “only one” is going to be displeased with the result if that second one comes to market.

Another interesting trend that accelerated in 2011 was the market’s refusal to blindly agree with the CGC grade. While I agree that CGC holds a critically important position in our market, many are now openly questioning some of the actual grades assigned. It’s to the point where large fluctuations in realized prices can be seen for books with identical CGC grades. People plopping down large sums of money now more than ever want to agree with the grade before buying the book. Often advice is sought from industry experts (some of these ‘experts’ buy exclusively for high end buyers).

In a nutshell, issues like centering, which CGC for some reason tends to ignore, gloss and the overall feel are all aesthetic markers that help determine a person’s willingness to pay. These markers are now actively being measured against the grade assigned by CGC. Books can have 8.0 looks with 7.0 grades while others can have 7.0 looks with 8.0 grades. More and more I’m seeing collectors grade with their wallets on the big monthly comic book auctions.

I expect the downward correction of prices to continue through 2012, especially for books that are known to be common. Here’s where I give another compliment to the Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide (no, I don’t get free ads though I do believe it is indispensable as a tool). The Overstreet Guide has been acting as a sort of safety net for many a comic book in freefall. Basically if the graded 9.8 and 9.6 prices start collapsing on any comic book published say, post 1970, the NM- or 9.2 Overstreet Guide price acts as the minimum point to where the value will tend to fall. This is a generalization and I’m sure you can find individual examples to refute this but collectors and investors are subconsciously exercising their faith in the goodwill the Overstreet Guide has built up through 40 plus years of doing a great job monitoring and reporting values for comic books. Let’s face it, most of the comics from 1975 and up are in high grade. Just because there were only 5 graded at 9.8 by CGC in 2009 does not mean there are not 5000 more out there just as nice and ungraded. For comic books like this a 9.8 or a 9.6 is really a 9.2 price guide wise. These high grades are the expected standard for someone searching for a nice copy of any book from this era.

The trend to question the CGC grading could lead to a problematic near future for the collecting community. The back issue market needs total (and deserved) faith in the CGC grading process if there is to be renewed and sustained growth. It would be unrealistic to assume that CGC got all their grades right over the last 10+ years but we are entering a phase in the market where buyers will scrutinize the grades more thoroughly than ever and we can only hope CGC’s consistency can carry the day.

Markets in correction can offer opportunities though. As a generalization I’d make these recommendations going forward. Chose key comics, chose high grades but not necessarily the highest, chose aesthetically pleasing books that are well centered and have strong page quality. and use the Overstreet Price Guide as a reference point.

Some great comic books will get overlooked at auctions because they may be trending downward on price tracking sites. Opportunities to buy wisely are all over the place. Happy hunting!

2011 was a pretty solid year for the back issue portion of our business, but it really shined for us on the retail side. In 2011 we operated two storefronts in Hamilton & Barrie Ontario. In 2012 we will add our third store in the heart of beautiful Niagara Falls, Ontario. Both our stores saw massive gains in 2011. Sales and people through the door both enjoyed record double digit gains. So much for the global recession!

The DC New 52 relaunch in September certainly helped the cause, allowing us to sell new, accessible comics to a whole new readership. We saw a big gain in both lapsed readers and brand new readers as a result. Now 6 months in, not everyone of course has stuck around but we continue to get new people coming in and trying books from the relaunch. I have to thank our partners at DC Comics, especially fellow advisor Bob Wayne, for a fantastically executed launch. DC made it easy for retailers to stock these products with numerous ordering incentives, limited returnability, and very quick reprints on all the sellouts. And most importantly, they got people excited about it and into our stores looking for the products! Retailers that failed to capitalize, and there were far too many of them, should think long and hard about who is really to blame.

We want to take this time to thank all of our wonderful customers and of course all of our hard-working staff. You’re all awesome. In 2011 we celebrated our 15th anniversary of selling comics out of our retail stores, and over 25 years of buying and selling comics in total. The comic collecting community is a great place to call home and one that we feel forever fortunate to be a part of.

Ken Dyber Cloud 9 Comics

Greetings. I’ve been buying and selling comics for 25 years now, starting on the East Coast in Connecticut, and now on the West Coast in Oregon. Feel free to visit Cloud 9 online at www.cloudninecomics.com or you can email me at ken@cloudninecomics.com. Contact me as well for a private showing if you’re coming to the Portland area. The website continues to evolve and improve with more 1 to 1 ratio cover scans, better design, and now direct links from GPAnalysis to our CGC slabbed books, as well as the acceptance of all major credit cards. Cloud 9 is also a CGC Authorized Dealer, so feel free to contact me if you have questions about CGC or would like to receive a discount on submitting your books to CGC.

This year I was able to travel to the East Coast and Midwest to shop, hitting about half a dozen stores in New England, and ones in Madison, Chicago, and Iowa City, which helped give me a sense of what was available across the country, and what things were selling at (or not selling).

The Year Overall: This year I believe I've found a new price variant for Daredevil #190. I've had this book in stock before, and always seen a cover price of $1.00, but this year I purchased a collection with a huge run of this title, with multiple copies of most issues, and there were 3 copies of this issue, 2 with $1 covers, and 1 with a $1.25 cover price. There was no listing inside the book of a "second printing" or "reprint" information. All text/artwork was the same. If anyone else has found other variants from the $1 cover time period, please email me, as I was not familiar with any from this period, as most identified in the Guide are from the Bronze Age.

eBay: Most non-keys are selling well below Guide of common books from Silver Age to present in lower & mid grade. This has been consistent for a while. So... good deals can be had if you're happy with buying a FN+ from the Silver Age or VF from the Bronze or a VF/NM from the Copper Age. Unless you buy regularly on eBay, there is quite a bit of risk on raw books here. Buy from people who are nationally known dealers with return policies, 1 to 1 ratio cover scans or high quality photos. Be wary of sellers offering raw high grade Silver and Bronze keys month after month, as there just are not that many of those books available. Some sellers on eBay will buy restored CGC books, crack them out of the case and sell them as unrestored. Check the CGC forums before dropping big bucks!

Below are some thoughts about specific time periods, some books I've purchased, some books I've sold, and some basic thoughts on pricing in our beloved price guide.

Golden Age: I continue finding myself buying more and more Archies. Great artwork and stories, and boy are these tough to find in Fine or better! I picked up a nice copy of issue #47 which I kept for myself which has a full page Veronica pin up, with a full page Betty pin up on the other side. Highest graded copy of this issue is only a 7.5, with only 3 graded copies! War comic sales are picking up for me as I continue to tell my regular customers about how scarce these are in Fine or better (Archie Comics #50 shown).

higher - forget VF copies for many issues. In July, an Our Army At War #83 CGC 7.5 sold for $9,600, which isn't even the highest graded (a lone 9.0). Is this a steal or ridiculous amount to pay for a 7.5 of this book, who knows, only time will tell. Either way, this book seems quite scarce, and needs to move upward in Guide in all grades by a good percentage.

Crime books have been slow for a while, but so was pre-code Horror for a while. Keep your eye on these, as many are quite scarce, and often contain quite violent covers and stories. Fight Against Crime #20 is a classic decapitation cover that hardly ever comes up for sale. This one needs a major upward price adjustment in Guide in all grades. Thrilling Crime Cases #49 (Classic L.B. Cole cover) also is selling well above Guide in all grades with a raw GD+/VG- selling on eBay for $128 (Guide is $72.50) and a CGC 8.0 selling for $1315 (Guide is $284, that's 5x Guide for upper mid grade!). Issue #41 (first issue) has only one graded copy, a 9.2, issues #45 and #47 have no graded copies and issue #44's highest graded copy is a 4.0 (the only graded copy). This entire series seems quite scarce & very undervalued in Guide.

Early Four Colors continue to be hard to track down as are early Dick Tracy issues, both of which sell quite fast at or slightly above Guide when I can find them.

Good Girl books have regained quite a bit of interest here in the Pacific Northwest with what I have called the "Hollywood Smokeshop Collection" being discovered by Peter Fagnant the owner of Excalibur Comics, Portland's oldest comic book shop. This collection contained around 600 higher grade Fox, Fiction House, Harvey, Timely, Avon and Quality books from such titles as Phantom Lady (entire series except for issue #23), Jo-Jo Comics, Rulah, Zoot, Torchy, Jungle, Jumbo, Fight, Modern, Doll Man, Planet, Black Cat, Blond Phantom, and Blue Beetle, to name only a handful. Almost the entire collection graded above Fine, with Very Fine- probably being the average grade. Cover gloss and page quality was excellent with many books having White or Off White to White pages.

I already knew many of these titles were less common, but after some research, it seems many of these books are quite scarce in any grade, let alone in high grade. CGC census for some of the Modern Comics I picked up had zero graded copies or only 1 graded usually around the 7.0 range (Often the "D" Crippen copy). For many of these books, the highest graded copy is between a 7.5 & 9.0. The savvy investor should keep their eye on this genre, as there could be a big upward swing in pricing in the near future on many of these.

Although not in this collection, I then researched My Love Secret, the title Phantom Lady switched to after issue #23. My Love Secret #24 (1st issue) has zero graded copies and even has Kamen and Feldstein artwork. The series only went seven issues to #30 before once again changing its name. At the time of this report, the CGC census had 1 graded copy of issue #25 (9.0) and 1 graded copy of issue #26

(4.5). That's it, no other graded copies of the entire series. I then checked eBay, 2 auction sites, and 2 other major retailers' sites (that's 5 of the largest comic retailers sites) and there were NO copies of this title for sale. So, not only are many of these Good Girl titles containing great stories and artwork, many of them are scarcer than I think people believe. The Blue Beetle Kamen/Baker run seems quite affordable compared with their horror counterparts from the early '50s. Issues #52 and #54 have been noted due to their bondage and headlight covers respectively, however issue #53 should also receive its own line listing with a strangulation cover.

Silver Age: So many great titles and investment opportunities here, where to begin... How about with Archie's Girls Betty & Veronica #75 where they sell their souls to the devil? This is one to keep your eye out for. From what I've been told, right after this issue came out, a certain religious group nationally asked everyone in its faith to purchase this book and destroy it so no one else could buy it due to the storyline. To date only 1 copy has been graded by CGC, a 5.0/FN-. This book seems undervalued to me, and is probably much more scarce than people realize.

A few big ticket sales to note: A Tales of Suspense #39 CGC 9.2 sold for $72,100 in Sept. 2011 and the following month a Journey Into Mystery #83 CGC 9.2 sold for $100,000. Detective Comics #359 the intro. to Batgirl Barbara Gordon has become a super hot book selling well above Guide in all grades and needs a major upward swing in Guide to reflect its true value. Iron Man #1 continues to be one of the most liquid books from any time period for me. This book needs to go up in all grades in Guide, as does Captain America #100. I think both of these are still affordable keys compared with many other earlier Silver Age keys, as people can still buy these for $50-$200, unlike a Journey Into Mystery #83 or Tales of Suspense #39, which now seem to start at $1000.

The next Marvel key to keep your eye on for an explosion I think is Sgt. Fury #1, which seems fairly common in GD- to VG-, but finding it above VG or better seems quite difficult. As for DCs, Showcase #4 has been flat for several years now, so keep your eye on this one and Flash #105. Adventure Comics #210 (1st Krypto) and #247 (1st Legion) are both tough to track down, as is Action #252 (1st Supergirl), and all are quite liquid. Same goes for Brave and the Bold #28 (1st Justice League). Will one of these be the Showcase #22 for this next year? That book skyrocketed, then crashed!

Bronze Age: This period seems to be quite tricky from an investment standpoint, as books soar in price, then dip dramatically the following year. Incredible Hulk #181s in CGC 9.8 sell anywhere from $12,000 to $30,000! That's a huge range, and quite a gamble from an investment standpoint. Yes, it's a blue chip key, but that doesn't seem like a sure thing to me. Hero For Hire #1 needs to go up in Guide significantly in all grades. This is one of my more liquid keys, which sells above Guide in all grades. Amazing Spider-Man #123 seems undervalued as it ties for Luke Cage's 3rd appearance with Hero For Hire #3, and is his first crossover. Amazing Spider-Man #204, 205, 226 and 227 also seem undervalued as they are early appearances of the Black Cat (3rd, 4th, 5th & 6th appearances). Detective Comics 15¢ covers, especially Neal Adams ones, as well as 20¢ and 25¢ large logo covers seem quite cheap to me, and are pretty hard to find about VF in grade. Batman 15¢ and 20¢ covers also seem quite affordable. Detective Comics #425 is a cool Wrightson cover which should be highlighted in the Guide, and possibly a bit higher in Guide than other issues around it, although issue #426 with Batman holding a gun to his head is another desirable cover.

Independent titles from smaller publishers continue to be scarce and interesting. By now most people hopefully know about Cerebus and Zap Comics, but there are quite a few other titles, writers and artists to keep your eyes on that I feel are quite undervalued. The religious series titled The Crusaders by Jack T. Chick which on the cover says "Recommended reading for adults and teens" is spot on. This is some disturbing stuff regardless of what your religious beliefs may be from kidnapping, to sacrifices and maiming. I hardly ever see this series, let alone in grade. The Big Betrayal by Jack T. Chick (1981 Chick Publications, no cover price – possibly a promo?) currently isn't in the Guide. I'm guessing a $2-$25 spread would put it in line with his Crusaders series pricing, but with books like this and their limited sales history, who knows. Also, the Spire Christian books are also pretty interesting, and some command top dollar like Hansi, The Girl Who Loved the Swastika (I sold a raw mid grade copy for $40 at the first show I brought it to which is over double Guide).

House of Secrets #92 (1st Swamp Thing) is one to keep your eye on as sales have been flat for several years now, yet this iconic cover always draws people in at shows.

Copper/Modern Age: Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles are hot again. In May 2011, a CGC 9.8 TMNT #1 sold for $22,752, with several CGC 9.6s going for $5600-$7000. The latest CGC 9.2 sales are $3107 and $2900. Prices do NOT vary wildly on this book anymore. The book sells consistently at strong prices in all grades and needs a line listing in the Guide at NM- of around $2600. This has been long overdue, and it should also be listed in the Top 10 Copper Age Books at #2 behind Gobbledygook #1. I also think more, if not a majority of the series deserves line listings, as many of the issues have lower print runs than their Marvel/DC counterparts, and come on, how many movies have there been, as well as the TV show, action figures, etc...? They even got referenced in the new Muppet Movie!

Amazing Spider-Man #294, the Death of Kraven the Hunter at $14 in NM- seems like an absurd bargain to me, as historically, he was one of Spidey's most difficult villains, and always an interesting character. Amazing Spider-Man issues at the end of volume 1 can be fairly scarce due to the lower print runs. Issue #430 with a Carnage & Silver Surfer cover and #431 a Carnage cover on the Surfer's board seem to be the least common and selling for the most, regularly going for $15-$25. I suggest line listings for these two at $12 & $15 at the NM- range respectively. Issues 432, 434, 440 & 441 all regularly sell for $5-$10 each, and warrant line listings with $7 - $10 at the NM- line. A mini-series I feel is undervalued is the 4-part Vision and The Scarlet Witch series from '82-'83, where in the last issue, Wanda and Pietro find out that their father is Magneto, some pretty important information in the Marvel Universe without even a line listing at present.

Other keys to keep your eye on are The Crow #1 (1st print, Caliber Press 1989), with a current NM- listing of $80 seems quite low for a book that doesn't appear at cons or on eBay very often, which is not the case for most Silver Age keys that are twice as old. Cry For Dawn #1 at $120 in NM- also seems like a steal, also from 1989. Primer #2 (1st Grendel) has been soft for too long, and interest should return back to it soon. Pick up one or two of these if you can find them in grade now.

For the third year in a row I must continue to, at the minimum, mention The Walking Dead. I feel after two years of pushing for a line listing for the early issues of this series, now it's time to give those listings upward movement. CGC 9.8's seem to be going consistently around $600, with CGC 9.2's around $300 to $350. Guide needs to come up for the entire series, with NM- listings around: #1 $300, #2 $100, #3 & #4 $50, #5 & #6 $30, #7-#10 $15, and #11-#20 $10, with #61 around $12. Chew #1 in NM- should be listed around $150 (very conservative starting line listing), as this book seem much less common for the 1st printing, and seems non-existent at cons. Morning Glories seemed quite hot, with NM- copies selling around $50 raw, but many readers (including myself) found the story amazing to begin with, then just seemed to go nowhere, and readership/interest started to fall off. How this series could go nowhere is really beyond me, as possibilities seemed limitless. Another key that needs a line listing is Fables #1 at $35. This book has sold at this price or higher consistently now for several years, and doesn't appear much at cons or in local shops. Another indie title to keep your eye on is Fish Police from 1985 on Fishwrap Productions. I bought a collection that had the first 8 issues in it all in NM which I sold for a lot on eBay in less than 24 hours as a Buy-It-Now.

Thanks to everyone that's read my market report, visited the website, and said hello at one of the cons. I look forward to meeting more of you, and another year in the hobby!

Bruce Ellsworth & Aika P. Seki Bruce's Comics and Collectibles

Welcome to Bruce's Comics in Hawaii! Lots of things have changed since I left Australia. I found 5,000 Silver and Golden Age comics before I left the continent and they were all bagged and boarded so I threw them under my shipping container before I left. I attended San Diego this year and noticed that the comic book dealers were spread out all over the place and that mostly other items than comics were being sold. What started out as a comic book show has now become a major media event, an elaborate TV production. I noticed a lot of slabbed comic books going unsold while the "used" comics are being bought up steadily at a great pace. I found some great deals on slabbed merchandise which was in Very Fine (8.0) or worse condition way below Guide.

Most dealers didn't seem to care that they sold for below Guide, even though they had gone through the trouble of getting it slabbed. They considered their merchandise worthless because it wasn't in Very Fine/NM (9.0) or better.

Onto the big trouble with San Diego: they don't have any aisles for handicapped people. People in wheelchairs had a difficult time finding access at the event, more so than any previous years. Really, really enjoyed running into all my friends in the comic industry. I hadn't seen many of them for over 6 years since I had gone to Australia. They made me feel very welcome.

Now onto new things I've been noticing on the internet with graded Modern comics. There is a variant that is becoming more prevalent in sales lately. The variant I speak of is the UPC variant. Many good examples can be found in the '80s and '90s, say Incredible Hulk #340. I saw two identically graded copies in Near Mint (9.6) condition, one with the bar code UPC and the other with the Spider-Man head. The one with the Spider-Man head in the place of the UPC was selling for 20% more than the bar code version. Also, Amazing Spider-Man #300 with this variant consistently sells for 20-30% higher than its bar code counterparts. In fact most comics with this variant have been going for over 20% more than their bar code counterparts. Perhaps it is the visual presentation of a comic that is unsoiled by that symbol of commercialism, the bar code. Or maybe it is a much rarer variant that we are aware of just yet. What do you think? Feel free to shoot me an email with your opinion.

Golden Age Sales: For this year in Hawaii, sales include Batman #2, 3 & 4 in Good condition for $3,500 together, Batman #92 in CGC 7.0 for $450, and Superman #14 in CGC 5.0 for $1,100.

Atomic Age: Archie Annual #2 & #3 in Fine condition for $600 together, and Atomic Boy #1 in Very Good condition for $400. Most Pre-code horror is selling for Guide price, where some of the nastier covers are going for double to triple the Guide price. ECs sell at a very steady pace. I can't keep 'em in stock!

Silver Age: Amazing Spider-Man #14 & #17 in Fine condition for $600 together (in Australia), Amazing Spider-Man #96-98 (non-code issues) in CGC 9.2 for $200 each, and Amazing Spider-Man #121 & #122 in CGC 9.4 condition for $2,000 together. Sales of Daredevil are slow, but Avengers is going through the roof along with Captain America and Thor.

Bronze Age: Sales are soaring, mostly in high grades, especially last appearances like Star Wars, Tales of the Unexpected, any major DC War/combat title, any Marvel title, along with many other long series that ended in the decade. DC War comics in general from the '50s, '60s and '70s are much sought after and sell briskly at Guide price, with G.I. Combat grey-tone covers leading the pack in requests. Most comics listed in the guides are put in groupings, and some fantastic covers just get lumped in with them, when they really stand out in terms of sales and popularity. They really should be separated out by cover appeal.

On the rise is Australian horror magazines (which are reprints of pre-code DC, ACG, Star, Standard, Atlas, etc.) sell like hotcakes. Also on the rise is Heavy Metal, published again after so many years. I was astounded by the caliber of the artists' work displayed in the magazines. Sci-Fi and Fantasy readers give it a shot, you'll love it.

Finally, a previously unknown comic has come to serendipitous fruition (with a certain dastardly dictator being deposed of!)...Daffy Qaddafi, Malice in Wonderland will surely see a spike in sales in the coming years.

Good news is that comic prices are still on the rise. Happy hunting to all you collectors out there; maybe you could be the next one to find the lost Superman #1 in CGC 9.2(or better!) condition. And if you're in Maui, be sure to come see us.

Aloha!

Overall review of the NEW comic releases market 2011:

What a year for DC! In a nutshell, everything DC increased in sales and demand. What DC did reminds me of what Marvel and Bendis did with the Ultimate stories 10+ years back. Marvel ushered in Ultimate Spider-Man to introduce a new alternate universe. A re-hash of original story lines of the 1960s to present. When many retailers saw the initial order forms for Ultimate Spider-Man, many were unsure of what to think. Is this sort of a reprint? Will it last as long as the Marvel 2099 line(a big bomb)? Needless to say, many retailers kept orders low. But, as we can see now, it took off quite well. It branched into new titles and is still a force today.

How does DC compare to this? Well, it is a rehash. True. BUT one big difference. It is not meant to be an alternative universe! It is the real deal. Overall this big new 52 DC thing was huge! It created new fans, brought back some older fans, revitalized DC, and no one left! A huge hit!

As per Marvel, the Death of Spider-Man story with a new hero sold modestly well. But when new customers came in asking for the Death of Spider-Man storyline in 2011, I quipped, "do you mean the fake Spider-Man"? Then I'd have to explain it was a Spider-Man in the Ultimate universe. I know it was an opportunity to sell items and get people hooked, but those new to the comic fandom do not need to be deceived.

I do have some negative for DC this year though. Firstly, I disliked the way the variants were managed. Specifically the variant of the week. It forced retailers to bump up orders for regular titles that really didn't even belong in this universe. Static Shock was a big waste for me. Anything from the Milestone Universe was pointless. I can see bringing in Grifter or Stormwatch as decent sellers, but why not use this beginning for some of the under used characters from the '70s and '80s like Black Lightning or Red Tornado?

My other big negative this year for all companies is the digital format. Wow! What a store killer this is. Maybe it is inevitable, but do we really need to do this when many stores, especially in the US, are hurting from economic hardships? We are fine at least until my loyal customers start dying off in 10-30 years. Eventually, just like in the movie WALL-E, everything will be owned by one big corporation.

Now on to specifics.

DC in 2011: The new DC 52 is amazing! The "Bat" books are leading the way in popularity with almost everyone. Detective being the best and the regular Batman a close second. The storyline in Batman with the Court of Owls is fantastic. The reboot of Nightwing is a great book too. Dick is such an under-appreciated character in the DC universe considering he's almost as old as Batman and Superman. Great to see Babs as Batgirl again. The original is back better than ever. All the Batman titles, as well as the Lantern Titles, Flash, Animal Man, Swamp Thing and Men of War are big hits in our store. Voodoo and I, Vampire have been sleeper hits.

Having said all that, not all of the new DC 52 titles are good. Static Shock, JLA International, Stormwatch, Hawk and Dove, Mr. Terrific, Superboy and even Teen Titans have been sluggish in our store.

There has also been some confusion about continuity in the DC Universe after the whole relaunch. Why is it that no one in the Justice League knows each other? Yet Batman is still basically running "Batman Inc." with his son Damian as his sidekick? Why does Hal Jordan remember being a Green Lantern before, and that Sinestro was the evil leader of the Yellow Lanterns, but doesn't know Superman? The idea was to relaunch all the titles without worrying about the 50+ years of back story for characters, yet they seem to have selectively removed some back stories (Superman apparently never met Doomsday and never died), while leaving other back stories mostly intact (Dick Grayson is still Nightwing, Jason Todd still lives, Tim Drake is Red Robin and Damian is still Robin).

Flashpoint was definitely an interesting prelude to the New 52 line. It sold well, despite the slight confusion as to what exactly was happening. DC did a decent job of tying up most plot lines in all their titles and dove-tailing them into the new launch, although there were some mini-series that were released late in the schedule and finished a bit out of continuity.

The Mystery Men, American Vampire, Penguin Pain and Prejudice and The Huntress mini-series were all good. The 5 issues of Batman: The Dark Knight before the relaunch are great books with the hardcover collection out now. Vertigo's resurrected Sgt. Rock Between Hell and a Hard Place was nice to see, with the trade of that being impossible to find. Highly recommended.

Marvel in 2011: Captain America was relaunched successfully, as well as The Punisher. Alpha Flight made a big splash with another new mini-series. Too bad they can't manage an ongoing series! Daredevil has seen mixed reviews (many online like the relaunch, but not so many of our customers). Fear Itself was another mega crossover event that saw mixed results. Red Hulk seems to have been rescued from Jeph Loeb and has become a decent title. We saw the end of Greg Pak's run on The Incredible Hulk, with the title relaunched late in the year. Amazing Spider-Man even appears to have brought back some readers who were put off by the whole "Brand New Day" debacle.

The X-Titles are still going strong. With yet another "re-genesis" happening, it remains to be seen if they can continue. Wolverine continues to appear in every other title every other month (or so it seems). Uncanny X-Force really seems to have won over readers.

Surprising sleeper hits have been Venom, Secret Avengers, FF/Fantastic Four, Vengeance mini-series and even the new Ultimate Spider-Man. Other than Moon Knight, it doesn't seem that Bendis can write a bad comic. With the amount of titles he works on in any given month, we'll let him slide on that one.

Fear Itself was well received as a mini-series. The various tie-ins did not do so well and really just seemed to be tacked on to try and get more sales.

Marvel also has had some series missteps. Moon Knight, Ghost Rider and the new Defenders are forefront. Many fans are also not happy with the $3.99 price point on the majority of the titles, especially with DC mostly holding the line at $2.99.

Dark Horse in 2011: Dark Horse Presents - Welcome back. Anthologies are an unappreciated part of Comicdom. DHP has offered some interesting stories over the last year. Whenever customers ask for something new, other than the super-hero genre, I steer them towards books like this. Not every issue is great but there is enough variety to make it worthwhile.

Hellboy, The Fury, B.P.R.D., Witchfinder et al - Continues the creepiness of the Hellboy universe. I like the stories and art and most customers have given positive feedback. "It is nice to have something other than zombies". Nice to have some Corben art too.

The Strange Case of Mister Hyde - A nice take on the classic. Good art and story which ties into the Jack the Ripper mythos. It helps to know that Jekyll/Hyde is more than a man turning into a monster and the author works that angle which reminds me: see the BBC series Jekyll (I know this has nothing to do with comics but still, a good story)

Solomon Kane (Red Shadows) - I don't know why but every time I see this art I think of the movie Hellsinger. The style is much the same so I think the set designer must have read this series. It is very much evocative of the Robert E. Howard stories. Liked the art and story but look at the source material so it was hard to go wrong.

The Strain - Great story. A vampire/detective story which starts off with a plane of dead passengers and crew. So this time it is a plane that shows up on the tarmac instead of a ship on the coast. It still works. Waiting to see how it turns out.

Creepy - Did I mention that I still like anthologies? Especially horror?

Criminal Macabre/The Goon - Only a one shot but worth the read especially if you like Cal and The Goon humour.

Avatar in 2011: Avatar has established itself as the studio for horror with titles like Crossed, Caligula and Night of the Living Dead. Caligula pushing the envelope is an understatement. Great interpretation of the Caligula story plus a talking horse and no it's not Mister Ed. This is one that is definitely for adults and not for the squeamish. Crossed: Psychopath has a great story and art but this one is not for the squeamish. It touches on very sensitive subjects: rape torture etc. Admittance for over 18 only.

BOOM! Studios: They continue to be solid, despite the Stan Lee titles. Irredeemable and Incorruptible lead the way. Malignant Man initially it seems to be about a terminally ill patient then spins off in to superhero sci-fi. I liked the beginning but it seemed to derail near the end. Worth a quick look. Hellraiser was a so/so story like but I do like the variant covers. The Rinse is definitely one to add to your list of must reads. Good story and art.

Dynamite Entertainment: They continue to grow. Jennifer Blood was huge and The Boys remains strong. Many of their other licensed titles are doing well.

IDW Publishing: Crawl to Me is as good as Hangers. If you like horror get this.

Locke & Key Clockworks - There are really no comments for this except that if you haven't read the series, get the back issues/trades and do so. Well crafted story and art that complements it. As the ad said, "Only a few issues left".

Doctor Who: A Fairy Tale Life - Most customers are not really impressed by this series. The art, to quote a customer, seemed rather sketchy and over simplified as if the title was all that was required to sell the book.

Suicide Girls - Once again secret organization and tough minded girls eager to battle them. Most interested customers asked about the variant cover NOT the series. Go to the web site and you'll know what they were looking for.

The Rocketeer - Most customers who saw this take on the Rocketeer liked it. It provided simple stories with good art and dialogue.

The Cape - Get it. It is one of the best stories in the "What would you really do if you got super powers?" genre.

Wormwood: Bingo Night in Valballa - It is always difficult to describe the Wormwood stories. Suffice to say more of the same BUT in this case, it's all good.

That Hellbound Train - For those who are familiar/like Robert Bloch's stories, this doesn't disappoint. Nice art and it is true to the original.

Image Comics: The Big Lie - If you really want to feed your paranoia, read this.

Blue Estate - Good crime story which pulls several disparate type into a the Big Job. This time to steal from a Hollywood action star. Customers who like the crime stories definitely liked this story line and the art.

Breed III Book of Revelations - A fitting continuance of the Breed story line. Very good art and story.

Green Wake - A story of people in transition from this life to ?. Reminiscent of Fallen Angel and Bete Noir which is not a bad thing. The art is not to all tastes but definitely suits the material. It is worth the time investment to read at least the opening story line

Last Mortal - An unusual story of attempted murder and suicide. Well worth the effort to track down and read.

Moriarty - Enjoyable addition to the Moriarty storyline.

Near Death - Killer seeks redemption after nearly dying. So far so good. I'll give it another couple of issues before making up my mind or recommending it.

Pigs - A definite yes. Nicely done story about what happens to the sleeper agents and what happens when they awake.

Undying Love - Hey this beats Twilight but again anything could. Once again a story of how the path of love can be rough. He's mortal; she's a vampire. Great art and story. It washes the bad taste of those shiny vampires away. Get it.

The Vault - Nicely done story with the moral that things that are buried should stay buried. Good read, Severed - The BEST horror story of the last few years. Great story, great art. Everyone who picked this up was sorry that it wasn't weekly. If any customer likes horror, recommend this.

68 - A very interesting take on the zombie story. Art is very good. One of the few times I looked for the variant covers because I remembered what they were based on. Unfortunately, none of this generation got the references: "What Vietnam War?"

Memoir - Black and white art only add to thie story. Totally enjoyable but I'm not certain exactly where it was going but it gradually clicked.

Screamland - Loved it and customers who are familiar with the Hammer Horror series felt the same. Mixture of humour and pathos with the has been's of the horror movie world. And an interesting commentary on how the classic horror can't compete against the modern.

The Mission - Man comes up and commands you to kill someone or there will be disastrous consequences. Ok , that had me from the start. I'm just waiting to see where it goes.

Again good story and art.

The Red Wing - Really liked the art and the story. Worth taking a look at

Who is Jake Ellis - At first it appears to be a guy talking to another agent then it gradually the truth emerges. Good story, good art. Feedback was positive.

Witch Doctor - Not overly impressed. Seemed to be trying too hard. The humour seemed to be laboured but maybe that is just how it struck me. No feedback from customers on this one.

Radical: Radical remained dedicated to quality over quantity, releasing few titles but doing well with each.

Abattoir - Great, great story and art; very well done. I recommend this to any customer that is interested in horror but not necessarily in buckets of blood.

Damaged - Brutal story of crossing the line and the men on either side of it. Well done and good value.

Top Cow: Echoes - A terrifying story of a man on the edge of a complete breakdown but also more than that. I recommend this to anyone who likes well written psychological pieces.

Zenescope Entertainment: The Dream Eater Saga - Great story which pulls in most of the Grimm Fairy Tale characters. Worth the read.

VALIANT Returns!!!: Watch out! Original company of the early 1990s, headed by the creative genius of comic prodigy Jim Shooter and BW Smith. This fantastic collaboration issued in one of the few shining points of the 1990s (the biggest would be Death of Sup and Bane vs Bat)! It lasted quite the while bringing fresh stories and some innovation. It did crash and burn after a few years with BW Smith and Shooter parting ways. It resurfaced somewhat under Acclaim, then died again. Now it has a new fresh start albeit without the superb creative forces that spawned it. So, 20 years later, X-O Manowar is about to debut. How well will it do? Most diehard fans most likely will buy the #1. Writing is very key as these fans expect it. This is not a company like Image of the 1990s where fancy variants and redundant #1s were typical and had mostly a teen demographic. These Valiant fans are mature Vertigo-esque readers, and expect great stories. Try #1 and see for yourself!

2011 Movies: It was another summer filled with superhero movies. We saw Green Lantern, Captain America, Thor and the First Class of X-Men. All the movies were good if you're a comic book fan but were not appreciated by movie critics. Thor and Captain America: The First Avenger were probably the best. Marvel has been fairly consistent with solid stories and decent acting for the majority of their films. I think that the Thor movie was the most well done as far as story-line and CGI are concerned.

Green Lantern was not a bad movie, despite what the critics thought. It relied a little too heavily on CGI effects, but it is difficult to create such a movie without them. The breadth of the alien Corps is staggering. What was really disappointing was the decision to cut the early back story of Hal Jordan as a child from the Theatrical release. Watching it on the extended Blu-ray really added to the story and for the extra 10 minutes, it should have been included in the theatrical release.

Conan was another movie trashed by the critics, but was an alright movie. Better than expected. Let's face it, trying to follow up Arnold in the Dino De Laurentis original is damned difficult to do.

Comic book movies don't seem to be slowing down any time soon. In 2012 we have Dark Knight Rising, the reboot of Spider-Man, Ghost Rider: Spirit of Vengeance, The Avengers, G.I. Joe: Retaliation and a re-make of Judge Dredd starring Karl Urban.

Trades for 2011/2012: Trade Paperbacks by all companies remain strong sellers for us. Many customers just want to read a story and don't want to spend time waiting for individual issues to ship. Some miss the initial issues and simply catch up on the story with the TPB. In today's society of Instant Gratification, these are a great way to satisfy that requirement.

Walking Dead TV/Trades: The Walking Dead trades sell like crazy and the show has only added interest in the comics for people. People who watch the show are coming to buy the books and trades now, which is awesome. We are continually sold out of Volume One of the trade. I've seen people come in and buy two trades, take them home and read them and then come back 3 hours later and buy the next two trades! TWD has always sold well enough. With success of the show new interest in the comics and trades is happening. It will only become more and more popular. Some fans have complained about the disconnect in the story line of the TV show and that of the comics, but what works in a comic does not necessarily translate well to the screen.

Expect Batman: Knightfall trades to start selling once fans of the movie get wind of Bane's existence from 20 years ago. Don't expect the same lame character from that 1997 movie disaster Batman and Robin. This promises to be great.

Batman: Earth One is coming out. Superman: Earth One was a great success, selling out in our store.

DMZ has ended its successful run and the trades will likely continue to be strong sellers for the foreseeable future. We're hoping to see more collections of the old EC titles as well, as they do very well for us.

Marvel's various Omnibus collections do well as do DC's Absolute titles. They are affordable collections that allow readers to catch up on character histories without having to track down high priced individual issues.

Overall review of the Vintage comic market for 2011:

We have had fantastic sales overall. Marvel (almost anything) moves and for DC mostly Batman and Green Lantern! I have sold about four runs of The Avengers in the past 3 months alone! As usual, Timely and Golden Age DCs and Atomic Age Horrors all fly. The only genre that sold little in 2011 was War books, except for DC (which ROCKS!).

Normally I spend nearly a page of this report on sales, but to be honest, it really is about the same as 2010 sales. Timely, DC, Marvel will always sell. Sometimes things change, such as the hotness of the AVENGERS. But that is a moment in time and has been mentioned. I wish to talk about future thoughts in the marketplace this time. To help vintage investors to look ahead instead of telling them what they missed. Far more productive. Firstly, as mentioned earlier, the AVENGERS are hot. As is anything related like Captain America, Iron Man, Thor and so on.

Early issues have been going over Guide since the beginning of 2010 till when you read this in summer 2012.

Avengers #4 (first Silver Age Captain America), Tales of Suspense #39 (first Iron Man), Journey Into Mystery #83 (first Thor), and Avengers #1 (first Avengers) are probably the hottest keys out there right now!!! They will cost premiums for high grades, and little deals will be found. Now is that good investing? Well yes, in the long long run. But if I could suggest something to all you investors, why not look to the JLA? Brave and the Bold #28 (first JLA) is not only 3 years older (1960), but more valuable, important and the scarcer key issue. It is also a few years away from a movie. Now a good movie, and the hype that goes with it, will skyrocket this issue. And not just the first appearance, but Brave and the Bold #29+30, JLA #1 and the whole run. Compare, using your trusty Overstreet Guide, The Avengers to the JLA. Look not just at the huge issues, look at the typical minor keys that are very affordable. When I look, I see a TON of minor keys in JLA I'd prefer way over The Avengers. Examples you ask? JLA #s

5,9,12,21!!,22!!,34,37,38,46,47,55!!!,56!!,64,73!!, and so much more all the way to final issue of #261! So many Crisis issues too! Now The Avengers has some nice keys, but nothing in quantity or importance compared to JLA! Avenger #s 6-11,16,19!!,48,57,58,71,83, and maybe some others. Overall the cost of a JLA run is more, and harder to come by, but the sheer quantity of keys, major and minor not to mention a potential big movie in the making, make JLA worthy of any investor.

Conclusion: Sales in the vintage market are amazing. What other marketplace has such a great way to invest and reap rewards? It does not take decades like stocks, bonds, funds, stamps, coins, and other collectibles. The only risk really is how you store your investments. Personally, I like using the following: BCE copper pages (these go on your inner covers front and back!), then using a mylite or arklite 1mil (mylar D acid free bag), use a real acid-free backboard (we use

© Robert Kirkman

The success of the TV show has The Walking Dead trades flying off the shelves. (Volume #1 shown)

BCE version 24mil only), then I like to use an Ultra-Pro comic Top Loader. This combination will run around $3-$4 a comic. It protects within and structurally as well. Far superior to CGC slabs (great for resale and restoration checks but hardly good for long term, hence make sure you resubmit ALL your CGC slabs on a regular basis, like every 3-5 years?). You can get by without the top loader, but make sure you keep your comics in a box upright and take care.

But really, for a big book, even a $100 book, what's $3 or $4? Protect your investment! Do it RIGHT! BTW, BCE is Bill Cole Enterprises, and they specialize in archival protective products. There are others, but we prefer them. Overall we saw new fans in the marketplace, and there is room to grow. Digital comics are good for the big companies, but not much for anyone else.

Sales in new DC are fabulous! Marvel still sells quite well. Dynamite keeps putting out nice new Americana related items like Lone Ranger. Image is excellent for the true Indies like Walking Dead, as is Avatar, BOOM!, and IDW. Dark Horse and Zenescope are slipping huge. And Radical, great a couple years back, have disappeared, and that's a shame. You can never go wrong buying anything that is DC/Vertigo. And for long run great collections of DC or Marvel, buy the Absolute or Omnibus editions. They usually cost $99, but you are getting 40+ issues in each volume, and that's about 3 times a Marvel Masterworks or DC Archives which costs around $50 each. Also, we need a Quarterly price guide from someone that also deals with issues hot on the marketplace. Restoration, CGC to do or not, spotlights on artists or companies, list of back issues like Neal Adams everything and so on. Comic Book Marketplace, defunct now, but redone would be great if kept topical to the NOW! Restoration must be addressed sometime soon by the big players like Overstreet, CGC, Heritage, ComicLink. A guide or rating system should be put in place. There is such a huge difference in so many things/factors, it cannot just use the simple tags CGC uses. Major or Minor? Professional or Amateur? Not enough. If grading can go decimal 0.5-10.0, why not restoration?

Happy reading, because that is what comics are all about!

Dan Fogel Hippy Comix, Inc.

Writing my Annual Market Report this year on my birthday leads me to wax nostalgic, although current events in the Comics Biz are exciting enough to feel these could be someone's "Good Old Days"! The $2,000,000 barrier was broken last week (as of this writing) for actor Nic Cage's slabbed 9.0 Action Comics #1, and many other records (which I'll leave Unca Bob to cover as always) have fallen since three books cleared a million bucks in 2010! Perhaps ironically, my theme this year is intrinsic, not financial, riches, "Recovering the Love" of comic books that originally Seduced us Innocents into this colorful art form, marketplace, and community. "Psst! Wanna buy a funnybook, keed?"

This past journey around the sun has not only seen my retail volume pick up at conventions and my wholesaling to other dealers increase, but I've officially begun my second comic book collection! I'm now once more on both sides of the vending trenches, providing me an increased (one can hope!) perspective on the marketplace. Collection #1 spanned my first newsstand titles (cover dates November-December 1968) through decades of weekly title addiction and multiple distributor accounts, culminating in 2005.

Since then, I've peeked into the new book market occasionally, but jumping off the current continuity merry-go-round has freed me to revisit my personal "Golden Age", the 1970s!

What's the main difference collecting back issues today? Now, as never before: High Grade Rules! For the truly pristine books -say the top 1% ;) - it's a Seller's Market. The vast majority, say 99%, of mostly mid to low grade books, are ruled by a growing Buyer's Market. Steep discounts off Guide are required and expected to move most titles. There are many, many more Silver & Bronze Age books out there than previously available or thought to exist. The exception to the rule is that True Keys in any shape sell quickly when priced reasonably, and sometimes for amounts formerly thought "unreasonable". The upshot is that the past 40-45 years of mainstream back issues are available for the same cover prices of ever-more expensive new titles! I don't begrudge modern fans their New 52s and other reboots, but this time I'm sticking to what I love: Pre-Crisis DC, Marvel through the Shooterverse, and a smattering of Dennis the Menace, Richie Rich, Ducks, and Charltons!

The end of 2012 will also see the new, expanded edition of Fogel's Underground Price Guide! As a true Overstreet fanboy, I consider my humble efforts a corollary to the "bible" you hold in your hands, and am honored to follow in the footsteps of Bob Overstreet, Steve Geppi, J.C. Vaughn, and Mark Huesman, bringing knowledge, enthusiasm, and, yes, LOVE of our shared four-color (and black and white) universes! Thanks Again to those worthy gentlemen and to all you all reading this!

The tumult of the U.S. and world economies has not destroyed our hobby. Collectible automobiles (the right ones), and many other collectible fields have attracted substantial sums of money. The volatility and uncertainty of the U.S. Stock Market, and the collapse of the housing market, have driven money into our hobby as a safer place to park it. Money market and interest rates generally are so low, the savvy investor can garner greater returns buying and holding high grade, desirable comics. In the hobby for the mid-grade or lower run-of-the-mill books, the market has softened somewhat. High grade, desirable Gold, Silver, and Bronze keys still attract buyers, not only in the hobby, but in the greater market as a whole.

Last year's stunning million dollar books, Detective

Comics #27 and Action Comics #1, illustrate the level to which value has risen in the hobby. Nice icon covers, coveted titles, and important appearances fare better than the ordinary material around them, as it has always been. As the hobby recognizes how difficult some books are to find in grade, the money will pursue them. It's hard to read how the "digital" comic market will help or hurt our hobby. The newer and younger readers whose first brush with comics is in digital form will remember looking at a computer screen to fondly remember their youth and favorite characters. To collectors in my generation, the idea of reading a comic book is exactly that... a book. The tactile sensation of turning pages and smelling newsprint (or ink) is a big part of the experience. Yet, if the newer readers never knew what that was, they have no frame of reference to "miss" it. Instead of taking a stack of books over to a buddy's house to share and read, today's comic-phile will meet their buddies either online, or go to Starbucks with their laptops to share. I think this is sad. It's just not the same. I know... I'm a dinosaur.

My targets of opportunity collecting-wise this year were pretty good! My colleagues will ask what I'm after... and I have reached the point now that I truthfully say, "I'll know it when I see it!" I picked up a House of Mystery #143 in 8.0+ for $110, and a Tales of the Unexpected #66, 8.5+ for $155 in one buy. I never really pursued Tales of the Unexpected before, preferring Adam Strange to Space Ranger. But that cover to #66 was advertised a lot "in house" at DC at the time, and what a cool cover it was (maybe the best for him!).

A collection of Golden Age books presented themselves, with lots of "good-girl" material. I snapped up Wings #90 in VF+ for $144, Wings #91 in VF for $144, both Bob Lubbers covers. Jo-Jo #8 in 8.0 for $275 (the "Mountain of Skulls" cover), Jo-Jo #11 in 8.0 for $385 and Zoot #11 in VF- for $300 (the breaking branch bondage cover in the cobra pit by "bone-in-the-nose" natives!) Really nice stuff!

Best of luck this coming year finding great books.

Douglas Gillock ComicLink

ComicLink marked its 15th year online in 2011 and it was another year of record results and expansion in the hobby. Despite the general economic uncertainty in the larger financial markets in the U.S. and abroad, the vintage comic book market continues to shock and surprise with its vigor and vitality. Long time collectors continue to take great pleasure and pride in acquiring new additions to their collections, and new buyers are constantly entering the hobby looking for an investment that brings a satisfaction of ownership despite the specifics of the return. At the same time, several high profile sales have resulted in more collections coming to light, and the release of several long-held hordes has meant that a tremendous amount of high quality material was made available in a relatively short amount of time.

With 4 Featured Auctions, 7 Focused Auctions, and ComicLink's Comic Book Exchange running 24/7, there were far too many impressive and record sales in 2011 to list any more than just a small fraction. There were some notable standouts, however, that are worth pointing out as evidence of certain market trends. Superman is truly the greatest of all superheroes and the market has clearly decided that his earliest appearances are among the most coveted collectibles in the world. A CGC 6.5 example of Action Comics #1, one of only 2 at this grade level, traded hands for $625,000 and a solid CGC 4.5 example of the premiere issue of his own run, Superman #1 found a new home at $126,111 – both are record prices in the conditions sold. Other early Action Comics sales included a #5 CGC 8.5 for $52,500, #10 CGC 3.0 for $20,351, and #54 CGC 8.5 for $4459. Sales on Golden Age Batman appearances were not far behind with strong interest in examples across all grade ranges for early and important appearances in Batman and Detective Comics. Detective Comics #31 CGC 3.0 sold for $20,250, while a stunning CGC 9.4 example of issue #142 (second Riddler appearance) traded hands for $21,250. Meanwhile a very sharp example of Batman #47 featuring Batman's origin story graded at 8.0 and brought a record $10,099.

Interest also rose sharply on Golden Age appearances of Captain America with the build up to and release of the feature film. A Captain America Comics #32 in CGC 9.4 went for $11,750 while a 7.0 example of issue #46 which features a distinctive WWII-themed Concentration Camp cover sold for $8101. This interest carried over to other Golden Age Timelys with sales like Marvel Mystery Comics #9 CGC 5.5 for $19,801 and All Winners #7 CGC 6.5 for $3,736 also setting records.

Scarcity, either in grade or in general also drove the Golden Age market in 2011, along with the appeal of classic cover art. Just a few examples included Weird Science Fantasy #29 CGC 9.4 for $8315 (classic Frank Frazetta cover), Archie Comics #50 CGC 6.5 at $1100 (classic Betty cover), Terrific Comics #5 CGC 1.8 for $5033 (scarce with a classic Schomburg bondage cover), Blue Beetle #54 CGC 6.0 at $2700 (lingerie "Good Girl Art" cover), and New Adventure Comics #26 CGC 1.0 for $7956 (considered one of the toughest issues in any condition from this run).

Key Silver Age issues featuring the first appearances of major heroes and villains make up what is perhaps the most dynamic end of the vintage comic book market. Just as in the Golden Age, interest in Captain America issues from the Sales of Golden Age Timelys like Marvel Mystery Comics #9 are setting records.

1960s rose sharply this year. Leading the way was a record-setting $91,501 sale of a CGC 9.6 example of Avengers #4, the hero's first appearance in the Silver Age. With an Avengers movie on the way, there was also interest in early issues from the "World's Greatest Heroes" run. A CGC 9.4 example of Avengers #1 found a new home for $100,000, a substantial record in grade while a CGC 8.5 went for $15,259. Other heroes that benefited from movie releases in 2011 were Thor, with Journey Into Mystery #83 (his first appearance) in CGC 9.0 selling for $52,102, and Green Lantern, with a CGC 8.0 Green Lantern #1 trading hands for $5799. Additionally, with a reboot of the Amazing Spider-Man film franchise right around the corner, the Web-Slinger seems poised for yet another upswing in the market. Examples of notable Spider-Man sales in 2011 included, but of course were not nearly limited to, Amazing Spider-Man #7 CGC 9.4 for $7757, #13 CGC 9.6 at $45,000, and #25 CGC 9.8 for $26,500. These Hollywood films are here to stay and the characters featured in them are getting nearly unprecedented "mainstream" exposure. This will likely continue to drive the market for years to come. A few other examples of notable record-busting Silver Age sales included Flash #105 CGC 9.2 for $36,888, and Fantastic Four #1 CGC 8.5 for $83,022. Iron Man comic books also continued to blast through the roof with his first appearance in Tales of Suspense #39 selling for $150,000 in CGC 9.4 and the debut of the title bearing his name, Iron Man #1, selling for $69,600 in CGC 9.9.

Availability has affected much of the Bronze Age market, with large increases in the number certified in the highest grades for many issues adjusting market expectations. That said, key issues and books from significant runs that have proven to be very tough to find in the highest grades remain extremely desirable. A great example of this is the $150,000 sale of the single highest certified CGC 9.9 MINT of the first full appearance of Wolverine in Incredible Hulk #181. This was the very first comic from the 1970s to ever sell for six-figures and an impressive demonstration of just how important this comic is to collectors of that era. Examples of other Bronze Age record breakers included X-Men #81 CGC 9.8 Double Cover for $3333, Giant-Size Daredevil #1 CGC 9.8 for $1459, and House of Secrets #92 CGC 9.8 (first Swamp Thing) for $16,350.

If I had to place a distinct moniker on 2011 for the vintage comic book market as a whole it would be "The Year of the Educated Buyer". The Web, and specifically ComicLink, has served as a virtual marketplace for comics books practically since its very inception and in the years since, the amount of accumulated information seems to have increased annually at an exponential rate. At this point, it would seem that most established collectors are deeply immersed in the flow of data permeating the hobby and are keeping up with what is happening on the ComicLink Exchange and within ComicLink auction venues on a weekly and at times even a daily basis. It is becoming increasingly important to anyone deciding to make an investment in vintage comics or beginning the process of selling their treasured collection, to have accurate information. I advise those that cannot keep up with it all, and are ready to sell, or make a significant investment decision, to be in touch with me, or other contacts at ComicLink, for information and guidance.

The sea of information, data, and opinion can be very difficult to navigate at times even for the most savvy buyer or seller, however, and it can be especially so for collectors new to the market and those just starting to actively sell. Understanding why certain titles, issue numbers, eras, and genres sell for more than others can be difficult enough to understand for the uninitiated. For decades, great resources like the Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide have gone a long way in levelling the playing field, but in the current market, buyers and sellers often need to make sense of questions like why one example of a comic book in a certified grade, might sell for 20% more or less than another one in the same grade. Some of this might have to do with the "upside" or "downside" potential of a particular selling environment. Other cases might be the results of "mainstream" influences from outside the core of the hobby, such as the bump many runs and specific issues have seen over the past few years from major movie releases such as Iron Man, Captain America, Green Lantern, and the upcoming Avengers film. It can even be as simple as realizing that even with certification, comic book grading retains an element of subjectivity, and that not every book in a given CGC grade is considered equal by every buyer.

Whatever the reasons, this variability underscores the importance of being well-informed and the quickest route to this is finding advocacy. The online and print resources are great, but gathering and making sense of the information can not only be time-consuming, but it can also require expert analysis based on years of experience in the hobby. I can't count the number of times where a seller has come to us looking to list a book on ComicLink for substantially less money than I knew I could get for it in short order; or where even the most aggressive market estimate on a comic was greatly exceeded at auction. Under different circumstances, such as going it alone online without ComicLink's reach, reputation, and guidance, the seller's net return might have been much less. As the comic book hobby continues to mature, the market becomes more established, and the record results escalate year after year, the benefit of expert council for buyers and sellers will grow right along with them.

Tom Gordon III Collector

The comic book market continues to be a robust market across the board with sales in the back issue marketplace. Record sales are continuing for truly rare and key items. We are very fortunate to see this as some other fields in collecting are continuing to see "graying" with age and are not seeing the infusion of new collectors/investors. Some areas once strong with collectors are seeing less interest than previously. Unless there are dramatic changes in these collecting fields, they will continue to stagnate without new blood.

For years we have categorized key comics by era including Golden Age, Silver, and Bronze. With the past few years of record sales in six-figure and seven-figure territory. I think it's easy to see that there is a list of these books which cross the boundaries of comic eras. The list includes in order Action Comics #1, Detective Comics #27, Superman #1, Batman #1, Action Comics #7, Amazing Fantasy #15, Fantastic Four #1, Amazing Spider-Man #1, Showcase #4, X-Men #1, Avengers #1, and several others. I think now would be the ideal time to create a new Top Comic list for these books.

The words "Avengers Assemble" are without a doubt on the forefront of comic fans minds as May 4, 2012 and the Avengers movie is released. This movie will definitely take its place as one of the all-time greatest films in the comic book genre. The Dark Knight Rises is also probably a close second or tied evenly on fans' minds depending on the day and which film has released the latest trailer or movie poster. Both films will no doubt break box office records, but Marvel may honestly edge out DC a bit as they have truly set up the Avengers as the ultimate superhero team movie. Marvel carefully and strategically built the film from the individual superhero films.

Regardless, it will be another banner year for comic book movies and we can only appreciate that the general public will take interest in comics.

CGC continues to be a major force in the marketplace whether it's a 9.6 Mile Hi e g e c e price for a 9.9 Modern Age book. The certified market has truly changed the way comics are bought and sold and also assisted in bringing in buyers at levels that seemed impossible not too many years ago. Comic books are getting to be on par with certified coins, currency, and sports cards.

When it comes to comics, rarity is continuing to be key. In the 1990s the idea of breaking a million dollar auction total was something of a dream and today it's a reality on a consistent basis. There are numerous auctions which are easily exceeding these amounts. Also, as we all know comic books in the past few years have broken the ceiling of million dollar sales and appear to have no slowdown in sight! We should continue to see a banner year in 2012.

Any discussion of the 2011 comic book marketplace has to begin with the event of the year: The DC New 52. Our brick and mortar store, Comics and Friends, experienced explosive growth in both subscribers and the raw number of comics sold from the start of the Flashpoint limited series right through the second issues of the New 52 titles with things stabilizing somewhat by the third issues. The excitement and energy that this retooling of the DCU has brought to the hobby cannot be understated. We ordered multiple times the normal copies we would get for DC titles and have nearly sold through by the third month – in many cases we only have second or third printings of the 1st issues, and in fact, just sold our last first print Action #1 the week after Thanksgiving.

Many of our new subscribers e e e s w e comics in the '90s but were attracted back by media reports of the event. Others are simply long-time readers who were tired of not being able to get copies of comics they wanted at their regular store and have decided to give us a try. When we heard the responses from our customers to the new books, we ordered even more of the second issues and were not disappointed. For the main Batman, Superman, and Flash titles, we sold even more #2s than we did #1s – and continued to add more subscribers.

What else has the New 52 done? Well, it generated a lot of interest in the last year's worth of issues of the titles that they were replacing. We had to reorder runs of Batman and Robin, Flash, Superman, etc. due to new readers asking to see what happened prior to the New titles. It has also sparked an interest in vintage DC comics as well. We now have collectors who check in weekly to see what new "old" DC comics we've gotten in since their last visit. And, we should also note that demand for first printings of the New 52 titles have pushed prices on the regular issues up to the $10 range and fans do not seem to be complaining at all. Not all of the titles have been successful of course, but the excitement it has generated is very welcome. Thanks DC!

New Comics and Products: After the DC New 52, the most consistent seller for the year has to be The Walking Dead. New subscribers add this title every month, and the trade paperbacks just keep on selling. We try to keep at least three copies of every Walking Dead softcover trade on the shelf at all times and have trouble doing it. Once someone starts with Volume 1, we see them again and again until they have read them all. Back issues are gone as soon as we put them on the shelf. The exception to this is the Walking Dead Weekly which is not a good seller at all for us. No other Image title comes close to this one but Spawn, Hack/Slash, and Haunt do sell as well as most Marvel and DC Titles. A pleasant surprise this summer was the Carbon Grey miniseries. We had a good feeling about this one, and ordered plenty of the first issue. It sold out so quickly that we had to get copies from dealers at shows in order to have some for the shelves. At this time the Carbon Grey Origins two issue run is beginning and we are hearing the same raves from the fans that we heard about the first one.

Another pleasant trend for us is the reader/fan response to the Dynamite titles. Jennifer Blood sells at around the level that Deadpool sells for us – amazing! I guess there has been untapped demand for a soccer-mom contract assassin that we weren't aware of. Of course the Garth Ennis scripts and those sexy covers don't hurt either. Ninjettes! Other solid Dynamite titles are: Warlord of Mars, Deja Thoris, Red Sonja, The Boys, and Stargate. Kirby Genesis has tailed off for us, likewise Vampirella and Green Hornet.

Some things never change and Good-Girl art has always been a fan favorite. The Golden Age had Matt Baker and Bill Ward. Current readers have the Zenescope Grimm Fairy Tales titles and Tarot Witch of the Black Rose. Both are solid sellers with loyal readers – and the first issue of the new Big Dog title Oz The Wicked West has outsold both of those. Likewise, there has always been demand for Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles and the new IDW version with Eastman on board has been a hit. These Turtles are not for kids and that's what people like about them. Most of the other IDW movie/TV tie-ins are modest sellers with Godzilla doing slightly better.

Marvel's perennial top dogs continue to be Deadpool and Wolverine. The Astonishing titles are doing well and the new Ultimates line with the new Spider-Man are also doing very well. The Ultimate Spidey is growing on readers who seemed at first hesitant to check him out and fans seem impressed with Ultimate Hawkeye as well. Mark Waid was a welcome addition to Daredevil which had dwindling sales for a while but is now regaining readers who are enjoying the current storyline. Fear Itself was fun, readers liked it for the most part, but they are beginning to feel that Marvel is taking the bucket to the well once too often. There are alot of titles/crossovers/ one shots for Fear Itself and many customers are finding it hard to justify the expense of purchasing them all. Conversely, the Spider-Island titles seemed just about right. A good storyline to draw readers in and then a few crossovers and specials to round things out.

Kids comics are on the move. The last Sonic the Hedgehog story arc was a monster with issues selling out in the first week. The new Mega Man series is also a huge hit – they sell so fast it's hard to determine how many to order! Archie titles continue to sell decently with the Life With Archie Magazine and the Double Digest series leading the way. Archies have generally slowed since the Archie Gets Married issues a few years back so we hope big things are in store for the new Archie/Kiss crossover.

Scooby-Doo has solid readership along with the DC Cartoon Network related comics. Sales on the current Disney books have slowed somewhat. Richie Rich has done well – especially since there hadn't been a new title for so long. Bongo is going great guns – all of the Simpsons related titles fly off the shelves. And back issues for all of these are quick to go – we have three spin racks set up in the store all filled with back-issue kids books. We hear that tell-tale squeak and we know someone is looking for an elusive back issue! The biggest seller, bar none, in the kids' genre this year has been Mad Magazine. The new TV cartoon show has breathed new life into the venerable institution. It's not the Mad that those over 40 remember, but the new readers adore it just as much as the old readers did theirs.

Bronze/Copper Age: Bronze Age remains the biggest seller of all the time periods by volume. We sell more comics from 1969 to 1984 than we do from any other category. This is surely due to the fact that there are a lot of these available, the prices are relatively low (and have been pretty stable in common grade), and there are just tons and tons of great stories with great art from this period. Most asked for are Neal Adams issues – collectors all want his Green Lantern and X-Men issues, while Deadman and the DC cover issues are a bit slower, they still sell steadily. Adams' short run on The Avengers during the Kree-Skrull war continues to be in demand, ditto those great Ra's Al Ghul and Joker Batmans! After that it's anybody's game. In this arena it all sells:

Movie/TV, Western, War, Cartoon Characters, Horror, and Super-Hero – they all have fans looking to fill holes. Mid-grade issues actually sell the quickest, with real low-grade issues only moving at bargain prices. True high-grade issues from this period are in demand but to a smaller segment of collectors. These individuals are dogged in their pursuit of high-grade gems and will spend money commensurate with condition and scarcity.

We are asking, and getting, up to 20 times top Guide for raw (unslabbed) copies of mainstay titles like Flash, Amazing Spider-Man, and Scooby-Doo. Also of note is the increased demand, and decreased supply, of square bound giant-size issues from the Bronze Age. Collectors are looking for solid copies of DC 100 page giants along with the Marvel Giant-Size series and are frustrated to find them not available. Surprisingly, Treasury Editions have taken off again. The Superman Vs. Muhammad Ali reprint from last year has seemingly ignited a dormant demand for these over-sized oddities. Because these are so large and do not fit into normal comic boxes, high grade copies of these are very hard to find – and that's what collectors want! We sell these steadily at all the conventions we bring them to. Marvel black and white magazines are on the move again along with Atlas/Seaboard titles – we are always asked for them and we buy them whenever they are offered to us.

The big ticket sellers everyone knows: Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles #1, Hulk #181, Tomb of Dracula #10, Marvel Spotlight #5, Amazing Spider-Man #121, #122, and #129, Marvel Preview #2, X-Men #94, Giant-Size X-Men #1, Batman #232, Green Lantern #76, Star Wars #1 variant, House of Secrets #92, and Cerebus #1 (anyone seen one? We counted ourselves lucky to get a collection in recently that started with #4! Forget about that #1.)

Silver Age: Everyone loves Spider-Man! The Silver Age really is a Spider-Man centered universe. We just cannot keep issues in stock. All grades, all issues – there is demand across the board. The really low-grade issues have actually started to sell the quickest which was a bit of a change from previous years. But really, all ASM issues are in demand. Next up is The Avengers – with the impending movie, folks are filling holes quickly anticipating price increases – followed closely by Batman. Superman issues are going strong but Adventure has slowed to a crawl. Flash, Green Lantern, Justice League, Tales of Suspense, and Thor are going strong. In general it's the same every year – superhero titles from the Silver Age always have a solid following.

Anyone have a decent copy of Gold Key's Scarecrow of Romney Marsh? We are constantly asked for it, and when we do get one, it sells right away. The first issue seems to be the easiest to find with the second and third issues rarely showing up. This is possibly the most in demand non-superhero comic of the Silver Age. Another oddball comic that always commands an audience is Mad Monster Party from Dell. This is a relatively scarce item that is based on a Harvey Kurtzman premise. See how many you can spot during convention season.

Charlton comics are on the upswing. The late 1950s issues have solid demand - mostly the oddball titles but also the Western and War. Watch for Matt Baker reprints in the Charlton War comics. ACG titles are all very slow – we have long runs of Forbidden Worlds and Adventures into the Unknown with relatively few takers. The exception being issues containing Herbie which have modest demand. Tower comics are steady – we get groups of Thunder Agents in every spring and by year's end most are gone – this year was no exception.

Gold Key movie/TV comics had a strong showing for the year but their superhero issues like Magnus and Solar were just so-so. Classics Illustrated are red hot – we sell these as fast as we can get them – almost all in mid- to low-grade – high grade Classics do not seem to have a following at this time. Warren magazines have shown increased demand – we have sold multiple runs of Creepy, Eerie, and Vampirella and are always looking to get more.

Golden Age: We have seen an uptick in demand for the later Fiction House issues of Jungle, Jumbo, and Planet with those great good-girl covers. In fact, most good girl issues from this period are solid sellers. Archie comics are highly sought and we receive want lists for them constantly. Dell movie comics with photo covers are very solid – the grade is not terribly important – collectors just want solid copies with decent looking covers. Westerns had been slow for a while but have picked up over the summer – low-grade reading copies go first and high-grade copies are just sitting. Non-EC Horror and Sci-Fi comics have slowed greatly for us but thankfully that has been offset by interest in the Atlas War titles like Combat Casey and Battlefront. These are great reads and are still fairly inexpensive compared with their super hero counterparts.

EC comics have always been in demand and will continue to always be in demand because they are just so darn good! We used to get them in frequently but have not really been able to restock for a few years now – still those that we do get in sell right away. DC comics from this period are just plain hard to find – we were lucky to get a batch in and most are already gone – again! Timely – forget about it. We sell them right around guide and cannot keep them – we just picked up a few Miss America and Daring Mystery issues and expect them to be gone by the time this sees print.

Early issues of Gleason titles sell well but the later 1950's issues do not – they just gather dust – eventually someone will trip over these and realize how ridiculously cheap they are. Fox issues are slow. Dells are selling very well with a focus on Disney titles right now.

Classics Illustrated are solid with demand for first prints the strongest although later printings do sell based on price. Fawcett issues have slowed from previous years and there seem to be enough Captain Marvel comics to go around right now. Quality comics are actually hot – Feature, Police, Smash, Hit, and Crack are all selling very well in all grades.

Spirit sections are hot – with price increases due in the not too distant future. Has anyone seen any of the early Harvey super-hero issues? We have been looking for Green Hornet, Prize, Speed, and Champ with no luck.

We actually see more Centaur issues than we do these Harveys. Speaking of Centaur - they are maybe the hottest section of the market. Guide prices seem very low on these, and we sell them right away at well over Guide. We also watch them sell for crazy prices at auction. If you have Centaurs out there, this may be the time to bring them to market.

Greg Holland, Ph.D. Collector

Valiant Comics: The market for Valiant comics has been fairly stable for a few years, with a few books consistently selling for prices that might shock those who view all comics from the 1990s as bargain bin material. For example, Harbinger #1 consistently sells for $40+ online 'uns , and $500+ in CGC 9.8. That's right, $500+. Those prices are down from the $1,000+ prices seen in a dozen sales in 2008 and 2009. The majority of books printed by Valiant in 1993-94 are bargain bin material, but earlier and later Valiant comics are still quite collectible for first appearances and lower print runs relative to other 1990s comics.

ValiantFans.com continues to be a busy site and message-board for collectors. By the time this report is printed, Valiant will have returned to publication, starting with Free Comic Book Day 2012. It will be interesting to see what impact Valiant's return has on the back issue market. Twenty years ago, collectors were kicking themselves for missing out on Harbinger #1. Will something similar occur with the new Valiant comics?

CGC Census: Since 2003, I have been compiling the population data from the CGC census website. A variety of search options are available on my website - CGCdata.com - allowing visitors to see how many copies of comics have received what grades over the past decade. A few numbers that may be of interest are (as of December 2010): 1,686,347 CGC-graded comics with an average grade of 8.84. Universal grades make up 90.3%, Signature Series are 7%, Restored are 1.6%, Qualified are 1.1%. 2,039 books have received the CGC 10 grade, or about 1-in-827 slabs. The average Universal grades by decade are: 9.7 for the 2000s, 9.6 for the 1990s, 9.4 for the 1980s, 8.9 for the 1970s, 7.7 for the 1960s, 7.2 for the 1950s, 6.8 for the 1940s, and 5.5 for the 1930s. The most often submitted books are Wolverine Limited Series #1 (1982) and Amazing Spider-Man #300 (1988). Marvel leads all publishers submitted with 61%, and DC is next with 19%. Comics from 2006 (led by Civil War #1 and Amazing Spider-Man #529) were submitted more than any other year, but the second most popular comic year for submissions is 1968, the year that gave us Iron Man #1, Silver Surfer #1, America #100 and Incredible Hulk #102.

Comic Ages: Though it is a controversial topic, I feel compelled to offer a suggestion to the comic collecting community regarding comic ages. Traditional names like Golden Age and Silver Age serve their purpose well, but we're quickly approaching an end to the usefulness of such labels. Debating the beginning and end of more recent ages such as Copper seems like a waste of time. If we're talking about comic books from the 1980s, why don't we simply call them "1980s comics"? There's no confusion about what comics are being discussed, and there's no debate about which dates are included. While major content, style, or culture shifts are often cited as the beginning and ending events for comic ages, I'm sure we all agree that those shifts never happened on the same date for all publishers. We can either continue to debate whether the Bronze Age started with a book from early 1970, or late 1970, or sometime in 1971, and debate whether the Bronze Age ended before 1980 or as late as the mid-1980s, and ultimately never reach a unanimous decision, or we could just call them "1970s comics". If you mean to focus on comics from 1970-1984, just say so. Modern Age is a moving target that doesn't work either. 1980s, 1990s, 2000s, 2010s. So simple. I'm sure I'm not the only collector who thinks years make more sense than naming decreasingly-valued metals and arguing about start and end points. The confusion is really unnecessary.

Dennis Keum Fantasy-Comics

Our sales continue to grow in both volume and higher dollar totals with steady demand throughout the year. Big premiums are being paid for certain high demand books while more common material continues to have a high degree of buyer price sensitivity. Demand is out there but for low to mid-grade Silver and Bronze along with Moderns, discounts and free shipping were key components to drive strong sales. The fact is with stagnant or dropping incomes, the vast majority are being squeezed by rising costs. While certain prices have decreased such as everyday electronics like TVs and smart phones, others more important to long term health of society, such as quality healthcare and education, are seemingly becoming more out of reach for people everyday. It is no wonder in a difficult economy, collectors are looking for deals and taking respite reading and collecting comics.

eBay vs. Individual Websites:

Successful sales on individual company websites were varied through the year. With an individual website, keeping things fresh with new inventory, newsletters, discounts and other promotions are a must. Comparatively, with eBay one thing is certain in that you really don't have to worry about attracting buyers. As a marketplace, eBay is tough to match with its vast number of global buyers and sellers in one place as compared to any other single website. A particular challenge for sellers is in complying with their constant company policy updates. While these changes have been ongoing, that is generally true with any business and with the world in general. It is amazing to see certain businesses becoming overnight successes. Did anyone hear of Google 10 years ago? Or Facebook 5 years ago? Yet both have become huge business successes and have brought about important social change throughout the world. It is sad to see other businesses that have been around for generations suddenly cease to exist. Where did Borders go? In today's environment, businesses can come and go faster than ever. Seemingly the world keeps changing at a faster pace and you have to adapt quickly to survive.

CGC Books: For the certified market, as comic dealers and collectors we can all say that CGC helps make this a very exciting hobby. Not only does the company help safely buy and sell a book that has gone through a restoration check but also be assured of a comic that is generally accurately graded and presented in a safe, professional looking holder. This trust is why collectors are willing to pay huge premiums for the certification. For the year we sent in more books to CGC for certification than in any previous year. When sending books in for certification, being the owner, there are always many books that come back with grades less than expected, there may be a few better, with the vast majority around what you would expect. It is interesting that there is a huge dichotomy in perception of value once a comic book is in a holder. Collectors are still excited about 9.9s and 10s and are willing to pay staggering premiums over their raw counterparts. On the other hand, most Modern books graded less than a 9.8 are generally viewed as having no value, despite there being an actual comic in the holder. At certain lesser grades many Silver and Bronze books have no premium value over Guide and often sell at a discount which is especially true when sold in an auction format. There is also a huge segment out there that will not purchase a book because it is CGC graded. It is difficult to convince these collectors that there is an actual comic in a holder that can be taken out.

Collections and Pricing: With regards to new material entering the market, it was amazing to see the number of original owner Golden Age material that was offered. While this material caused a lot of excitement, it also shows if these early books are still being found, it must be asked, how many more high grade original owner collections and other just plain nice books are out there. While certification is a must when buying and selling high grade books, in terms of relative value of certain high grade CGC books there are variables of supply and demand that should play an important role in the coming years. On the supply side there are yet to be found original owner collections and additional high grade population growth coming from pressing and attaining certification upgrades. On the demand side there may be a general declining collector base for collecting full high grade certified runs. This trend has been seen in softening or declining prices in certified non-key Silver Age, most Bronze and Modern Age books and we should expect this trend to continue.

With huge premiums paid and decreases in value in other certified books, this leads to a more general question of what is the accurate price for any comic book graded vs. raw, and how do you assess value at any given time. The difficulty in fully understanding an accurate valuation can sometimes be better understood looking back at historical price movements of many assets. With housing over the past 10 years, we saw unprecedented price appreciation and at a certain point most thought there was a new era of no risk where prices would only go up. Then there was a major crash which most people and even market experts did not see coming. During the price run-up years, it was easier to understand market value but more difficult to understand or believe in inherent value.

Certainly in the uncertified comic market the Guide currently reflects a good general benchmark of what most comics are bought and sold for. In the certified market, we can see market value quickly with tools such as GPA and though the Guide only lists prices up to 9.2 in most cases, it may be observed that prices tend to be undervalued in the Guide. The flip side is there are many collectors out there that say the Guide value is inaccurate because too many books are overpriced and can be found for a discount at shows. Here though the transaction may not necessarily represent accurate value just because there was a wholesale transaction between two parties in one part of the country. The book usually has a completely different and usually higher value in another part of the country or in the international market. The conclusion is there's no doubt that the Guide has taken a more conservative approach towards reflecting price increases. However with premiums and spreads paid for non-key and high grade common certified books generally coming down, a longer term trend may show the conservative valuation and spreads shown in the Guide may have been more accurate than certain market prices after all.

Conventions: Shows can be a lot of work but also a place to find some quality material at great prices. Whether you buy and sell high grade or are looking for low grade reader copies, artwork, or looking to meet your favorite celebrity or get your books signed, it really is an exciting place to spend money and have a good time. While the buying and selling makes this business seem like work it can be easily forgotten that this is supposed to be a fun hobby. At the end of the day though it's all the people involved in comics that make this an exciting hobby. Many I've met through this business are some of the most wonderful people out there and whom today I can call friends. It's the people and of course the hunt for the next collection. In every new collection there's always something you haven't seen before and the excitement of finding a book that looks extraordinarily nice that you want to send in for certification.

Ben Lichtenstein Zapp Comics

Greetings from New Jersey. As this is my first report, some background information. We are a brick and mortar operation with 2 shops, open since 1993. We devote a lot of effort and space to back issues and other secondary market lines, like toys and cards. In addition, we set up at most of the major East Coast conventions, as well as Chicago. eBay sales also play a part in our business, albeit a smaller one.

Trade Paperbacks/Hardcovers: We're experiencing much price resistance on collected editions. It is hard to justify a $19.99 cover price for a mediocre 5-issue mini-series. Our customers are willing to buy TPBs at cover price, but only for the very best material by the best creators. We have also seen a surge in interest in out of print TPBs, with many fetching double to triple cover when they fall out of print, however temporary. Everything else has been a struggle to sell unless placed on extreme sale.

New Releases: DC scored a huge hit with the New 52. Of the 52 new titles, at least half have shown consistent sales, with about 10 of them in our topsellers consistently.

In our neck of the woods, the new #1s were severely under-ordered by other shops and first prints were scarce across the state. We are encouraging the readers by stocking every issue of every title at cover price, while also providing first prints for the collectors, making everyone happy.

It felt like 1993 all over again for a few weeks, as tons of new faces came in to purchase them. Also, many dealers/shop owners came snooping around to buy them from us at cover. Interesting times indeed.

While we happily kept all on the shelves at cover price, once new printings arrived, we sold 1st prints at generally $4, with Batgirl, Detective, Justice League, Nightwing and Animal Man commanding $8 to $10 each. Justice League #1 2nd prints sold out at $20 each, due to a low print run and a gorgeous cover.

Similarly at the New York Comic Con, our racks of DC 52 #1 1st prints sold extremely well at $4 to $10 each. Even more positive, the new 52 series are showing legs, with continued interest through #5 on and many new readers coming in and purchasing all available issues on specific titles. An interesting trend is that we're seeing many confirmed Marvel readers make the switch to DC because of this relaunch. This made for a tremendous September for us, with sales about 25% higher than September 2010.

On the Marvel side, Kick Ass has been a big hit, selling in bigger numbers than most of their superhero fare. Marvel has relaunched Uncanny X-Men, with little interest from readers. Reader feedback is an overwhelming one of confusion/boredom with the Marvel Universe at this time. Fear Itself started off well and sold respectable numbers, but those were way down from the days of Civil War. Incredible Hulk #1 with Silvestri art did well and continues to have legs. Wolverine has sold better due to the writing of Jason Aaron, of Scalped fame.

Image had many sleeper hits, with strong interest in many of their new #1s. Titles such as Blue Estate, Carbon Grey, and Fatale have drawn good interest, though they're not huge sellers. We've seen a trend of high interest in almost all Image #1s, with some titles continuing and others not quite hooking their readers.

Chew and Morning Glories still selling consistently as new and back issues, while Invincible has cooled somewhat. We sold many Invincible #1 1st prints this year for $25 to $50 each, but most of the other back issues have cooled greatly. The Walking Dead, thanks to the excellent TV series, showed a big spike in new comics sales, and back issues sell as fast as we can get them.

Anything Bane-related is hot right now, as he is the main villain in the next Dark Knight movie. We broke out those Knightfall issues from 1993 and sell loads of them at over cover price. Batman #497 (Bane breaks Batman's back) sells well at $4.00 to $5.00. I'm serious. Similarly, the Vengeance of Bane one-shot sells easily at $20 to $25 and Vengeance of Bane II, $12.

Bronze Age: We've experienced very strong sales in almost all Bronze Age Marvels and DCs. We sell tons of below 9.0 copies to readers/completists. Generally, we're selling them for 25 to 50% of Guide, depending on title. On the flipside, anytime we get clean, high grade Bronze Marvels, they are gobbled up at Guide and over by buyers who will press and slab them. I definitely have more buyers than supply for high-grade Bronze. Pricing on Keys is always 1.2 to 1.6

Guide in various lower grades, with no price resistance.

While Marvel is king, DC Bronze does very well for us as well, with highest demand for and Neal Adams work, any Batmans, Green Lantern and Wonder Woman to name a few.

We do a brisk business in Charltons/Gold Keys and Archies, priced about 20% to 30% of Guide on average. Overall, we can sell any and all Bronze Age when priced appropriately.

Silver Age: We've been very lucky to pick up some nice Silver Age inventory, with very good turnover. We've moved several copies of Amazing Fantasy #15, Amazing Spider-Man #1, X-Men #1, Avengers #1, etc. In general, they have moved well in line. I won't bore you with lots of statistics on our Silver Age sales, as the more focused dealers in this book will do it far better than I can.

Golden Age: It always sells well for us, and we can never get enough.

When we set up at conventions, we bring a wide mixture of categories. Our $1 stock turns over very well, and boxes of $2 and $3 low-grade oldies doing very, very well. We find there's plenty of demand out there for almost anything before 1980, as long as it's priced right.

2011 was an excellent year for us, with sales on new issues and back issues markedly up over 2010. With the full advent of digital comics here to stay, we've seen only increases in our overall print new comic sales. It remains to be seen how and when the migration to digital will begin.

Overall, it's been a hectic, exciting year. If you're in the New Jersey area or attending one of the East Coast conventions, please look us up.

Jon McClure Collector

For the record, I generally sell low end keys and pre-1980 comics of all types, in all grades Fair and up, under $1000, and virtually all of those for under $500. Despite the ongoing recession, comics have set amazing records with Golden Age keys like Action #1 and Detective #27. Paradoxically, more modern high-grade keys like Green Lantern #76 have plummeted from previously achieved stellar heights. The rarest of Bronze Age books (such as 1977 35 cent variant Marvel Westerns) would bring more than common keys like Incredible Hulk #181, even in mid-grade, if a single copy were to surface for sale, but some books in runs such as Kid Colt Outlaw #218-220 have only one known copy in existence, which makes this highly improbable, and it serves as a perfect example of why the first appearance of Superman and Batman, although rarely exchanging hands in high grade, were discussed in the million-dollar plus range for many years before any actual sales occurred. It is difficult to nail down reasonable market value on truly rare and desirable items, regardless of the virtual certainty of such, without such gems actually changing hands.

Dell "Now 10c" Variants turn out to be all books with cover dates of 9/58, 9-10/58 and 9-11/58, which are the latest uncommon test market variants to hit the radar, but these pale in comparison to the rarity of Archie 15 cent test market variants (of which 112 are currently known to exist, with cover dates ranging from 2/62 to 4/63), especially keys such as Madhouse #22, another example of a killer gem with only one variant copy currently confirmed to exist. The Madhouse #22 15 cent test market variant has yet to change hands, and such ultra-rare items, with standard 12 cent copies of the same issue already vastly undervalued in the Guide could, and likely would, bring at least 5-10K in a major comic book auction, at least on any day without a nuclear war announced in the news. One must read between the lines when it comes to such super-collectibles, and people with financial motives often work to keep such matters under wraps until it profits them to do otherwise, which is only one reason for my ceaseless efforts to disseminate information to collectors worldwide on the broad and complex subject of Variant comics.

So-called "foreign editions," being U.S. copies printed simultaneously for foreign distribution are actually cover variants, with UK priced copies being only one example, will continue to remain lost in the self-serving mists and midst of obfuscation at the hands of big money and influence, despite the inarguable truth of the matter, and overall scarcity of same. My lengthy article in the Overstreet Guide #40, pages #1010-1038, was an attempt to jump start understanding across the board, and it is working. A number of new variant types have surfaced in the last two years, and I will revisit the subject in detail once again in the not-too-distant future, when further stones have been overturned by collectors, at least enough to justify such efforts.

As is almost always the case with such rarities, dealers have no financial interest to pursue "new" collectibles until they stumble upon them or possess knowledge of them, and even then, they must literally pursue and bring such items to market with full disclosure, which is difficult at best to prompt; the search for truth is too impractical for most dealers to take the time to expand their understanding without customer requests, and such efforts may in fact work against investments they and others have already made. Belief systems already solidly in place are difficult to change both within and outside of collectibles markets, so for now, my factual observations have been oft received much as Copernicus' works were when argued by Galileo, but unlike yesterday's starstruck pioneers, you'll hear no apologies nor recantments from me, for the truth has a way of winning out over time. That's right, I'm once again arguing against the status quo: The most common copies of key comic book issues may one day not be the most valuable examples, based on the laws of scarcity and demand. Hey, someone has to rock the boat!

Notable sales this year include Conan #1 VG+ $95, Iron Man #55 GD+ $27, Madhouse #22 GD/VG $95, Tomb of Dracula #10 GD/VG $19, Weird War Tales #1 GD/VG $90 and Iron Fist #14 (35¢ c variant) VG/FN $2075.79.

Todd McDevitt New Dimension Comics

Since I think it's valuable to know where the insight in these market reports is coming from, here is a little history on me. I just celebrated my 25th anniversary in the comic book business! New Dimension Comics has grown to 5 stores surrounding the Pittsburgh, PA area. When I started, I thought I thought it would be just me in 1 store having fun selling comics. I never expected to grow to 5 stores and 40-some employees. All this time dedicating my life to comics seems to have earned me the chance to rant here once a year. The good folks at Overstreet keep askin' me to come back! This is my 5th market report!

Buying Overview: One of my rules has always been to buy everything I can. I think keeping a fresh and relentless flow of new material through my stores has been a huge component to my success. With the purchase of a giant warehouse, nothing holds me back from taking on loads of comics, sometimes hundreds of thousands at a time. And with 5 store locations, attending conventions, wholesale activity, and other venues, they go out the door quickly as well. My job most days is just to keep the NDC machine fed with cool comics!

Selling Overview: While in past years people with comics for sale have turned to eBay or some internet outlet, more and more come to me with the realization that selling comics is a lot of work. I know better than most! So recently, the tide has turned. People value their time and leave the comic selling to the experts. You don't cut your own hair, do you? Collections flow in literally faster than I can get through them. My new trick is to burn through collections, pull the high profile stuff that is needed, and toss the rest out for $1.00 each in my Ellwood City location where I have a giant store that doubles as a warehouse. Then, if I get time, I go through them again later, but that never happens. They sit for $1.00 each until somebody takes time to comb through them and find the treasures. In addition, I have a sorted inventory of about 400,000 comics that I open to the public twice a year for $1.00 each. Folks come from all over (even Canada!) to shop these. For high-end vintage material, the same is true. Most folks realize that trying to squeeze out that extra money themselves isn't worth the risk or effort. I can pay premiums for good books like Hulk #181 or other keys because I have a list of clients waiting for them. And they want to buy them from a reputable source such as I have established with a long history in my region. If I know I have a book sold for $500 tomorrow, I can certainly pay $400 for it today.

Golden Age: Let's start old and work our way forward. As always, the Marvels/Timeys rule here. The small handful that I have seen in the past year sell easily within a week. In my 25 years of aggressively buying in the Western PA region, I bet I have only seen a couple dozen of these gems surface. It seems that collectors know how scarce they are and save up to buy one book when they finally do see it to make it a highlight of their collection. If you are Captain America fan and have most of the Silver Age and up, you have to have just one Golden Age issue just to show off. In my years buying, I have seen more sizable collections of DC Comics, but even those have been slow this past year. I like to think this is the calm before the storm, and that big find is just a phone call away!

As for more obscure publishers from the Golden Age, I had some great luck selling scarce L.B. Cole covers, but most others have such a limited market that the only real way to get them moving is at lower prices. In fact, I think a general statement can be made that popular books from this era can sell for over Guide price, while slow movers need price breaks to attract buyers. For example, Classics Illustrated and Westerns. It seems these buyers all know that these are slow sellers for all dealers and expect a discount. I have had 2 copies of Roy Rogers #1 for years that I can't sell for $95.

Silver Age: My main outlet for these is my $3 inventory. I have been doing this for several years now and I'm starting to earn the nickname "that $3 guy" at some shows. It's my favorite to bring with me to conventions with about 12,000 comics. Many are low grade, but many are just my over-stock, so into the cheapies they go! Since they do so well, and I buy so much stuff, I keep it very full. Why should I fight to get $8-12 for a book that I can get $3 for quickly? This keeps both my $3 stock looking good and my "real" inventory too since I'm more selective about what I will take time bag, tag, price, and sort.

For good stuff, no surprise, high grade still rules. I don't do much with CGC, so I end up having guys who do hit my high grade stuff pretty hard. But low grades still sell well on popular key issues. There are all types of buyers when it comes to wanting a key book. Some collectors want nice copies for high dollars, others are just happy to have one in their collection even if it's banged up.

Modern Age: Wow. What a crazy year for new comics. DC rocked the industry with 52 new #1 issues. While there were lots of gripes leading up to this September 2011 event, when it finally hit, it was gobbled up! The trick is that we are seeing mixed reactions as the #2s & #3s are arriving. Will the boost of the relaunches keep these titles riding at higher circulation? Or will the typical curse of later issues dipping off still apply? As I write this, we are just seeing the #3s come in, so the real answer will be evident once the new Overstreet is released!

Digital Threat (?): A lot of brick-n-mortar comic shop retailers are feeling the creep of the digital comics. Many worry they will be the end of comic shops. Publishers make more and more efforts to woo readers in that direction as well. Everyone is positioning themselves for the future. I believe the advent of digital comics should be compared to the newsstand of 30 years ago or more. When I was a kid, comics were everywhere. That mass exposure kept some readers interested enough to keep up with the hobby into their adult life, creating many of the collectors I enjoy as customers today. Now, you practically have to fight to find a place that sells comic books. But the internet is easy. I think that of the masses that get hooked on comics online, some percentage of them will become diehard fans. And diehard fans shop at comic book shops. Digital comics may be the marketing stroke that keeps comic shops thriving for the next several decades.

John Jackson Miller Curator, The Comic Chronicles

While I covered comics pricing for many years for various publications, my main area of expertise — and ongoing research — is on the supply side. How many copies of comics existed originally? This is an important question, and my Comics Chronicles website (<http://www.comichron.com>) has for several years provided a public stream of data not just for people interested in the health of the business over time, but also for collectors interested in the number of copies that originally existed. We can see the role of original supply in the prices of many titles over the years; the dynamics that boosted Giant-Size X-Men #1 and Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles #1 have been more recently on very visible display in the prices paid for Walking Dead. It's worth knowing about.

Back at the beginning of the 2000s, Mile High Comics owner Chuck Rozanski noted that the sales of many new comics had reached levels where they would be immediately scarcer, on publication, than issues of the same title from earlier periods. This continued to be the trend for many ongoing series in 2011. While the new comics market in aggregate sold slightly more copies in 2011 as in 2010 — a little more than 70 million copies in Direct Market comics shops in North America — circulations on many marquee titles continued to decline.

But while the initial supplies of many top-selling comics have declined against previous years, the aggregate number of comics sold in the Direct Market has stayed the same or increased slightly. How is that possible? The bench is deeper. The largest publishers are producing more titles between themselves than they did a decade ago, and with the addition of strong middle-tier publishers including IDW, Boom, and Dynamite, titles past 200th place on the charts each month are regularly selling three to four times what similarly ranked titles sold ten years earlier. It's not that specific lower-tier titles have grown in sales — rather, a title in that lower grouping is much more likely now to be from a major or mid-sized publisher. There's simply more out there, and, as with the proliferation of television channels, we have seen a fragmentation of audience.

Again, for the collector or dealer, this means that many marquee titles exist in very small quantities, relative to the past. Marvel's Amazing Spider-Man had an average monthly circulation of 79,844 copies across all channels, as compared with 113,557 ten years earlier during a similar slow-down — when the now three-issue-a-month title was only shipping once a month. Several times in 2011, the top-selling title in the industry had sales that didn't reach six digits. If we assume that "mortality" rates on comics began to collapse in the 1980s with the proliferation of comics shops and the easy availability of storage media, we might well conclude that there are more Near Mint copies of, say, Amazing Spider-Man #375 (when sales were over half a million copies) than there are of Amazing Spider-Man #675!

The major deviation from that in 2011, of course, can be found in the DC "New 52" reboot. DC sold more than 4 million copies of the first issues of its rebooted titles in September and October, the first two months of the program. Ten "New 52" first issues had domestic Direct Market sales in their first two months exceeding 100,000 copies — Justice League, Batman, Action, Green Lantern, Flash, Superman, Detective, Batman: The Dark Knight, Batman and Robin, and Aquaman — with Justice League, Batman, and Action exceeding 200,000 copies. The scarcest New 52 #1s are Static Shock, Omac, and Men of War, all with fewer than 40,000 copies sold into the Direct Market in their first two months on the racks.

That's the #1s — but what about the #2s? Interestingly, while the second issues of series have, historically, been much scarcer than the first given how retailers order comics — G.I. Joe: A Real American Hero #2 in the 1980s famously becoming more valuable than its first issue — the DC effort is bucking that trend. The falloff in first-month orders from the average DC "new 52" #1 to #2 was only 6%, and some titles actually went up in sales. Once all reorders are tabulated, there will probably still be more #1 first printings than #2s on most titles, but the gap will be small. A lot has to do with retailer confidence in the effort prompting higher orders, but the logistical advances in comics ordering have also greatly shortened the time it takes for series demand to be reflected in print runs.

The highest-circulation comic book of 2011 is the one that started it all, Justice League #1. First-day domestic orders for the first printing were 171,000 copies, with a Combo Pack variant adding 15,000 copies; overseas sales add about 10% to the known supply. Retailers went on to order another 70,000 copies in the succeeding two months, although it is expected that most of those were of later printings. Topping a quarter-million copies in combined printings puts the issue in the dozen best-selling issues of the 21st Century; most Civil War issues and the Barack Obama Amazing Spider-Man had higher initial first printing sales, but Justice League #1 should still be one of the more plentiful big-event titles out there.

Where retailers might see opportunity, as has happened with many relaunched series, is on the final issues of the series that were replaced. Batman #713 had first-month orders of 51,760, less than a quarter of the eventual sales of the Batman #1 that followed it; Action Comics #904 went from around 40,000 copies up to more than five times that. Supergirl went from less than 20,000 copies to more than three times as many. So there's both a significant bump — and an opportunity, should those last issues be seen as attractively scarce.

While the renumberings of DC series were traumatic for some collectors, recent history has shown that such changes are, regardless of what publishers may say at any one time, only as permanent as the publishers' desire to keep them going. We've seen various Marvel renumberings undone — and then redone — and yet collectors do find a way to keep things straight, just as they imposed their own sequential numbering on Walt Disney's Comics & Stories years ago when the title did not have it. It seems hard to believe that #96 of the new Action

Comics won't have a #1000 on it somewhere; it would be a missed bet if it didn't.

Perhaps most interestingly, from a historical perspective — the 200,000-copy sales of the new Action Comics #1 are very close to what the sales of the original Action Comics #1 were, in the 1930s, judging from Audit Bureau of Circulation reports!

And on that topic of returning to the past: increasingly, more and more information is becoming available about how many copies were originally sold on many titles. In addition to the data that I've continued to post on www.comichron.com (where I have nearly 3,000 Statements of Ownership since 1960 which I expect to post in the near future), a number of new resources are becoming available. Recently, former Marvel editor-in-chief Jim Shooter began posting on his blog (www.jimshooter.com) archival internal documents from that publisher, including not just tracking of Marvel's own sales, but inside information about what other publishers were doing. How many comics initially existed is a major factor in how many exist now — and a little at a time, those blanks are filling in.

DC's New 52 Justice League #1 was the highest-circulation comic book of 2011.

Steve Mortensen Miracle Comics

2011 was another banner year for comics, especially in the CGC market. Prices seem to be stabilizing, but as more supply enters the market, prices have been affected on key books. Wolverine Limited Series #1 is an example of a book that is highly submitted and frequently sold. As of December 2011, the median price for a CGC 9.8 for this book was around $150. There are more than 6,000 graded copies but demand continues to keep the price afloat. In 2002, the book in CGC 9.8 reached a high of $215; in 2006, the book in CGC 9.8 reached an all-time high of $410. 2011 brought its greatest volatility with a high of $263 and a low of $61. Of course these numbers don't consider the page quality or the centering of the book, which also has a great deal of influence on the price. CGC 9.8s can still be miscut and have page quality below White, which can lower the value.

The Year in Review (based on observations first made in my monthly columns for Comics Buyer's Guide):

In December 2010, I noted how more and more books are being re-certified. Pressing has become more prevalent and many collectors are re-submitting books for higher grades. Some collectors will try to determine if the book is a "9.5" or a "9.7" and take their chances resubmitting the book for a possible higher grade. There has been lots of controversy about this in the comic market among collectors and dealers and some feel that this technique is considered restoration and should be given a purple label by CGC.

From my experience, it's very difficult to determine if a book has been professionally pressed or if the book has been stored tightly in a box. I have bought collections that have been stored for 30+ years and each book looks as if it has been professionally pressed. That said, the prices have already fallen on CGC 9.8s of key books such as Incredible Hulk #181 (a popular pressing candidate). Once it was a $25,000 book, but the last recorded sale in December 2011 was for $13,500. Collectors savvy in pressing are finding nice 9.4/9.6 candidates, pressing them, and then re-submitting them for higher grades. This has created a greater supply in the 9.8 markets and has lowered prices.

In January 2011, I noticed that Deadpool back issues from the late 1990s are gaining ground, but as of this writing prices have dropped. Deadpool #1 in CGC 9.8 sold in January for $129 but in December 2011 the last few sales have been in the $40-80 range. Issue #54, a Punisher appearance, has gained ground in CGC 9.8. The last sale in December 2011 was for $146. Prices for common issues have dropped to $25-35 in CGC 9.8.

In February 2011, I noted that Image Comics had become a great pipeline for investment grade moderns. Walking Dead #1 in CGC 9.8 sold for $525 in February 2011 and last sold in December 2011 for $850. I think the popularity of the new TV show has sparked new interest in the back issue market for the book. Chew #1 in CGC 9.8 sold in February for $220 and in December 2011 the last sale was for $450. Morning Glories #1 in CGC 9.8 sold in February for $83 and in December the last sale was for $100.

In March, I noticed that many of my customers were favoring Auctions over Buy-It-Nows. As of my March writing, there were 85,617 auctions and 1,689,582 Buy-It-Nows for a total of 1,775,199 comics for sale on eBay. In December the totals were 75,918 auctions and 1,473,842 Buy-It-Nows for a total of 1,534,224 comics for sale on eBay. About a year ago eBay decided to make Buy-It-Nows searchable on the same level as auctions.

In April 2011, I talked about how local flea markets have become a great place to pick up old comics. One of my prizes was an Uncle Scrooge #1 for two dollars. The copy was in Fair/Good condition, but complete. From the same seller I found Uncle Scrooge #17-19 and 21-22, the 15-cent variant editions released in the San Francisco Bay Area during 1957. I sent those in to CGC and they came back with an average grade of CGC 7.0, eventually selling on ComicLink for about $100 each.

In May 2011, I noted that Witchblade and Darkness comics were good sellers for me in CGC 9.8. In May, I sold a Darkness Special Preview Edition in CGC 9.8 for $269 and a Darkness #3 in CGC 9.8 for $50. Many of these issues can still be picked up for cover price at comic stores. In December I sold a Darkness #3 in CGC 9.8 for $42.

In June 2011, I discussed the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles' return to comics. I have strong ties to the characters – remembering when I bought #3 of the original series off the shelf. In November a copy of #3 in CGC 9.8 sold for $200. Issue #1 of the original series in first print is extremely hard to find in any grade since very few were printed. In February a CGC 9.6 sold for $7,000 and in December a CGC 9.8 copy sold for $22,752.

In July 2011, I predicted that the new Justice League was going to be in high demand. In December the regular cover last sold for $61 in CGC 9.8 and the retail incentive cover sold for $500 in CGC 9.8. The Justice League of America first appeared in Brave and the Bold #28 in 1960. A CGC 9.0 sold in February for $21,510. A CGC 9.4 copy sold for $60,375 back in 2004. According to the CGC census the CGC 9.4 is the highest graded copy.

In August 2011, Futurama back issues caught my eye. Futurama has been a great cult favorite both on and off TV. It has been a great year for Futurama back issues. Issue #1 in CGC 9.8 last sold for $110; #3 last sold in CGC 9.8 for $70; #8 last sold in CGC 9.8 for $80; #10 last sold in CGC 9.8 for $70; #11 last sold in CGC 9.8 for $70. As of December, issue #1 last sold for $100 in CGC 9.8.

In September 2011, I reflected on the death of a friend in the comic community and thought about how we can best prepare our comic collections for our loved ones. Along with being a lot of fun, comics are a financial asset that can be a great resource to our families if something happens to us. But without friends to guide our families in the selling process it can end up more of a burden than an asset. I think it's a good idea for us collectors to have a few experts in the community that our families can go to in case something happens to us.

In October 2011, I noted how DC's new 52 titles have been doing really well. The variant covers in particular have held strong; issues have been popping up in CGC 9.8 less than a month after they came out. Action Comics #1 sketch cover in CGC 9.8 sold in October for $600. Batman #1 sketch cover in CGC 9.8 sold in October for $510. In December 2011, Action Comics #1 sketch cover sold for $405 in CGC 9.8 and Batman #1 sketch cover sold for $521.

In November 2010, I saw a pickup of popularity of Ultimate Spider-Man #1 from 2000. Prices for Ultimate Spider-Man #1 appear to be on the rise after about a four year slump. The 90-day average for the regular red cover in CGC 9.8 is about $350 however it has dropped to $300 in December. Prices for a CGC 9.8 copy of the white cover are about $700.

In conclusion, collecting and selling comic books is a great hobby. I have personally been enriched this year by my monthly sales on eBay and my purchases for my personal collection. While X-Men and Iron Man were my staples when I was a kid, I've found a new favorite in Conan over the past several years. I enjoy CGC graded comics and ungraded reader copies. Collectors can enjoy both! Although CGC has changed the hobby from the investment market, it's hard to beat picking up and reading a nice Bronze Age Barry Smith Conan where you can smell the pages and enjoy the story and art.

Tom Nelson Top Notch Comics

We are an online back issue comic book dealer who has been selling on eBay since 1999 (our ID is topnotch-comics). We primarily sell comics from the Silver Age through around 2005, and we occasionally get Golden Age and current Moderns. We run weekly eBay auctions with high value CGC certified books. We also stock around 2000 books in our fixed price eBay store that are lower value in low to high grade. Sales have been strong for us in 2011, up over 2010. We constantly see new collectors on eBay with new accounts entering the online collecting hobby.

My market report will be skewed towards the non-typical high profile auction house sales, eBay sales, plus our actual sales. I will also cover high volume popular comics from the Bronze to Modern Ages. I believe the largest number of collectors are buying popular Bronze and Modern keys for their collections.

In 2011, I attended 12 of the larger comic book conventions as a buyer. Four on the West Coast, six in the Midwest, and four on the East Coast. Going to this many conventions has given me knowledge on how dealers price their books with regional selling market conditions. Attendance was strong at the long running established conventions I attended. Dealers who brought fresh new collections were well received with strong sales. Some dealers who literally haul around the same picked over books did not have as much success. For those who set up at shows, those old foggy plastic bags and old labels just gives the impression of picked over stale inventory. It would be a wise idea to invest in some new bags to freshen things up a bit, also its nice to leave enough room in the boxes for customers to actually look through the comics. Since my outlet for books is entirely online I constantly do extensive research of completed eBay auction sales. I also follow the high end CGC market of Heritage weekly and Signature auctions, and ComicLink's monthly auctions. This keeps me familiar with liquid value of books from the Silver Age through hot Modern books.

Golden Age: We do not specialize in this era, but when we do run across them in low grade they make great stock for our eBay store fixed price listings. They eventually move at Guide, but if they start to hang around, a 30% discount moves them quicker.

Silver Age: Early Silver Age DC 1955-1961 which are the 10 centers, I have seen strong demand in 8.0 or better condition in virtually every title regardless of how common. This includes War titles, Sci-Fi, Superheroes and even Humor. The paper quality was poor in this era and buyers will pay a premium for off white and white pages.

For the later Silver Age DC (the 12 centers 1962-1969), there is strong demand in the NM 9.4 and higher range as they are still very scarce compared to their Marvel counterparts from the same era. We have seen a strong demand for the Strange Adventures Deadman run starting at #205 (with Infantino art) which is scarce in 8.0 or better, through the Neal Adams issues.

DC 10-centers in Fair to Fine, sell OK in our eBay store. Some need 20-30% discount to move, but still sell able books. DC 12 centers need a little more discounting to move for the common runs, 25-50% off for the low to mid grades. Low and mid grade keys and first appearances sell closer to Guide.

For Marvel and Atlas Silver, there's no need for me to rehash the same reports you can see elsewhere. Late Marvel Silver, which is almost Bronze books. Iron Man #1, Silver Surfer #1, Captain America #100, Sub-Mariner #1, all have been hot sellers in our eBay listings. They sell at Guide as quick as I post them in low grade and high CGC grades.

Silver Age Dell and Gold key, we sold a number of books. Some of our better sellers in our eBay store were Magnus Robot Fighter, Doctor Solar, Turok, Munsters, Uncle Scrooge, Star Trek, and Peanuts.

Bronze Marvels from the 1970s: This made up the bulk of our volume this year. One of the hottest books for us was Amazing Spider-Man #129. We sold copies from Good 2.0 all the way up to CGC 9.6. I can monitor the number of hits and bookmarks in our eBay listings. The surprising thing I noticed was the volume of interest in the lowest grades of Good to Very Good. They had more interest than the high CGC grade of 9.0 and 9.6. This is a great example of the sheer depth and volume of interest in the Bronze keys. Sales of this book; two copies in Good 2.0 $80.00 each, VG 4.0 $125.00, CGC 5.0 $180.00, CGC 7.0 $270.00, CGC 9.0 $539.00, CGC 9.6 $1750.00. Other Spider-Man books that were hot are #121, #194, #122 and #135, in that order. Some of our eBay sales: #121 CGC 8.0 $180.00, #121 CGC 9.4 $535.00, #194 GD/VG 3.0 $10.00, #194 VG 4.0 $10.00, #194 VF+ 8.5 $50.00, #194 CGC 9.6 $200.00, #194 CGC 9.8 $400.00, #194 CGC 9.8 SS by Stan Lee $650.00, #135 VG 4.0 $12.00, #135 CGC 9.6 $430.00.

Incredible Hulk #181 with the first Wolverine is another mega key. I observed online sales of double Guide prices in the Good to Fine conditions, while VF to NM were at around Guide. Getting the book CGC graded helped it sell even faster. This book provides another example of collectors who just want an affordable copy in low to mid grade.

Werewolf By Night #32, the first Moon Knight, is a hot book with tremendous demand in all grades, especially mid grades of VG to VF. Some sales we had of this comic, GD/VG 3.0 $35.00, VG $50.00, VG+ 4.5 $70.00, CGC 7.0 $150.00, CGC 8.5 $200.00.

Marvel and DC Horror non keys were a little softer than a couple years ago.

Batman #200-#300 were our best sellers from the Bronze Age in mid grade Fine to Very Fine, selling at Guide value in our eBay store. The Adams covers lead the way in value and demand with many (#227, #234, #232, #222, and #251) selling over Guide. Joker covers were highly sought after. Detective Adams and Joker covers were sought after also, although the common non-Adams issues were slower to move.

Neal Adams' Green Lantern issues (#76-#89) have leveled off in sales after the film was released. It's still a collectable run but not quite as Hot.

X-Men always sell, although some discounting gets them to move quicker this year.

Some of the more popular Gold Key comics from our eBay fixed price store were Scooby Doo, Pink Panther, Star Trek, Uncle Scrooge, and Turok.

The scarce Marvel Price variants continued to be hot in CGC grades. The most elusive issues are Star Wars #1 and Iron Fist #14. Some notable sales from auction sites were: Iron Fist #14 CGC 8.5 $2,850.00, CGC 6.5 $900.00, Star Wars #1 CGC 9.0 $3,850.00, CGC 4.0 $332.00.

1980s comics: I have seen strong demand for mini or limited series which are instant collections. Batman Dark Knight #1-4, Wolverine Limited #1-4, Punisher Limited #1-5. Collectors buy them in CGC 9.8 or clean raw copies to read. The Amazing Spider-Man keys of #300 and #238 are both hot in grades of Fine to CGC 9.8. #300 VF 8.0 $70.00, #300 CGC 9.6 $200.00, #300 CGC 9.8 $550.00, #238 CGC 9.8 $450.00, #238 CGC 9.6 $170.00. Another collectable run is the Daredevil Miller run #158-191. The keys of #158 and #168 sell well in all grades. Daredevil #168 VG 4.0 $25.00, CGC 9.6 $250.00, CGC 9.8 $700.00.

The McFarlane Amazing Spider-Man run is also a popular run to collect. Miracleman #1-24 is in demand with the #15 leading with way with sales in CGC 9.6 $180.00, CGC 9.8 $450.00. The entire Miracleman run is collectable with the #14, #15, #16, #23 and #24 being the toughest to find. The Crow #1-4 are rare in high grade. The Uncanny X-Men run is relatively cool in price and needs to be discounted. Except for the #266 which continues to sell in all grades, VG/FN 5.5 $10.00 FN/VF 7.0 $25.00, CGC 9.8 $150.00.

Transformers #1 and G.I. Joe #1 both sell for around $25.00 in NM. G.I. Joe #21 goes for around $35.00 in NM. Batman #357 (1st Jason Todd) is a hot book selling for $35.00 in VF 8.0 $100.00 in CGC 9.6 $200.00 in CGC 9.8. Batman #426-428 is a collectable run in collector grade and CGC 9.8 grade.

There are many hidden treasures mixed through Independents in the 1980s with the Dave Stevens covers. These have become very popular in CGC 9.8 as they display well and are some of my favorite cover art. Try finding 3-D Zone #16 Space Vixens, an amazing cover. Online sales have been around $35.00 for VF copies.

1990s Comics: An era with high print runs and the collapse of Marvel along with thousands of comic book stores. Will there ever be any long term hot in demand books from the 1990s. The sifting has been going on for 12-20 years already, so what nuggets will get sifted out of all the clutter of overprinted hoarded books. Start looking at the lower print runs of the late 1990s and limited variants and Platinum editions. We have seen strong demand for Superman #75 Platinum sealed $100.00, CGC 9.6 $150.00, CGC 9.8 $450.00, Spider-Man #1 Platinum NM $100.00, CGC 9.6 $180.00, CGC 9.8 $500.00.

There should be some line corrections to the Amazing Spider-Man run in Near Mint- condition: #400 White $35.00, #406 Variant $100.00, #430 $10.00 #431 $25.00 #432 Variant $25.00. Uncanny X-Men #297 Gold Pressman variant is very scarce, sales realized of CGC 9.6 $650.00, CGC 9.4 $315.00. Batman: Vengeance of Bane turned into an overnight hot book when they announced Bane was in the upcoming Batman film. Near Mint copies go for around $35.00, with CGC 9.6 going for $80.00 and CGC 9.8 around $200.00. Batman Adventures #12 is the first comic appearance of Harley Quinn and this should have a line item as it sells for around $25.00 in Near Mint, and $125.00 in CGC 9.8.

New Mutants #98, first Deadpool, is still a mega key of the decade, with raw NM copies selling for $60.00 to $80.00, CGC 9.6 $100.00-$120.00, CGC 9.8 $200.00. New Mutants #87 has taken second fiddle to the #98 as it sells $25.00-$35.00 raw and $125.00 in CGC 9.8. A rare variant is the Wolverine #145 Nabisco variant, there are over 250 copies graded by CGC. NM copies sell in the $200.00-$300.00 range, CGC 9.8 $700.00, CGC 9.6 $300.00, CGC 9.4 $250.00. Some other hot books are the final run of G.I. Joe #150-155, and Transformers #70-80, CGC 9.8 copies sell for a premium. The Deadpool run from 1997 has cooled from a year ago, the Punisher issues #54 and #55 sell in the $20.00 per book range in NM, the other common issues are in the $3.00-$5.00 NM range.

Oh those pesky Super Mario Brothers by Valiant, cool nostalgia comic books, they move well for us at $10.00-$20.00 each. The Legend of Zelda issues are also popular in the $10.00-$20.00 range for NM copies.

2000-2005 Comics: An era where print runs are lower as stores try to sell through all copies while back issue space is eliminated from many stores. The mega key is Walking Dead #1, with raw copies in NM selling for $300.00-$400.00, CGC 9.2 $300.00, CGC 9.4 $350.00, CGC 9.6 $450.00, CGC 9.8 $600.00; #2 NM selling for $150.00, CGC 9.6 $150.00, CGC 9.8 $300.00; #3 NM $80.00, CGC 9.8 $200.00; #4 NM $70.00 CGC 9.8 $150.00; #5 NM $50.00 CGC 9.8 $100.00; #19 NM $50.00 CGC 9.8 $150.00.

Another mega key is Batman #608 retailer incentive, very scarce and is a hot book on eBay. Some sales observed this year: CGC 9.8 $2,000-2500.00, 9.6 $800-1000.00, 9.4 $500.00, 9.2 $500.00, 9.0 $500.00, 8.5 $350.00. This book is 10 years old and estimated print run is higher than 200.

Spawn is one of the most collected runs in the past 20 years. I have yet to go to a comic book store or a booth at a show where they had the entire run for sale individually. Issues #1-99 are for the most part common and can be found for $1.00-$3.00 each without too much effort, and #18 and #21 are not low distribution. Dealers typically have huge gaps when you get from issue #100-199. There are some scarce issues in that era as print runs were a fraction of the high print runs of the first 50 copies.

Common issues are going for $5.00-$10.00 per book. The #150 has 5 variant covers and they sell in the $35.00-$50.00 range each in NM on eBay.

Spawn #185 had

McFarlane returning to the run, there are two variants, a headless McFarlane variant which goes for $80.00-$100.00 in NM, and the extremely rare Sketch Variant by Portacio has recorded sales this year of CGC 9.2 $390.00, and a CGC 9.4 signed by McFarlane $725.00 and a NM raw copy signed by McFarlane sold on eBay for $495.00. Spawn #1 Black and White Edition from 1997 had a limited print run with NM copies selling for $100.00 CGC 9.6 $250.00, CGC 9.8 $600.00.

In closing I would like to motivate everyone to support your local comic book store. Try to find a cousin, nephew, or neighbor friend and invite them to tag along to the comic store. It's also a trend to pay with credit or debit, but make an effort to pay for your purchase with cash as margins can be tight on new release material.

Jamie Newbold Southern California Comics

Greetings! I begin this market report with a general overview of our comic book business as of November 2011. The end of 2010 brought a slight boost in business at the store. Following Christmas, our store saw a larger increase in walk-in traffic that lasted right up through the summer. Business dampened a bit after the start of the fall school semester and remained relatively flat up to the date of this article. The DC New 52 made quite a sales impact with the number one issues. The financial pump in the arm off-set waning recent back issue sales (I'm sure just a momentary stall in sales).

The transitory nature of the population of San Diego is always suspect as reason for declining sales. That state of being may be thankfully changing. I watched a news source on television say that fewer Americans are relocating throughout the country this year. Customers exiting San Diego may not be as common through 2012 and we may be able to hold onto them longer.

Our local popularity is supported by the quantity and frequency of traditional back-issue sales. Our competition to acquire and sell Gold/Silver/Bronze comics has expanded our reach into the US market and kept us active over the years. Our proof is the increased frequency of sales outside of San Diego. As for the market- nothing major has changed in overall back issue sales. The usual stuff is selling for the usual prices. Pressed books are more accepted in the market and studies have shown no ill effects to pressed comics. We've dabbled in pressed books and seen quality improvements in their suppleness and appearance. Those changes have translated into better books with higher sticker prices. Still, haggling and discounting have not gone out of fashion. Overstreet prices are starting points but often fail to accommodate for discounted sales. Some constants still remain in place:

CGC books sell better for us on eBay than raw books. Raw books sell better for us at the store than CGC books. Raw books sell better for us at Comic Con. CGC books sell for closer to the mark than raw books (less demand for discounting with CGC books). Our web site sees more hits for raw books than CGC books.

eBay has become a little less friendly to sellers and with the newly applied rules. Also, common back issues that used to sell cheap on eBay are barely selling at all now. Our raw Marvel back issues commonly sell for about one-third of Overstreet. DCs sell at about one-quarter of Overstreet, if they sell at all. That outlet may finally have peaked for us. CGC material sells well but the flood of CGC material in high-grade (pressed, minty fresh copies that did not exist two years ago) has dramatically reduced the prices we would

New comic sales rise and fall with the same inconsistency as previous years. The revamped DC line caused quite a stir with our customers. The numbers initially sold were outstanding. Then, issue 2 happened. Some titles remained popular and sold in numbers vastly larger than previous counterparts. Others dropped off slightly when the buyers did not return. The "issue number one" speculators made DC and our store a lot of money. Then, they did what they do best: they left. The quality of the titles, stories, and art were wonderful. Top-notch stuff! Usually Marvel is the annual go-to comic company; the leader of the pack. Marvel still has dominance in the face of DC's recent successes. Marvel sold in equal or slightly less proportions to DC these past two months. Not because Marvel slipped or did anything wrong, It's because DC did something more dynamic. My customers have overwhelmingly given DC a thumbs-up for their new direction. Here's hoping the quality does not sink with exiting first string writers and artists.

2011 dropped three cool Marvel movies into the theaters and one DC movie. Our expectations were that the Marvel movies would be quality and well attended. The Green Lantern movie had some plotting disappointments and was received as average movie fare, more or less. Our business is strictly print-driven: new and old comics, trade books and the like. Our selection does not necessarily lead to movie tie-in sales. The occasional key book related to a specific movie still drives buyers to find us. The upcoming Avengers movie will most certainly generate buyers for our Avengers number ones. New reader interest following the recent movie releases was minimal.

Conversely, Walking Dead trades and comics flew out the store with the broadcasted television series. Sales on trades were constant for months. Other comic book-to-trade favorites like Y, The Last Man, Chew and Fables are ripe for this kind of exploitation. I see rip-off/adaptations of Fables are on television now.

Important Sales/Purchases: We purchased several unique collections since the summer of 2010. One collection consisted of about 375 Golden Age comics from the mid-1930s to the early 1940s we acquired from the deceased owner's middle aged son. The DCs and Centaurs went quickly. Large runs of Famous Funnies, Ace Comics, King Comics and the like will hang around for awhile and slowly sell at comic conventions. Many of the books did not place high enough to send off to CGC. Those that did were sold quickly, mostly to other dealers. There are still a number of 1930s books that just don't show up often. Fun stuff.

Near the end of 2010, I sealed the deal with a local collector looking to get out. He sold us hundreds of comics but he led with the best. Sixty-Five Timelys! An improbable dream of mine to acquire such a collection finally came true. We've since sold more than half. Once again, many went to other dealers. Marvel Mystery and Human Torch made up a majority of the titles.

Finally, we picked up an original owner collection of about 2,000 1950s to early 1960s comics: Dell, Disney, and DC. A few key books like Mystery in Space #53 and Flash #105. The cheap Disneys turned out to be the most popular when I brought them to a show in Denmark! It was fun seeing hundreds of covers I don't normally see. Most of the books were VG-ish in grade. Many were better from Fine to VF's. Lots of stuff destined to reach more receptive audiences at shows.

Throughout the year, we have purchased small and large collections of Silver Age... mostly Marvel. Consistent buying opportunities abound.

Bronze/Silver and Gold walk into the store every week, in all manner of varieties and conditions. The totality of these collections was important to the success of the 2011 SD Comic Con; important to purchasers at our store who're always looking for the next, new thing to buy.

Speaking of shows...

Comic Cons: We rarely do shows. We did four shows between last summer and now. Terry O'Neill's Orange County show was entertaining and profitable. More customers show up with each show and our increased sales reflect that. Guests were there doing signings and sketches. Terry's raffles were popular and back issues were everywhere. Too bad he's maxed out on exhibitor space. All comic dealers should take advantage of this all back-issue venue.

Oceanside, which is just north of San Diego, held its second annual one-day comic con. We retained a booth from last year and did surprisingly well for such a small, localized show. Rey and Doug (the founders) would like to expand the venue in another location. I hope their growing pains are met with increased dealer/attendee attention. I like their show.

Terry O'Neill also put on a comic con in Copenhagen, Denmark. Four American exhibitors travelled to set up at his show. Terry, Vinnie Zurzulo, Harley Yee, and me (with my loving and sales-savvy wife). The show was small but well attended. Don Rosa, Mike Ploog and Barry Kitson wowed attendees with signatures and sketches. We dealers tested the back-issue market to see what would sell. I got caught up in helping Terry with the multiple tasks he needed to perform. My wife learned her English to Danish cash and coin conversion tables as she sold inexpensive 1950s and 60s low-grade Disneys and funny animal comics to the locals. I wasn't sure if there would be any market for old US comics. I know of the western European fascination with Disney stuff so I loaded for bear with those comics. It turned out to be the right call...I only wish I'd brought more of it.

San Diego International Comic Con: Enormous, packed, overwhelming. And that's just the lobby! We had our best show ever. In terms of sales and little stress, this show was a winner. We sold a little bit of everything and a whole lot of specific things. Our commitment to the back issue market was reaffirmed at this show. Our sales to other dealers were large because of the significant collections we picked up beforehand. I spoke to some of my peers who confirmed they also did well.

Strangely, when I audited our inventory after the show, I was surprised at what didn't sell. Mid-60's Marvels are always some of our strongest inventory. Amazing Spider-Man is the most beefed up inventory we had going into the show. Yet Amazing Spider-Man from the mid-60s was one of our weakest selling titles at Comic Con. Over-saturated or over-priced? They barely sold at a show we were set up to operate for six days. I think I sold more funny animal comics than Spideys this year. Silver Age DCs were a hit for us. They sold well at Terry's Orange County show and they sold well here in San Diego. Raw comics are handled by everyone trying to corner a potential CGC-worthy book. The "Your Book Is Not Mint Enough" crowd was busy looking for their golden opportunities. Don't they think we've already tried our own stock?

One problem that was dealt with this year at San Diego was the theft factor. Several dealers pooled their money and hired a retired police officer to work undercover in the Gold/Silver Age Pavilion. His job was to do what all the security in the building could not - protect the dealers from theft. The job included an exhausting 5 days, at ten hours each - but we believe it paid off. I heard of maybe one booth that got hit. Our security watched a couple of known thieves but could not catch them in the act. The dealers were hyper-sensitive this year and made things tougher on potential thieves. We did watch several attempts by people that were identified in the past. Our undercover guy watched crooks make attempts and taught us how to better protect ourselves. A major aid to theft at the Con is the large tote bags handed out upon entry. We learned that the thieves use them to catch objects on display by holding the bag at hip height and just scooping items right in! It makes them very swift and hard to catch. I wish the Con would stop distributing those "Grand Theft Bags"!

Many of us can't complain about it in person, though. The Con still schedules the in-person feedback opportunity at the most inopportune period of the show. One hour on Sunday afternoon when we are either (a) in line to pay for next year's show, (b) busy protecting our booth from the most intense period of theft, or (c) packing out our inventory to beat the mass exodus that begins less than one hour later. Very frustrating!

Terry O'Neill

Terry's Comics/Nationwide Comics CalComicCon

Sales from 2010 to 2011 have been mostly strong, although sales in certain geographic regions reflect particularly weak economies. Our convention attendance has continued to be high. It seems all comic book conventions have experienced high attendance, although this did not always translate into strong sales. Collectors had enough cash to go through the door but used credit cards for early and low dollar purchases. Shows that were particularly strong this year: Wizard World in Chicago, Wondercon in San Francisco, and Midwest Comicbook Association's SpringCon in St. Paul Minnesota. Catalog orders have been slightly down, but we have made up for this with an increase in our eBay store sales, (we only list CGC graded comics and offer free shipping on all U.S. orders).

Golden Age: Sales have been mixed. At some shows high grade will sell well, at other shows lower grade will sell well. I am befuddled by collectors who, assuming that Golden Age comics are too expensive, will then buy a copy of Amazing Spider-Man #300 or Wolverine V1#1 for hundreds of dollars. We have been selling less Golden Age through our mail order business; this is a new trend. Lower grade comics are still selling at around 85% of Guide. Unfortunately, more collectors want higher grade comics at greater discounts. This trend may cause us to adjust how much we pay for acquiring this material. Mid-to-higher grade Timely, DC, MLJ, and Quality are selling at or above Guide. Short-run titles and lesser known characters like "Green Lama" and "Steel Sterling" are not in demand and, unless very rare, unlikely to end up in collections. Classics, even first prints, are not moving for us at all, although they contain great stories and art. Early Disney comics are selling well at Guide. Some sales of note: Jackpot Comics #1 CGC 7.5@$1,600, Captain America Comics #75 3.5@$585, Hyper Mystery Comics #1

VG+ @$285, Leading Comics #2 VG-@$261, Speed Comics #20 GD-@$255, Sub-Mariner Comics #4 VG@$765, Witness #1 GD+@$405, Green Lantern #17 VG/FN@$350, Phantom Lady #19 VG-@$450.

Atom Age: Many comics from this era are still on collectors' want lists. We try to stock as much as possible, but the supply is limited because print runs were lower, or more likely, many issues were just thrown out. Humor titles with offbeat titles like Crazy, Nuts and Get Lost are selling. Many comics from this era are great reads and have wonderful artwork, and compared to Silver Age Super-hero titles, they are real bargains. Mid-grade Westerns still sell well from the catalog, so if you are having a hard time selling your Westerns, call us.

Teen/Romance comics sell well at less than $30 unless they have Baker art; then the price can be quite high. War comics, mostly Atlas and DC titles, are selling well at Guide prices. Some sales of note: Joker #18 FN+@$150, Joker #22 FN/VF@$185, Dennis the Menace #1 VG+@$145, Cow Puncher #3 VG/FN@$108, Journey into Mystery #1 VG-@$550, Strange Tales #9 FN@$200, Young Men #27 VG-@$319, Phantom Stranger V1#1 GD/VG@$300, Moon Girl #4 GD/VG@$250, Tarzan #1 FN-@$240, Two Gun Kid #3 CGC 9.4@$1200.

Silver Age: Super-hero Marvels are still our best sellers. That being said, we are starting to heavily discount many common issues in VF- or lower grade. Low grade Marvel comics are not selling well unless priced at $5 or less, even if they Guide up to $20. DC comics in lower grade sell a little closer to Guide. We did get a couple of original-owner collections and did well selling higher grade Batman and Detectives. We have not purchased many DC keys in the past year, but the few we got sold fast at near Guide.

Marvel keys are still offered on a regular basis, and they usually sell well at around Guide. Amazing Fantasy #15 is a comic that we have had bad luck with lately. We were paying up to 85% of Guide (in lower grades) but found price resistance while trying to get above Guide. This may be because the Guide price increased so quickly. TV/Movie comics from the Silver Age are selling well at near Guide and Archie comics are selling well if priced right. Some sales of note: Journey into Mystery #83 PGX 4.0@$2500, Tales of Suspense #39 FR/GD@$500, Fantastic Four #5 VG/FN@$900, Avengers #4 FN@$500, Incredible Hulk #1 GVG@$2000, Daredevil #1 FN/VF@$2200, Tales of Suspense #39 VG-@$1400, Avengers #1 GD/VG@$850, Tales to Astonish #43 VF/NM $900, Batman #222 CGC 9.4@$1200, #227 CGC 9.4@$1100, Green Lantern #86 CGC 9.6@$800.

Bronze Age: Most of these comics are very common in all but the highest grades. The exceptions are off-beat titles such as Charlton humor and the few remaining TV comics from that era. However a few odd Marvel and DC titles may be the next big surprise as far as prices go. As always, Hulk #181 is the most requested comic at shows. Interest has increased in Iron Man #55 and Amazing Spider-Man #121, #122 and #129. Some sales of note: Amazing Spider-Man #129 CGC 9.6@ $1900, Giant-Size X-Men #1 CGC 9.2@$1000, X-Men #94 FN/VF@$400, Tomb of Dracula #10 CGC 9.0@$195, Werewolf by Night #32 CGC 9.2@$475, Conan the Barbarian #1 VF-@$186, Iron Fist #14 CGC 9.6@$500.

Magazines: We finally got a collection of Warren magazines in higher-grade. Most early and scarce issues sold fast at slightly above Guide. Savage Sword of Conan in high grade sell at or above Guide. Titles like Rampaging Hulk and Planet of the Apes are beginning to sell again. Horror and Monster titles are still on a lot of want lists, and are steady sellers, especially magazines by Eerie Pubs. Some sales of note: Vampirella

Modern Age & Independents: We only sell very high grade comics from this era; anything less gets wholesaled or put in bargain boxes.

Marvel titles like Wolverine, Daredevil, Spider-Man and X-Men are still selling at or above Guide. DC titles like Batman and Detective sell well near Guide. The Crow and Miracleman are also good Indy sellers. Some sales of note: Amazing Spider-Man #198 CGC 9.8@$550, #300 NM+@$170, New Teen Titans #2 CGC 9.8@$200, Daredevil #168 CGC 9.6 @ $275, #169 CGC 9.8@$250, New Mutants #98 CGC 9.8@$190, Ms. Marvel #1 CGC 9.6@$135, Spectacular Spider-Man #2 CGC 9.6@$275, #27 CGC 9.8@$225, Miracleman #15 CGC 9.8@$306.

Graded books: The best way to sell pre-1975 comics is in very high grade, and it's the only way to get good money out of super high grade Modern comics. It is also the best way to keep really nice comics from getting damaged and to determine if any repairs or restoration was done. If you are looking for a solid investment with a great track record of appreciation, I recommend you consider third party graded comics. Some sales of note: Captain America Comics #46 CGC 5.0 @ $4,000, #18 CGC 5.0@$2800, DC 100 Page Super Spectacular #4 CGC 9.6@$5250, *Sgt. Internet Sales: Most of our Internet sales have been through our eBay store, although we have two websites with over 45,000 items listed. We have had steady sales of our graded comics through this venue. We usually sell only CGC graded books on eBay; we have our entire inventory at www.Terryscomics.com and www.NationwideKomics.com.

In summary, despite the continuing recession of the past three years, our sales remain strong. I want to thank the Overstreet Price Guide staff, our customers, show promoters, and comic sellers that have helped to make the past year a success. I also want to thank all the investors that included comics as tangible assets in their portfolios. If you are collecting for fun, profit, or nostalgia you are participating in a truly great American hobby.

Michael Pavlic Purple Gorilla Comics

Purple Gorilla Comics is for people who love comics! People who love to read, collect and talk about them. I've made it my mission to create new readers, to bring back the lapsed ones and to accomodate the current ones. Since my store is located in a weekend only flea market and all I sell are back issues, I've had to work hard over the last three years to establish a good reputation and to stand out from the other comic stores in town.

I look at and count every page of every comic I sell. It wouldn't matter if it's an Amazing Spider-Man #1 or a Dazzler #23, I would treat and grade them the same way. So far, I've gone through more than 35 000 comics, with more being counted every week! I've been called crazy for doing so, but I've yet to have a single comic returned due to condition. It's what I'd expect when I buy comics for me, why would I give my customers any less?

I try to have a diverse selection of comics, from the most popular to the most obscure. Newer or older, high grade or low, Archie or Underground, all are welcomed to Purple Gorilla Comics with a new bag and board. If I can find it, I will carry it, no matter the publisher, genre or age.

Being in a flea market has shown me that the proper display of comics will not only attract comic collectors, but people who have never read a comic in their life. Sometimes, you can even turn non-readers into collectors! I believe there is a comic for every person, many of them just don't know it yet!

Purple Gorilla Comics is a celebration of a unique North American art form: comic books. I enjoy talking to people about comics, answering any question, if I can, suggesting comics they might like or listening to their stories of comics long since thrown out by their Mom. These connections are important to me and because of this, I've chosen to never buy or sell on-line. Never will. Maybe I've missed out on some great comics or sales, but, somehow, I've managed to amass 100,000 comics and sales have doubled every year. So, I think I'm doing all right!

Many comic stores have abandoned the back issues, unless it's a key book or it's expensive. The average $2-$20 comic, which comic stores were drowning in, were shoved aside for trade paperbacks and toys (which comic stores seem to be drowning in now, but that's another topic!).

Many comics were dumped into $1 (or less) bins, usually unsorted and unloved by the owners. I always thought this was a mistake. Done right, back issues can be more profitable than trades ever could!

While Purple Gorilla Comics does have older comics, the majority of my stock is from 1982-1996. These are, for the most part, the easiest comics to find. Fortunately for me, my best selling titles, either as single issues or as sets, read like a top twenty list from Wizard Magazine circa 1994!

I'm finding a noticeable difference between the buying habits of comic collectors and casual readers: collectors generally buy superhero comics while readers are more interested in comics with pop culture tie-ins (movies, TV, music, video games). Collectors mostly buy single issues, readers prefer sets.

Bronze/Copper/Modern Age: In terms of single issue sales, Marvel greatly outsells every other publisher. As you would expect, any key issue like Secret Wars #8, Incredible Hulk #340, Wolverine #1 (1988) sell easily for Guide as do the Amazing Spider-Man and Uncanny X-Men titles. Other good selling Marvels include: Hulk, Silver Surfer, Wolverine, Spider-Man (1990), Iron Man, Thor, Ghost Rider (1990), G.I. Joe and Transformers. Any non-key issue of these titles can sell in the $3-$5 range. Surprisingly popular are: Cloak and Dagger, Rom, Alpha Flight, Micronauts, Dreadstar, Warlock and What If? (1st and 2nd series.).

DC's strong sellers include: Batman, Swamp Thing, Hellblazer, Sandman, Green Lantern, Flash and anything by Alan Moore and Neil Gaiman. I sell far more DCs as sets than I do as single issues. As for the other Modern publishers, Buffy, Hellboy, Spawn, Evil Ernie, Lady Death and anything by Alan Moore and Frank Miller all move briskly.

Silver Age: Like everywhere else in the world, high grade anything sells well. So does Amazing Spidey and X-Men. For the most part, my experiences mirror the market's as a whole. I will mention that I do sell a fair amount of lower grade Silver Age to people who want an original comic but are unwilling to spend huge money on a high grade copy. These people want to read, to enjoy their comic! In the case of Dell westerns, I've had beautiful copies of Lone Ranger comics gather dust at the $70-$100 range while "well-loved" copies in the $15-$40 range fly out the door! In fact, most non-super hero comics in this era are an easier sell in lower grades.

That covers what the "hard core" collectors are buying. Since I'm located in a flea market, I have hundreds of people walking by my store every weekend, representing every socio-economic demographic you can imagine. For these folks, nostalgia is the driving force behind their comic purchases. From the 70 year old man who loved Tarzan comics as a kid to the 25 year old woman who loves Ren and Stimpy and had no idea there was a comic, these are the kinds of people who buy from me. In every case, they did not come to the flea market to buy comics, it was the furthest thing from their minds, yet they leave with a comic or two or a set. Classics Illustrated, any Dell/Gold Key movie or TV tie-in,

Little Lulu, Flintstones, Jetsons, Sabrina, Josie and the Pussycats, Scooby-Doo, Sgt. Rock, Sgt. Fury, Rawhide Kid (and other Marvel westerns) are popular with the over-50 crowd. High grade is not a concern to these folks, indeed, more often it would scare them off due to the high price. The younger buyers like TMNT, Sonic the Hedgehog, anything to do with the WWF/WWE, Buffy, Archie, Sailor Moon, Pokemon and Freak Bros.

Sets: In one short year, sets of comics have become an integral part of my business. Sets are either a complete story (eg. Frank Miller's "Born Again" story in Daredevil), a mini-series or five sequential issues of a title. Sales of sets really took off once I had amassed about 200 of them (I have more than 350 now, more being created every week!). The selection became diverse enough to offer something to almost everyone. Sets are an easy entry point for casual readers and new collectors. Sets account for anywhere between 20%-40% of total sales, depending on the week. Prices for sets range between $10-$50.

Again, comics from the 1980s-1990s dominate sales. Venom, Spawn, Spider-Man (1990), X-Men, Wolverine, Lobo, Batman, Infinity Gauntlet/War/Crusade, Secret Wars 2, Star Wars (Dark Horse), Silver Surfer, Buffy, Hellboy, Ren n Stimpy, Beavis & Butt-Head, Sandman, Superman, Lady Death, Dawn and Deadpool all consistently sell at $15-25 per set. Many titles sell only as sets: Aliens, Predator, Terminator, Hellraiser and Lone Wolf and Cub are examples. I also find that five packs of titles like Marvel Tales, Marvel's Greatest Comics and other reprint titles sell quickly to parents of 8-12 year olds who want kid-friendly comics. The same holds true for the various Batman titles spun-off from the cartoons.

More than three years ago Purple Gorilla Comics began with eight long boxes. Today there are 35 000 comics for sale, with more coming all the time! A lot of hard work went into making the store what it is today, and I've loved every minute of it!

Jim Pitts Avalon Collectibles

A tough, and wacky, year in the world of paper that saw me having to be more resourceful in finding shows to do that money can be made at. While the big companies seem to rake in all the biz these days, there is still stuff to find, and a few bucks to be made along the way. With signs of economic improvement, hopefully people start shopping for more collectibles in the coming year. Here's a quick overview of my last year.

Golden Age: A year where I scored more than usual, though mostly Humor and Funny Animal. I also got a wooden trunk full of low to mid grade Archie titles from around the end of WWII to the early '50s. Sales in this area included: Adventure Comics #62 GD $250, Adventures of Bob Hope #1 FR/GD $200, Adventures of Bob Hope #3 GD $60, Airboy Comics V3#9 VG $75, Air Fighters Comics #7 FR/GD $150, Air Fighters Comics #9 GD $80, about 25 issues of Archie between #18 and #60 with an average grade of VG on 'em going for between $60 and $100 each on eBay, Archie's Pal Jughead just over 20 issues in GD/VG between #3 and #35 that went for an average of $60 each, some first edition Classics (many with clipped order forms) #24 VG (clipped) $40, Classic Comics #26 VG (pencil) $200, Classic Comics #27 VG (clipped) $35, Classic Comics #33 GD/VG (pencil) $150, a small batch of Four Colors that were highlighted by a VG #108 (brown pages) $280, and 29 issues of Walt Disney's Comics and Stories between issues #37 and #100 with an average grade of GD on those. A small amount of Horror comics, Movie titles, and Atlas war also crossed my path over the year!

Silver Age: An area where competition for key books has hit an all time high! I had a couple of key Marvels this year that were on consignment. They included: Avengers #4 VG $400, #5 VG $80, Incredible Hulk #6 VG $200, Journey Into Mystery #83 FR/GD $1000. The key DCs I had included Adventure #247 GD/VG (Rest.) $500, Brave and the Bold #34 VG (Am. Rest.) $250, The Flash #110 VG- $300, Justice League of America #2 GD $110, several other early issues of Superboy, and World's Finest Silver Age issues. Low grade issues of Fantastic Four below #100, X-Men below #50, Captain America below #150 and Avengers below #50 didn't stay long in my boxes. Low grade DC War titles seemed to be in constant demand from people with big want lists! There were also some early Silver Age Archie titles left over from the collection I picked up with those issues selling decently in the $15 to $20 range.

Bronze Age: No massive sales for me in this area, but titles keep on moving! Both DC and Marvel Horror and War books seem to be the anchor of sales for me in this area. Conan titles do well, and when I can find them High Grade Harvey comics from the late '60s through the mid '70s have lots of people looking to fill their want lists. The Atlas/Seaboard titles have a lot of interest as well in FN or better. Swamp Thing, Conan, Batman, Incredible Hulk, X-Men, War, and Horror were what I was asked for all year long.

Modern Age: Not an area I make a lot of money off of, but these were the things I was asked for a LOT during the year: Alan Moore titles, War titles, Zombie books, Iron Man, and Thor were books people couldn't get enough of.

Big Little Books: I only had a few to sell this year, all in great shape though! They included: Andy Panda's Vacation FN/VF $60, Blondie and Dagwood Some Fun FN/VF $40, Bugs Bunny the Masked Marvel VF $75, and several of the early '70s ones in VF/NM for $15 to $25 each.

Undergrounds: My best seller year round as I have people looking for something at every show! While I didn't have any record setting sales I sold several copies of early (tabloid) issues of Yellow Dog at $50 to $75 each. Cherry Poptart has slowed, but demand for early first printings still outstrips supply. I sold most of the issues from a run I purchased where every issue was signed, first prints up through the 3D issue. Issue #1 VF (signed) $185, #2 (signed) $50, #11 3D issue (signed) $40. Several copies of Spains Trashman Tabloid went through my hands this year in the $30 to $60 range. Crumb titles remain the “King of the Jungle” with the cheaper priced first printings of his books moving quickly in the $15 to $100 range!

See ya at the shows everybody!

Bill Ponseti Collector

2011 was, in many ways, very dissimilar to 2010.

2010 was the year of record sale after record sale. Although, there were a fair amount of big sales in 2011 the market clearly had cooled off some from the prior year's frenzied pace. Throughout the year, I often heard negative sentiment about the overall sales health of the hobby, but some incredible individual sales of high grade Golden Age key comics provided a distraction from some of the nay saying. However, even in a year of market correction downward, plenty of comics and cash changed hands in all segments that I track. My one question for the year is when will the flood of big collections and super high grade big key issues slow down? Based on what has surfaced in the final quarter of the year, my guess is not for a while.

Golden Age: As alluded to above, record prices are still being realized for the truly important comics from this period. Pop culture will always have a place for Superman, Batman and Captain America, and comic collectors with big wallets are finding more incredible copies featuring these characters to spend record sums of money on. Three million dollars for a comic book seems more and more likely as higher and higher graded copies of Action Comics #1 are released into the market. One very pleasant observation from 2011 in this segment was the migration into Golden Age collecting by Silver Age collectors continuing to happen month after month. Folks are finding the challenge of collecting Golden Age, and the wide variety of genres and titles out there, an appealing change from the silver age. The upward spiral of the aforementioned iconic heroes has not brought their lesser regarded brethren along with them. In fact, I can't remember a year when some of the titles and issues that were once so hot and sought after could be had for a better bargain than in 2011. I don't think this is a one year syndrome either. These books have been trending downwards for a while now. As much as I love them, All-American #16, Adventure Comics #40, #48, #61, and especially #73 are due for considerable downward correction in the Guide. The same is true for Flash Comics #1, All Star Comics #3 and #8, Sensation Comics #1, Wonder Woman #1, Whiz Comics #2(#1), and yes even the once much coveted and highly regarded Marvel Comics #1. All of these books are more affordable now than they have been in many years. For collectors this is a nice change, for dealers, not so much.

Silver Age: One thing that has always been true about Silver Age key comics, especially Marvels, is that they are basically currency in the hobby. No other sub-segment of the hobby has been as liquid as these books have been over the years. While this is still very true, some of them have been a bit less liquid than in years past. High grade examples still continue to sell for nosebleed and record prices. Mid-grade issues for some titles have trended up as well. However lower grade copies of X-Men #1, Fantastic Four #1, Amazing Spider-Man #1, Brave and the Bold #28, Justice League #1, Showcase #8, #22 and Adventure Comics #247 all are selling at much lower prices than recent years. Journey into Mystery #83 has gotten pretty expensive in mid to high grades, and I don't think it was due to the movie hype. As with any year, mid-run Silver Age comics in mid to low grades simply don't sell anywhere near Guide levels and all need to be priced 30-50% lower than they are listed.

Original Comic Art: The bargain train here left a long time ago. Unlike comics, large caches of original comic art aren't sprouting from trees and entering the market. We did see some fantastic Golden Age covers come to market thanks to Jerry Robinson, but for the most part much of what can be found has been found. When a previously complete book of art is broken up and offered for sale, I advise you take advantage of that opportunity and buy a nice page when it does happen. The few times I've tracked this in the past, these pages seem to disappear for a while after such an event and when they do resurface, the prices are much higher. You can't go wrong collecting the great artists as they never seem to go out of style.

Outlook: 2012 is looking to be similar to 2010 as far as record sales for big books. From what I've seen this last quarter of 2011 and what has been previewed for the first quarter of 2012, stand by for action! If you have been on the fence about going after a key Silver Age or Golden Age book due to price, 2012 should be a good year for you to get off that fence and scoop it up. I don't see the downward trend in the areas that went down in 2011 being reversed next year. Yet, I am very optimistic about the overall health of the hobby and still find it to be a ton of fun to collect comics. Life offers enough stress, so comics should not be part of that stress. Not worrying about the value of my collection has taken the stress out of the hobby altogether. So buy what you love and you can afford and you'll always smile when you look at your comic collection.

Jeff Rader and Cat Jones Offbeat-Archives Auctions and Consignments

My last report was met with wonderful feedback, so thanks so much to all that wrote or called. Hopefully we can keep the momentum going this year, and many years following.

Not to disparage popular High Grade stuff, but it just is not our area of expertise. We won't be reporting any earth-shaking prices (not yet at least) – there are others far more suited for that. Our thrill is reporting on the neglected areas in which a collector on a budget can find truly enjoyable books without taking out a second mortgage. There are still bargains out there to be had. I have always specialized in the esoteric, arcane, rare, unlisted, unknown, etc. There's nothing like opening a book and finding something that has gone overlooked for decades of fandom.

On top of our own stock of crazy stuff we have started taking consignments this year, with sellers happy to have their books listed in the "Offbeat" fashion, and realizing "Offbeat" prices, many times ending at multiples of Guide.

Our report is not primarily set out to show what prices can/should be, but how much more enjoyable our hobby can be for those collectorss that love to read through their accumulations and see how much fun has been overlooked over the ages, along with how such gems can be had for a pittance. This is what keeps collecting comics the thrilling hobby that it is to me. Following is only a handful of observances, including some un-noted appearances, artwork, drugs, atomic bombs, from the past year but check in next year as I will be passing on a lot of info to the Guide's editors.

If you do enjoy reading, and digging through, your books there's always that chance that you can make a discovery first-hand instead of letting the market dictate your purchases. Our aim is to let you know what lies inside those books, to seek out info, and spread the word.

Different niche collectors make darn near everything collectible (Dazzler #1 excluded!) Foreign comics have a following that rivals nearly anything going on in mainstream comicdom. Just try to land early copies of Australia's The Phantom. Australian DCs have been causing a bit of a stir lately themselves, though information is lacking, and there are not enough left to meet demand. Canadian Whites are rare, and highly coveted, while their versions of U.S. titles had print runs that were dwarfed by their U.S. counterparts, and the variations in covers, stories, and ads, make for interesting comparisons. British comics have finally started getting some recognition with titles that never made it to the States, or variations that fit perfectly with their Stateside titles.

Non-comic collectors don't care what the "Guide value" is on something that had cross-over interest to them. Golf covers bring out the duffers like it's the PGA tour. Barbers will bid far fiercer for a Barber Pole cover than most comic collectors, and they do not care what the grade is. Other niches that sell well are those with covers featuring playing cards, Universal monsters (Archie Comics had some great ones in the late '50s and early '60s), gorillas, hot rods, chess, Indians (and please, no PC comments – I am Native, and the covers and stories do not offend me in the slightest), and too many more to list. Holiday covers have come into their own and there is a complete different group of collectors that battle it out for covers with Christmas, Halloween, Thanksgiving, Easter, etc. themes. This is another type of collector that often cares less about condition and current value than run collectors. Genre collectors often overlook Platinum, also. I could go on listing un-heralded gems for pages but in deference to my fave marketplace reporter, Doug Sulipa, I'm gonna keep it to a low uproar, but there will be countless more next year.

While there will be some input into prices we have sold books for, and a few purchases, much will be primarily for those looking for those fun bits that are primary unknown and/or overlooked, and are a load of fun to seek out and read. We hope to add to your want lists with the info below, and go out of our way to fill those same lists.

Platinum tidbits: Buster Brown His Dog Tige & Their Jolly Times, from 1906, has yet another version to go along with the two already listed. The version we sold, a Good+ for $153.00, is the larger size of the earlier version but had 58 pages (we thoroughly checked this book and there were no pages missing). The later version had 46 pages so maybe this was a transitional issue between the two. A Buster Brown On His Travels, from 1910, in stunning, bright shape went for $249.50. Buster Brown's Happy Days, 1911, has a very early aviation cover, with Buster, Tige, and Buster's uncle (looking a lot like Thomas Edison), in flight on an early Wright Brothers glider. Hawkshaw the Detective, was popular enough at the time to run thorough 3 printings and our Very Good- 1st print sold for $43.00

You think Good Girl artwork started in the Golden Age? Nope! Grab a Bringing Up Father. Many have flappers galore and they were just as Good Girl, for being a century old, as much that qualified later.

Your collection of Commie-themes comics will never be complete without a copy of Mutt and Jeff #7, from 1920, in which Jeff violently pounds a guy for being a Red Bolshevik.

For those avid Archie collectors out there, give Harold Teen a shot.

The first issue, from 1929, has all the makings that made Archie and the Gang what they became. It also has a great early aviation theme with a couple mentions of Charles Lindbergh, and Harold trying to emulate his hero, not very long after Man took to winged flight.

There are also volumes of great stuff to be found in the Golden Age. While much has been researched, there is just as much, if not more, that is still to be noted. We went through an huge collection of ACG and Charlton titles and there were cameos, appearances, artwork, etc. that deserves acclaim but has been overlooked until now. We also sold countless Romance comics, Humor, Funny Animal, and even Superhero, and there are items of note in just about everything...but they do not get noticed until the comic gets read. That's where our propensity for reading everything (GEN-TLY) that comes through our hands comes in handy to us, and our consignors.

There's Good Girl art from nearly a century ago to be found in Bringing Up Father. (#18 shown)

Adventures Into the Unknown #15 has a tale in which the Goths come to get vengeance on Hitler in an unlisted, post-war appearance. #38 has an atomic bomb panel, #80 has a Hydrogen bomb/mushroom cloud panel.

Cookie is another title for those that love vintage Archies but can get loads of the same hilarity, and GGA galore – much by Al Hartley, for a fraction of the price. This title is also full of great celebrity cameos and appearances that have gone under the radar. #2 features the unlisted 1st appearance of Tee-Pee Tim, who later took over Ha Ha Comics, and converted it into his own title. Bing Crosby makes a guest appearance in #8, while #12 has a sexy Hawaiian cannibal gal, Cookie in blackface drag, and a Hedy Lamarr mention all in the same story! #13 has what is probably the 1st comic book mention of “Jackie Robinson of the Dodgers” as he had just crossed the baseball color line. Gregory Peck makes an appearance on the cover of #15, and in #16 a photography studio lists “U.B. Iwerks”, the true creator of Mickey Mouse, as the photographer. #18 has a Jane Russell-type, Jane Bustle, by Al Hartley, and he sure got her anatomically correct, while Cookie takes a dog to see a Lassie movie in #19. #26 has an unlisted story by Milt Gross, along with an unlisted Starlet O'Hara tale. Starlet also has unlisted appearances in #28, and #30. This title is ripe for the picking for the curious.

ACG's horror entry, Forbidden Worlds has some gems. Issue #3 is stated as having artwork by Al Williamson, and Joe Orlando, but after checking with a few experts it has been determined that Williamson's work was definitely inked by Wallace Wood. The artistic mastery of this story, with a panel by Frazetta even, rivals that of any of the other work these gents did over at EC Comics. A Fair copy sold for $33.00. #5 has all that makes for a must-have book with a Sub-Mariner-looking “monster” that seeks revenge on Red Communists that decimated his people with an atomic bomb. The kicker is that to help revive him, after killing the Russians, an American sub commander shoots him up with speed to revive him. ?!?! A Good- went for $16.88. ACG's editor, Richard Hughes, supposedly wrote the vast majority of ACG stories, and in this one there's a story of a writer that sells his soul for Satan's typewriter and the last couple pages take place in Hughes' office at ACG. A Good- sold for $25.76.

For the Western collector, Gene Autry makes a 4-panel appearance in Funny Films #4, and there are mentions of Jack Dempsey, Hedy Lamarr, Milton Berle, Gorgeous George, and Joseph Stalin.

Operation Peril was to ACG what Venus was to Atlas, in that they just couldn't figure out what they wanted to do with the title. Their indecisiveness worked out to our benefit because this title hit quite a few great genres and makes for one of the coolest short-run (meaning: attainable) titles around. In a short pre-Code 16-issue run they worked in adventure, crime, mystery, war, science fiction, and horror, so in this one you get everything from gun-toting adventurers, time-travelers, dead commies, bug-eyed monsters, dinosaurs, aliens, cave men, undersea adventure, some Good Girl Art thrown in for good measure, and a heck of a lot more. The Time Travelers feature, in #1-12, beat out Rip Hunter by a decade. Harry S. Truman makes a cameo and talks about atomic war in #2, and #3 has a horror tales about Jivaros and shrunken heads. #6 should be of interest the DC Big Five war collectors as it has a tank vs. a T-Rex cover a whole 9 years before Star Spangled War Stories combined war and dinosaurs in #90.

Out of the Night #1 has a story in which a werewolf dies of...a drug overdose! How can you beat that? It also features ACG's 1st editor's page, with Richard Hughes soliciting feedback from the readers. #2 is a doozie in that, after consulting a few experts, we have come to the conclusion that the 5-page story by Al Williamson had some inking assistance from his pal, Frank Frazetta, just as he did in Forbidden Worlds #3 but with quite a bit more. For the gore-hounds, #12 has an Arabian slave trader that pays a hell of a price for cutting the tongues out of a caravan of nomads.

Lev Gleason's Boy Loves Girl #28 (#4) has a great hero-in story, and a bright pink cover that is notoriously difficult to find unfaded.

We have no problem selling copies of the EC/Charlton 1st variant of Impact #1. The relatively unknown story behind this one makes it a must-have curiosity. Grant Geissman, EC expert-extraordinaire told me that there was mention of it in Overstreet by Bob and Russ Cochran “opening the Gaines File Copy packages for sale, around 1990 or so. This report has it a bit wrong, because it concluded that the one copy of the Charlton printing found in Gaines's files was the only copy extant, which of course is not correct. Jerry Weist and Roger Hill were the first people to discover the Impact #1 first printing, which they brought in and showed to Gaines some time in the late 1960s. Gaines then related to them the story that you see in Collectibly Mad.” That story is that Gaines, looking to save money, originally farmed the printing job out to Charlton. The quality was so atrocious that Gaines ordered the entire run destroyed. Obviously a few escaped mass extinction because there are still some out there to be found. The logo is white instead of yellow, the quality is far inferior, and they have that “Charlton feel” to them.

Charlton's Danger and Adventure #22 (#1) happens to feature the last Golden Age appearance of Ibis, who went into hibernation until he was revived by DC years later.

For the lover of pre-code horror and crime, Fight Against Crime #12 has a story of a doctor that gets his patient addicted to morphine on purpose, along with a violent tale of some thugs that work over a fortune teller and light his turban on fire. What the...???

Even incomplete comics have seekers nowadays as we sold a Wings #1 with a partial cover, no staples, and last 6 pages missing for over $50.00.

Giggle Comics is another wonderland for unknown oddities and awesomeness. They are also full of covers and artwork by the extremely under-rated Ken Hultgren, who has a quiet fan base that do just about anything for his work. Along with the 1st appearance of the long-running Superkatt, #9 also features the 1st appearance of many of his racist depiction of an big-lipped African-American maid. Giggle #10 had Superkatt shooting Japanese planes, and in #10 he goes up against a Nazi robot. Giggle #14 has Superkatt on the splash page getting ready to put a medal on a Nazi kommandant's chest...with a huge nail and hammer right over his heart. Superkatt takes on a Nazi U-boat and a bunch of Nazis. Spencer Spook, who eventually took over this title, makes his 2nd appearance in #22. Bob Hope and Bing Crosby make an appearance at the 1947 Academy Awards on the splash page of Superkatt in #46. Giggle #44 features "Mussel-Man", a Superman parody, and Witch Hazel makes her 1st appearance in #45. Want to see how an evil Santa Claus with an atomic bomb would look? Try issue #49, which has a great Christmas cover as well. Giggle #61 has some unlisted artwork by Milt Gross, along with a nice Christmas cover, and both Bob Hope, and Frank Buck appear in the Superkatt story. Another great Christmas cover, #69, sold for $26.55 in VG. In #70 Superkatt's island pals get relocated to the States so that they can use their island for atomic bomb tests.

Ha Ha was the companion title to Giggle, and just as fun. Ha Ha #44 has a racist Little Black Sambo appearance, with a huge bone in his hair, and big lips, and also has what I think is the 1st Tee-Pee Tim appearance. Ha Ha #95 is an oddball book with its 3-D effect cover and the fact that, as is the same in #96, the borders on all the interior pages are all colored either red, green, or blue. It looks pretty cool but must not have gone over too well because it didn't last long.

For the connoisseur of hillbilly love, Romantic Adventures #7 is the one for you. This one has a great story about a city slicker who takes on a bet that he can't take a hillbilly gal from her shotgun-toting Pa and civilize her. Her Pa smacks her until she agrees so she leaves with the rich guy to get scrubbed in a tub, taught to speak properly, festooned with jewelry, and taught to be a lady. After her conversion, and she becomes a TV star, they end up back in the swamp fighting a gator and finding love.

While it has been surmised that the first issue of Li'l Genius has been #5, we have corresponded with a couple of the leading Charlton collectors and have come to the conclusion that #5 does not exist, and that #6 is actually (#1). #11 has an appearance by Li'l Tomboy, that is tied with her 1st appearance in her own title in 10/56. You collectors of atomic bombs, and Communist spies will find a must-have in this title too, as #34 has Li'l Genius up against Commie terrorists trying to blow up a dam, and has an atomic bomb/mushroom cloud...??? Yep, it's gotta be a Charlton.

Along with #1 and #2, My Little Margie #3, #4 and #14 have photo front and back covers as well. Issue #44 includes everything that made Charlton so crazily unique. It has a great UFO cover and story, but that was not enough. There is an ad for "Wate-On" featuring a scantily-clad June "The Bosom" Wilkinson, better known for her Playboy appearances. Issue #52 has a strip, "The American Way", with a panel of Nikita Khrushchev ranting like he had just been denied entry to Disneyland.

If you are a Turok fan then you must give the scarce Space Western #45 a gander. It has a story, The Valley That Time Forgot, that was a pre-Turok story about a valley that has escaped the ravages of time and is occupied by battling dinosaurs, and a bow-toting Indian. Sound familiar? It sure looks familiar. I really would not doubt if someone over at Dell got a gander at this story a year before Turok made his debut in Four Color #596, in 12/54. This one is easily more of a prototype issue than many of the pre-hero Marvel prototypes can claim to be. Our glossy, Off-White Fine+/Very Fine-copy sold for $132.45.

Some other sales we made were Planet Comics #47 in GD/VG- for $44.33, #57 in Fine- $103.51, #58 in VG- $56.00, #62 in GD+ $38.95, and #63, with a wild phallic cover, in VG $73.55. Blue Bolt v9 #5, with a Fish-In-Face cover by L.B. Cole in VG+ $36.01. Baffling Mysteries #14, glossy Fine $56.55. Battle Stories #8, with a Commie Colonel murdering U.S. POWs – Fine $26.30. A nice, complete Donald Duck Fun Book #1 in VG+ $57.89. United States Marines #2, with a racist bloody Tojo cover in VG+ $57. Black Knight #1 in VG $96.00. Marvel Mystery Comics #88, with the second appearance of Sun Girl in VG- $165.72. Strange Adventures #1 in VG+ $379.01. Superman #32 in VG+ $173.51. Green Mask v2 #5 in Fine+ 41.00. Racket Squad #12, with a classic Ditko bomb cover, Fine+ $79.00. We also sold two rare format books that are always in high demand. Our Good copy of It Rhymes With Lust went for $206.00 with some fervent bidding, and a VG+ copy of the Dell Told in Pictures – Four Frightened Women went $54.11.

Silver and Bronze Age did well for us also, and there are still countless discoveries to be made there as well. In last year's report we listed what we had done with the first half of a near-complete run of Charltons. For the collector that finds their kicks in comics with pin-ups and posters Charlton wins hands-down. This year we wrapped them up and what we found is listed below, along with other finds and sales.

Attack #6 a great commie Russian nuclear (that's "nuclear" for all you news commentators and politicians) submarine story and #8 has an unlisted Richard Nixon make a brief appearance as his General fills him in on the situation.

While the previous two issues of Atomic Mouse featured Hoppy the Marvel Bunny, something must have gone awry with the rights to Hoppy because in #16 the red-suited Hoppy is gone and "Happy the Magic Bunny" appeared. It must be a heck of a coincidence because when Happy yells, "Alizam!" a marvelous bunny in a blue super-suit shows up. Yep, coincidence. Blondie #212 has a GREAT Super-Dagwood cover & story. The best thing about Bo #1 and #3, other than the fact that they are definitely NOT common, are the unlisted Noodnik the Eskimo stories that Charlton must have picked up the rights to after Noodnik's own title was canceled the year before.

Fightin' Air Force #22 has a President Dwight D. Eisenhower cameo, and #27 has a great "Area 51"-type USAF vs "UFO" story, until the pilot is shown "the best kept secret in the world today!" Fightin' Army #48 has a Cuban "Power-Mad Dictator" trying to kidnap the current anti-Communist leader to kill him. The lunatic even looks exactly like a ranting Fidel Castro, while #51 has an Adolf Hitler cover and appearances in "Hitler's Private Paradise". Fightin' Army #75 is not the 1st appearance of "The Lonely War of Captain Willy Shultz!". #76 contains the 1st cover, and 1st appearance of the awesome series, "The Lonely War of Capt. Willy Schultz", along with Willy's origin. Willy was falsely framed for a traitorous murder by crooked Captain Wilkes, and spends the series playing the part of a Nazi to avoid execution, and the part of a G.I. when he can to help.

In The Flintstones #38 Pebbles finds a genie and flies to 20th century New York, they see a war at some point in time where an atomic bomb is dropped and they get a gander at a mushroom cloud, and land on the moon. You can't get too much more sci-fi than that!

You a KISS fan? You need to look a bit earlier than Howard the Duck to nab a swipe/1st comic book appearance. Ghostly Haunts #46 has a make-up laden heavy metal band story singing, "Kiss me..Kiss me". In '75 this could not be a take on any other band than KISS.

Go-Go was definitely aimed at the hippie teen set, and is fun from beginning to end, but a few cool things worthy of note are that in #2 Blooperman appears along with a parody of Batman, and a cigar-chomping Robin, and Alfred, along with "The Bestest League of America" with parodies of Green Lantern, Flash, Wonder Woman, the Atom, and Aquaman. Go-Go #6 has a Marvel vs. DC parody "The BLA vs The Marvelous Super-Heroes with swipes at the Human Torch, Captain America, the Wasp, Giant-Man Iron Man, The Hulk, Mr. Fantastic, Thor, Spider-Man, and The Thing vs. twisted versions of the Flash, Hawkman, Wonder Woman, Green Arrow, Green Lantern, Aquaman. Plastic Man, Blackhawk, and more.

Haunted #5 has a Ditko story with characters that look exactly like Peter Parker and Norman Osborn...was Ditko thumbing his nose at Marvel yet again?? (for more examples, a couple blatant, check out my report in last year's Guide). In #26 there is a story with some crazy wife-beating going on - how that got past the Comics Code Authority is anybody's guess. Haunted #39 has a shotgun blast point-blank in the face panel, a Sutton story with over-the-top SEXY Good Girl

Art throughout and a topless panel. Haunted Love #4 has got what must be the weirdest dead headlight cover ever.

Jetsons #9 is a must for any Good Girl Art fancier. Judy Jetson drawn in a way we never got to see her on TV...skimpy bikini, and quite a bit bustier than I remember...woooooooo hooooo! Jetsons #9 has a great Flintstones crossover story, "A Visit to Bedrock".

Just Married #72 has a wild cover and story about swingers and the one newlywed bride that didn't really want to play along. Only in Charlton... #102 has a crazy story about a guy that ODs on uppers and downers and later knocks his wife's tooth out with a right hook before his final overdose...?! Love Diary #89 has a text story "Is Your Boyfriend Getting Hooked?" with all the signs to tell if someone is loaded, while #92 has a psychedelic story with a hero-in overdose.

Marines Attack #8 is not noted in the Guide but this is probably the 1st Vietnam War cover on a comic, and one of the very first stories. Marine War Heroes #11 has "First Contact", one of the earliest Vietnam stories - features VC tunnels and moles, and #17 has a story of Tojo's war plans prior to Pearl Harbor, the bombing of Pearl Harbor while Japanese were in Washington discussing "peace", and the bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki - with an atomic bomb/mushroom cloud panel.

Midnight Tales #5 has a SEXY centerfold pin-up of cover-girl Arachne, by Howard. I have never heard of a horror comic having a hot centerfold but WOW!!!

The last issue of My Secret Life, #47, has the unheralded 1st appearance of Sue and Sally Smith, Flying Nurses, who took over the title after this issue.

You like "interactive" stories? Mysteries of Unexplored Worlds #16 has an alien that interacts with the powers-that-were at Derby, Conn. by selling his story to Charlton Comics. Issue #28 has a Communist A-Bomb story in which Khrushchev does his usual tantrum throwing and dies just as he is reaching to push "The Button". If only... #43 also has an atomic bomb panel.

Want an inexpensive alternative to Showcase #4 for the dawn of the Silver Age? Nature Boy #3 (#1) was Charlton's shot at an original superhero from 03/56. When the Golden Age of comics came to a halt, publishers were scrambling to come up with new titles, ideas, and characters to get sales going again. DC's revamping of the Flash, in Showcase #4, from 09-10/56, is usually looked at as kicking off the Silver Age but this new character, by John Buscema, beat the Flash's re-intro by a half a year. This book features Nature Boy's 1st appearance, origin, and even a Nature Man story depicting him after he had matured a bit. This also features the last "Golden Age" appearance of the Blue Beetle and he disappeared for 10 years until his 2nd incarnation in '65.

While the Guide states that Outer Space #17 (#1) contains "Williamson/Wood style art; not by them" the consensus of those in the know is that this story truly was done by Al Williamson and Wallace Wood. I concur, and the artwork is AMAZING! While Sid Check could do some pretty accurate impressions of some of the comic masters, the artwork in this story is unmistakable. A Good copy sold for $19.02. Are you absolutely positive that your Matt Baker collection is complete? If you do not have Out of This World #14 then you're missing one. It has a signed, 7-page unlisted story by the legendary Baker that was one of the last done in his lifetime since his untimely passing was probably very soon after he drew this story. If you are the Baker completionist odds are this book has eluded you, so nab it now. A GD+/VG-copy sold for #13.50

Pebbles and Bamm Bamm #26 has unlisted EARLY pro Mike Zeck artwork in text illos. His only prior fan "pro" non-fanzine work were also unlisted illos. in one issue each of Savage Sword of Conan, and Savage Tales magazines for Marvel.

Charlton's run of The Phantom is one of the most amazing overlooked titles around. The painted covers, artwork by Newton, and storylines are unbeatable. The Phantom #51 has a grey-tone bondage/sacrifice cover, and a 3-page grey-tone story. #52-54 also have grey-tone covers. #67 has a 5-star painted cover, by Newton that is worthy of framing, and Humphrey Bogart, Lauren Bacall, and Peter Lorre are drawn (and drawn very well) into the whole book-length story that has a Maltese Falcon/Casablanca noir-feel to it. The painted flag cover on #74 is second in all of comicdom only to Superman #14. This artwork is absolutely breathtaking! If this were a DC or a Marvel book the price would be through the stratosphere. I can't keep this one in stock.

I have no idea how Popeye #108 has eluded mention before but it has the greatest "Story of..." origin of any character imaginable. It kicks off with Elzie Segar's conception of Popeye in 1929, his transformation over the years, and goes up to the point where George Wildman (wearing a Charlton shirt) draws himself on a full-page panel along with Popeye and many of his cohorts. In #123 Wimpy beats Neil Armstrong to the moon and interrupts his, "One small step for man..." with, "Greetings! You didn't happen to bring a hamburger with you, did you?" #130 has the 1st appearance (and hopefully only) of SuperStuff - A Gorgeous George-looking superhero that Sea Hag conjures up to kick Popeye's tail. #137 is the closest you are going to get to a GGA cover and story with Popeye as Sea Hag turns herself, then all other women, into curvy beauties.

For a wild dino-love tale grab Reptisaurus #5 where he takes a hit from an atomic bomb, pounds the hell out of Beijing, and falls in love with a paper parade dragon from the People's Republic of China.

Romantic Story #26 has a story just as risqué as any Fox jungle girl story and the lead gal looks like – and is dressed like – Sheena. The crazy part is that in one panel the artist drew her with half of her leopard bikini off, exposing her, but the colorist did not dare color her correctly. In #105 there is a crazy woman-beater cover and story in which a doctor smacks a gal for calling him a draft dodger...then she marries him. Go figure...

For the collector of the U.S. Space program Space Adventures #43 is a must. It has an awesome cover featuring Alan Shephard (name misspelled on cover but corrected on splash page) Freedom 7 - cover and story about the second man in space, and 1st American astronaut. This 13-page story, about Shephard – his training – the mission and everything else in detail.

You up for yet another Matt Baker previously unlisted discovery? Who wouldn't be?! Strange Suspense Stories #47 has an 8-page story by Baker. This story was one of the last done by Baker due to his untimely death in '59.

Submarine Attack #16 and #47 have atomic bomb/mushroom cloud panels while #43 has a Cuban Missile Crisis story.

Charlton must have had some brutal writers and artists as the cover of Summer Love #48 says it all...the story title is "The Swingers" and some "groovy" dude is man-handling some gal into submission by her ponytail...what the...??? The story is just as off-the-wall. Sweethearts #44 has a Pat Boone photo cover that has escaped notice until now.

Trying to complete your Judomaster collection? Well things just got switched up a bit for you. Thunderbolt #52 has an unlisted Judomaster story, his 4th appearance that was on the stands the same time as Judomaster #89 (#1). Thunderbolt #53 has an unlisted 2-page Captain Atom story telling the history of atomic power with a panel of the atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima. Lastly, #60 has the 1st appearance, and last, of The Prankster which was Dennis O'Neil's 1st story and drawn by Jim Aparo. The story is pretty funny and, despite the announcement of Prankster's return in the next issue, he disappeared into comic oblivion. Even DC didn't bring him back to life like they did with most other Charlton superheroes.

Just when you think you've seen it all...Charlton pulls another wild stunt. Tiger #3 has an ad for a life-size inflatable doll, with optional bikini, pajamas and wig(?!?!?) but I really think they missed their target audience by a million miles with this one! Only Charlton!!!

The LAST place you would expect to find a Nazi story is in Timmy the Timid Ghost but #27 has a Nazi story with the ghost of a U-Boat captain – swastika and all...yikes!

Self-portrait comics? Try Unusual Tales #13 has great cover of a comic book artist by Dick Giordano (self-portrait?).

War at Sea #26 features "Pearl Harbor...The Day of Infamy" story with an unlisted Franklin Roosevelt appearance while #42 has a story of U.S. occupation in Cuba with countless appearances of a loud-mouth Fidel Castro, and some of his obnoxious "Yanqui"-hating commie cohorts. War Heroes #22 has the true story about the plot to kill Hitler.

Other books that we have sold over this past year include Journey Into Mystery #76, the non-blackened out price version in GD/VG $21.01. Hansi the Girl Who Loved the Swastika in VG 1st printing $16.56. Captain America #100 VF/VF+ $177.50. Daredevil #1 - Beautiful Bright VF-$769.00. A near-perfect Iron Man #55 - SHARP Glossy Off-White NM+ $270.56. Silver Surfer #1 in Fine+ $160.00. Silver Surfer #4 in VF $157.50. The crazy giveaway Sardineland, 1967 version – indisputable Mint (and in nearly 4 decades I have very rarely ever used that term) $21.06.

Other offbeat comic-related goodies we sold include a rare 1949 copy of Love & Death, by Gershon Legman. While Seduction of the Innocent seems to have brought on the Comics Code Authority, five years before that comics were already under scrutiny and Gershon Legman (nope, I didn't make that up) self-published this tome, Love & Death - A Study in Censorship, making the argument that in America the "Glorification of crime" led to the repression of sexuality. The dialogue in this book is far beyond anything Wertham did and Legman did not pull a single punch. Our copy sold for $78.00. A VG copy of the scarce CCA censorship booklet Facts About Code Approved Comics Magazines sold for $67.00.

Our VG+ copy of Americana in Four Colors '72 (copyright states 1964, but this is the '72 version) sold for $151.38. There was one from '74 as well. It was written by John L. Goldwater, one of the founders of MLJ/Archie Comics, and President of the CCA for 25 years. It is a narrative about the comic book industry, its history, how the Code operates, the "Educational Values in Code-Approved Comics Magazines, self-regulation, and the code of the CCA. There is a 2-page comic, "The Comics Technique" that details the A-Z steps of producing a comic, with a couple panels by Archie good girl artist, Dan DeCarlo.

A killer Near Mint+ copy of the 1st print of the truly offbeat DC Super Heroes Super Healthy Cookbook from 1981, went to a very pleased buyer for $36.99.

A VG+/FN- 1st print of the hotter-than-hell Super Dictionary from 1978 went for $68.77. This popular book contains the vast majority of the DC line-up, along with obscure characters like Conjura - an African-American lass that speaks backward to cast spells and travel through time, Jonna Crisp - a spaceship pilot, El Dragón - a Mexican hero that has power over electricity, Wilson Forbes - an African-American reporter, Jody - Tomahawk's African-American scout pal, SR-12 - a small purple-haired gal from another planet, and Ted & Teri Trapper - an African-American husband and wife detective team. Joe Kubert, Neal Adams, Kurt Schaffenberger, Murphy Anderson, Ross Andru & Mike Esposito, Jim Aparo, Carmine Infantino, Wayne Boring, Curt Swan, Al Plastino, and H.G. Peter, all have artwork represented in this one.

We also did quite a bit of buying this year including a coveted copy of the VERY RARE (I looked for years before finding, and buying, my copy from a gent that looked just as long as I did) Super Duper Comics #3, from 1947, featuring the first appearance of Mr. Monster. I also finally landed a copy of the also VERY RARE Kid Colt Album. One thing that is noted in the Guide that needs an update is that this book is NOT rebound books, so the contents will not vary. There is actually a table of contents that lists all of the stories included. Another fun score was a beautiful copy of World's Finest Comics #44. Now why would I be so happy about that? This issue is a newly-discovered Seduction of the Innocent comic that Wertham referred to as Batman and Robin being gay, along with his mention of a cop getting shot in the face...by Batman!

We are just now starting to sell an amazing run of one of the lesser-known areas of comic books, Chick tracts. These little tracts, from Jack T. Chick, have been around for decades and have more variants than Classics Illustrated. Next year we will have a full report on those, but just to give you an idea of how much interest there is in them, our GD/VG copy of 1962's A Demon's Nightmare just sold for $89.21, with some serious competition butting heads.

We truly want to thank everybody that has made this our best, and funnest, year by far. As always, if anybody has any questions, or just want to chat about comics, please do write, or give us a call!

By the time you read this report our redesigned website (www.gregreececomics.com) will have launched. This area of our business has seen the largest growth in the last year and it stands to reason that trend will continue so we really wanted to upgrade the shopping experience. Every book listed has a scan that can be enlarged along with a zoom feature that allows you to magnify any part of the book you wish. Other new features include an automated want list feature that will notify you of any book that meets your preset criteria and a new consignment option where you can upload your books directly to the site for sale.

I feel like a broken record but last year was like all of the years prior in that we cannot keep keys in stock in any grade. Amazing Fantasy #15, in particular, just defies gravity. I remember thinking 2 years ago, the book had nowhere to go. That was 30% ago across all grades. It is a must have and collectors are scrambling to get a copy before even the lower grades move totally out of sight. A book that had slowed in the last half of 2010 but really picked up as we closed out 2011 was Avengers #1, particularly in 6.0+. It is one of the few keys that is relatively affordable even in grade. I think the Avengers movie will fuel interest in this book, along with Avengers #4 (1st Silver Age appearance of Captain America) and Strange Tales #135 (1st appearance Nick Fury).

Journey Into Mystery #83 was another book we got lots of interest in and we sold them as fast as we got them. The Thor movie was a hit and that didn't hurt interest at all. Flash #105 is an undervalued key in better grades along with Showcase #4. The Bronze Age book to have is Incredible Hulk #181. While we handle multiple copies of Giant-Size X-Men #1 and X-Men #94, we rarely get Incredible Hulk #181 and when we do, it flies out. Incredible Hulk #1 looks ready to breakout. Next time you're at a major convention, count the number (in any grade) of Incredible Hulk #1s in the room vs. other Marvel keys.

Books that really slowed for us this year included Showcase #22 and Green Lantern #1. I suspect that was because the movie was not well received (although I must confess, I enjoyed it. Metropolis shattered all sales records with their incredible Action Comics #1 CGC 9.0 selling for just shy of $2.2 million. This can only translate into good things for the hobby and its acceptance as a legitimate investment alternative.

Notable Purchases: We were able to buy an incredible original owner collection out of Philadelphia, PA. We got a call the day before Hurricane Irene ripped up the Atlantic Seaboard but there was just enough time to drive up and see the books. A man brought books in plastic grocery bags, unbagged and unboarded for all of these years. They were uniformly spectacular and we were thrilled to make the purchase. Of the books sent off to CGC, these were some of the highlights: Fantastic Four #72 CGC 9.6, Green Lantern #32 and #33 both CGC 9.6, Green Lantern #40 CGC 9.4, Journey Into Mystery #106 CGC 9.6, Journey Into Mystery #118 CGC 9.4, Amazing Spider-Man Annual #1 CGC 9.0 and many, many more.

At the close of 2011, we purchased a beautiful run of books out of Chicago. Many of these are off to be certified including a Tales Of Suspense #40 that will be in the 9.0 range and many other very high grade books. Other highlights from the collection include high grade examples of DC's from the tough 1950-1956 era.

Chicago, IL - C2E2: The 2011 show season started for us in March in Chicago and we were lucky to catch good weather. We met many customers for the first time and let me tell you, Midwest charm is alive and well. Some of the nicest guys you could ever want to meet stopped by the booth. We went out to Spiaggia's (an Italian restaurant) and it was an awesome experience. If you are looking to splurge on something other than or in addition to comic books in Chicago, this might be the place for you. We bought the nicest group of Bronze we'd ever laid eyes on and many of those books ended up in CGC 9.8 holders with several as the stand alone highest graded examples.

Pittsburgh, PA: This show continues its struggles but is very close to home and we have just enough customers to justify coming back. Thankfully, Stan Lee is scheduled for 2012 so hopefully that moves the needle for Pittsburgh. We are also able to buy here so all in all, worth the effort.

New York, NY - Wizard World: This was a solid 2 day show that Wizard just took over from legendary promoter, Michael Carbonaro. The AC didn't work Saturday and that was also the day the world was supposed to end. Someone was playing "It's the end of the world as we know it", "1999", and many other apocalyptic songs. We even had a countdown. Very solid show as we sold numerous Jerry Robinson signature series/archive edition books, a gorgeous Daredevil #2 CGC 9.4 and many other high grade books. There truly is no place like NY.

Philadelphia, PA - Wizard World: Another great Philly show and it was nice to see so many of our Philadelphia area customers again. Sales were brisk. We sold a very bright Amazing Spider-Man #1 CGC 5.0. Went out to Pat's Steak n Cheese (was ok but will try Gino's next year). One of our favorite shows on the circuit. Center City Philadelphia is just a fun place to hang out.

Chicago, IL - Wizard World: Another one of the more enjoyable shows on the tour. Hotels are located conveniently to the convention center and there are lots of great spots to eat close by. We sold it all in Chicago, high grade CGCs, fillers for runs and quite a bit of Golden Age. We chose venerable Gibson's one night and if you are a steak lover, it doesn't get any better than that.

Baltimore, MD: Can this show get any better? I don't know how but each year somehow tops the year before and 2011 was no exception. Sunday was busier for us than Saturday for the 2nd year in a row. The only negative was we were too busy to get out and walk the floor and bought very little as a result. Just flat out too busy selling. There was tons of great material in the room so we would've loved to look. Is it time for Baltimore to go to a 3 day venue?

New York, NY- C2E2: Wow! We broke all sales records at this one-of-a-kind event. For those of us that don't set up at San Diego, there simply is no other venue like C2E2 New York. We debuted The Philadelphia Story collection (more on this in our buy report) at NY so it was a perfect storm scenario. The promoters did a nice job of spacing out the aisles in the comic book section. Even though there were tons of people there, it wasn't the cramped madhouse it was in 2010.

Columbus, OH - Wizard World: Solid, middle of the road show. We were able to reload some stock after the blitzkrieg of NY, buying a nice DC collection and some stellar Marvel Bronze. Sold quite a bit of raw, but CGC sales were practically non-existent. Columbus has a fun downtown area with every kind of cuisine you can think of.

We will set up at all of the shows listed above in 2012 and are also adding Megacon in Orlando, FL and Heroes in Charlotte, NC

In closing, I wish everyone a safe, happy year of collecting and I hope to see you on the road in 2012.

Barry Sandoval Heritage Auctions

“Finds”: One of the most interesting things about vintage comic collecting is that you never know what undiscovered collections might still be out there.

As we write this, we’re about to introduce an original-owner Golden Age collection to the market that features almost all of the major keys: Action #1, Detective #27, All-American Comics #16, All Star #3, etc. CGC has designated it a pedigree collection, named after the collector, Billy Wright. Is this the last such collection that will ever surface, or are there several more, or many more?

When it comes to Silver Age books, on the other hand, it’s a certainty that outstanding original-owner collections exist that haven’t yet come to market. Collectors of the early 1960s are still relatively young for the most part. However, Heritage did introduce one such excellent collection to the market in the past year, the Gary Dahlberg Collection (aka the Twin Cities pedigree). It went to auction because Mr. Dahlberg died tragically while only in his early sixties, but his meticulous collecting was validated by the total sales of $2 million and counting.

Mile High copies: The Edgar Church/Mile High collection remains unsurpassed as the greatest of the pedigree collections, and we got a special treat last August as Chuck Rozanski of Mile High Comics consigned the last 150 or so comics which he had held onto for personal reasons. We were certainly honored that Chuck, himself a comic seller of great renown, entrusted the collection to Heritage. While the Mile High Red Raven #1 was the traditionally “big” book of the group, it was particularly interesting to see the results of the Spirit run. Issue #22 of The Spirit fetched $25,095 – a strong number for a book perhaps not thought of as a major key. But maybe this book with its femme fatale cover deserves to rank with Brenda Starr #14, Blue Beetle #54, Phantom Lady #17, etc. Incidentally, the covers for Spirit #20 and #21 are also by Eisner and have a similar feel.

Archie Comics #1: Every Archie Comics #1 that we have offered to date has sold for over Guide, and last August a VG- 3.5 copy followed suit by selling for $20,315. The question is, what is the current market value of issues #2-9? We have not seen one single copy of these issues since the last market report we wrote, but we would be interested in letting our bidders fight over some.

Sgt. Rock: Since the Guide has an extensive annual “War Report” these days we needn’t go into much detail here, but the sale of a VF 8.0 copy of Our Army at War #83 for $16,730 (an unheard-of price for a DC War comic) deserves mention – there are several books that lay claim to being the first appearance of Sgt. Rock, but the bidding public seems to have settled on #83 as the key book to have. And while the hardcore guts-and-glory war collector might not think of Marvel’s Sgt. Fury as a true war book, a NM copy of #1 sold for $28,680 this year, partly because this book is much tougher to find in the highest grade than other Marvel keys of the same era like X-Men #1.

Keys break away from the pack: We wish we had a dollar for everyone we talk to who says he’s looking for a Detective #27... heck, we wish we had a Detective #27 for each of those worthies! The top key books have distanced themselves from the rest of the comic world. In particular, restored copies of these big books, which were not hot items even two years ago, have really come on. The first time we sold a restored comic for over $100,000 it made news, but in the meantime we have sold several.

Original comic art: How much more expensive can original art get? We are looking forward to finding out. Here are a few of the most notable recent results:

Carl Barks The Sport of Tycoons $262,900

Jerry Robinson Detective Comics #67 cover art $239,000

John Romita Sr. Amazing Spider-Man #49 original cover art $167,300

Alex Ross Superman: 20th Century painting $52,281

A trend worth noting here is that the most frenzied bidding tends to be for pieces that have been in collector’s hands over the years and haven’t been shopped around at the San Diego and Chicago shows, posted on the web, etc. Some collectors who picked up pieces in the 1970s or 1980s and kept them ever since have done very well in our auctions. Here too, the uncertainty as to whether a given piece of art still exists and where it might be keeps the hobby interesting.

My colleagues and I look forward to helping more collectors maximize the value of their four-color treasures in the coming year.

Brian Schutzer Sparkle City Comics Neat Stuff Collectibles

Given the past few years and how tough they have been for people across the world, I can’t help but feel thankful for being in the position of doing what I love and succeeding at it. If it were not for all of the friends, collectors and colleagues I’ve met through this great hobby none of it would be possible. Thank you everyone.

2011 was a very strong year across the board for comics

and comic book artwork. For me, this year was a key transitional point in this hobby and business. Having fine tuned Neat Stuff Collectibles, I spent the past few years focusing on building my Original Comic Art collection and inventory. The Comic Art hobby remains to be strong and 2011 proved to be a great year to acquire quality pieces. In 2011, I again shifted my focus back to comic books, this time on the high grade CGC niche. I revived and launched Sparkle City Comics, and the success and impact has exceeded even my optimistic expectations. My goal was simply to offer real auctions on eBay in honest no-reserve format as well as an alternative for consignors. My 10% flat rate commission, 10 days to sell, 10 days to get paid model really resonated with collectors. However, the real fun in launching Sparkle City Comics came from the non-stop spree of sourcing and buying impressive collections. It seemed like this year was the year when collectors finally starting letting go of things that were holding onto, and there seemed to be no shortage of buyers waiting to gobble it all up. In times of such economic uncertainty it's always interesting to see where people are investing.

Whereas in the past couple of years I witnessed a drop in wholesale sales of large collections/lots, 2011 really picked up steam. Neat Stuff Collectibles could barely amass enough inventory to satisfy our buyers and they seemed to keep coming back so that would indicate success on their part in breaking up and re-selling these collections. The only exception appeared to be in bulk Modern stuff, which got much tougher to deal in. Neat Stuff Collectibles handles all types of collectibles from cards to toys and everywhere in between, all of which were plentiful and selling well.

Sparkle City Comics has a long history in the comic book hobby and holds a special place for me in that it was the first business I ever bought a vintage comic book from. When I set forth to launch a new entity that would focus solely on honest auctions of high grade CGC books I couldn't think of anything but re-establishing Sparkle City at the pinnacle of the hobby. So far, I think I'm doing the name and the collectors who remember it fondly well. Sparkle City Comics came onto the scene this year with a bang. We premiered an Original Owner collection purchased in Saginaw Michigan. The Saginaw Collection, as it became known, featured ultra high grade examples of early issues from the most sought after Marvel runs such as Amazing Spider-Man, Fantastic Four, X-Men, Tales to Astonish, Tales of Suspense, and Daredevil. As I write this I'm looking around at the stacks of amazing Golden Age and Silver Age books from recent purchases and can't help but feel that 2012 is going to be even more fun.

Golden Age: Golden Age was very strong in 2011. With the preponderance of High Dollar Silver Age books in the market, more collectors seemed to be flocking towards quality Golden Age books. The Golden Age market appears to be poised for a big jump in interest and prices over the next few years. As new original owner collections hit the marketplace and long time collectors start to let go, the prospects for Golden Age seem bright. Particularly hot were the first 20 issues of Action Comics and pre-Robin Detectives. World War II covers continued to be in high demand, with Action Comics World War II covers gaining some ground on their Timely counterparts.

Sparkle City Comics held our first Golden Age auction in October of 2011. By all accounts the auction was a great success with several record prices achieved and very strong interest across the board. Sparkle City also unearthed 3 Original Owner Golden Age collections in the last months of 2011, which are in the process of being brought to the market as I write this. Some ultra-rare books were acquired in these collections, including but not limited to: New Adventure #26, Wonder Comics #2 and the Marvel Mystery 128 page Annual; ALL were the highest graded copies. I am very excited about the amount of rare and high quality fresh to market Golden Age stuff in 2011 and I expect this to continue into 2012.

Silver Age: The past year has been a very exciting time for Silver Age comics. In 2011 we witnessed both the Savannah and Twin Cities Pedigree collections brought to the marketplace. Sparkle City Comics unearthed the Saginaw Collection, which featured many highest graded early Marvel issues and resulted in MANY record sales. A few of the many notable Saginaw sales were: Amazing Fantasy #15 CGC 8.5 - $107,300, Tales of Suspense #39 CGC 9.2 - $72,100, Fantastic Four #12 CGC 9.4 - $48,201, Tales To Astonish #44 CGC 9.6 - $10,900 and Avengers #16 CGC 9.6 - $11,100. Silver Age key issues continue to sell quickly and at increasing values across all grade levels. Early Marvels continue to command premium prices, however due to increased availability of books at the highest grades we are starting to see some price erosion. The drop in prices of High Grade Bronze CGC books experienced in 2010 seems to have spread into the late Silver Age period (1966-1969), resulting in slightly decreased prices in 2011. I view these minor examples of price erosion as a necessary correction in the market and I don't believe it will be as significant or lengthy as what happened with Bronze Age books. Overall, the Silver Age market is booming and was the most exciting and significant niche for me in 2011.

Silver Age DC sales have in general been flat to slightly lower in 2011, with the exception of key issues and highest graded copies. Collectors are willing to pay big money for High Grade DC key issues and Highest Graded copies, which are much scarcer than their Marvel counterparts. This is supported by Sparkle City Comics sales of Saginaw copies of Flash #118 and Flash #128 (single highest graded copies) which sold for over $6,000 each. In my opinion, the trend of new Silver Age collections coming to market will continue in 2012 and will present many opportunities for collectors to acquire fresh high quality books.

Bronze Age: Despite the fact that High Grade Bronze continues to be a popular area of the hobby, 2011 continued the downward trend of prices attained for High Grade Bronze books. It now appears that a correction has taken place in the Bronze market and price stabilization seems to be taking place, especially at the 9.2-9.4 levels. We are still seeing some price erosion on highest graded copies, probably due to the fact that speculators and investors are not as heavily involved in the Bronze market. Bronze Age key issues have not escaped the slide with Green Lantern #76 and Giant-Size X-Men #1 among issues that have dropped substantially in 2011, at the highest grades.

One of the key driving forces in the drop in prices is the constant fresh supply of high-grade issues arriving at CGC. It doesn't seem like there is much scarcity of Bronze Age books, even at the highest grades. High Grade DC Bronze is scarcer than their Marvel counterparts, however demand is generally lower. Bronze Age Neal Adams covers have appeared to calm a bit in 2011, but still remain relatively strong. Despite some price pressure, Bronze Age CGC books sell fast and are eagerly snagged by collectors every time they are offered. I believe that the Bronze Age market is healthier today than it was a couple of years ago and after the necessary corrections, there are good times ahead in 2012 and beyond.

Overall, the comic book hobby and market was undeniably strong in 2011. With the ever-increasing mainstream interest in comics, from movies to video games, it seems that the stories and characters that we all love will continue to captivate people worldwide, with no end in sight. Walking around comic conventions I can already see the next generation of collectors sharpening their teeth. With the amount of new collections being brought to market and the abundance of buyers waiting for stuff, I expect 2012 to be even better than 2011 on all fronts.

Doug Simpson Paradise Comics

Without any doubt, 2011 was a transition year for our business and the hobby in Canada. We saw the smallest growth in over a decade, our total sales increased by only 3% with graphic novels making the largest contribution at 8% growth.

Not surprisingly Hollywood has helped our sales with the increasing visibility of its mainstream comic movies including (Thor, Captain America, Green Lantern, and X-Men: First Class that were all released in 2011). Let's hope the Avengers and Batman releases in 2012 continue the trend by bringing more buyers into the market.

In general Golden Age sales were very sluggish this year and, with so many collectors pursuing high-grade Silver Age, sales have been exceptionally slow. There is always a market for Timelys in any grade, but most Golden Age Hero comics are selling well below Guide with the exception of Batman and Detective Comics.

Silver Age sales continue to dominate our market, with most high-grade copies selling within hours of arriving in the shop.

DC Silver Age shows the greatest demand in the usual suspects Batman, Green Lantern and Superman, but Wonder Woman is showing some signs of life as well. War Comics continue to be slow sellers and demand for Horror and Romance comics has slowed right down. Unfortunately DC bin stock sells way less in volume than its Marvel counterpart.

Marvel Silver Age is selling very well, with Amazing Spider-Man and X-Men leading the way, and demand for Avengers and Captain America steadily growing. The Marvel Silver Age market is always strong and doesn't look to be slowing down anytime soon.

Bronze Age comic sales continue to be through the roof in high grade, and demand for mid-grade copies have increased as well. Marvel leads the way in this category primarily because of X-Men issues #108-#142 with all Amazing Spider-Man issues between #100 and #150 following closely behind. We are starting to see more demand for Avengers and Daredevil issues as well.

Generally with the exception of the "New 52" launch by DC Comics in September, our new issue sales are on the decline. The impact of digital comics is starting to be felt by many retailers for the first time, and it looks like they will be a major part of the hobby in the years to come.

Our website sales have been very strong in 2011 and we hope that this continues throughout 2012 and beyond.

CGC Signature Series Amazing Fantasy #15 CGC 2.5 $5500.00

The Convention season never seems to end and as a result Paradise has a very busy convention schedule planned for 2012 with the first show being Wizard World Toronto 2012 on April 14-15, 2012. We also plan on doing at least three U.S. shows this summer along with the usual Canadian conventions. Let's hope 2012 turns out to be an amazing year for everyone in the industry.

X-Men issues #108-142 help Marvel lead the way in Bronze Age sales. (X-Men #125 shown)

Well, there is both good and bad in my 2011 Market Report. The market remains very mixed. The best of the best – the high grade key issues – continue to sell at ever-increasing record prices. If one has for sale (or in their collection) a lot of high grade key issues, or books like Action Comics #1, Amazing Fantasy #15, Detective Comics #27, or Captain America Comics #1 in any grade, then it's been another banner year. Reach for the champagne. If you are trying to sell "run" issues of Gold/Silver or Bronze – in just about any condition besides near perfect - you are left wondering where the floor is at on pricing and reaching for the aspirin instead.

I mentioned it last year and I will repeat it this year. The Overstreet Price Guide needs to list real market values for the run books I speak of. I would guess that the editorial staff at the OPG face tremendous push back from dealers and collectors alike at the thought of devaluing by 50-65% huge swaths of their inventory or collection. But the OPG does not create the value of comic books, it reports the value. The deflation in value has already taken place and pretending it has not both compromises the Price Guide and further damages the marketplace.

Here are a handful of representative sales from the past year: Action Comics #220 VG- @ $30 (Guide $100), Amazing Spider-Man #119 FN+ @ $26 (Guide $37), Archie Comics #167 VG, #193 VG (swim suit covers) @ $3 each (Guide $6), Avengers #102 VF/NM @ $11.00 (Guide $34) Batman #251 FN/VF @ $39 (Guide $50 – Adams Joker issue), Black Lightning #1 FN @ $3.25 (Guide $6.00), Bonanza #24 VF+ @ $16.75 (Guide $37), Brave & Bold #79 VG @ $9.75 (Guide $18), DC Comics Presents #3 NM @ $6.50 (Guide $12), Detective Comics #425-430 @ $4 each (Guide $15 each), Doctor Strange (1974) #2 NM @ $16 (Guide $65), Hero for Hire #1 VG+ @ $18 (Guide $26), Howard the Duck #12 FN @ $2.75 (Guide $12) ...Tired yet? I'll keep going... Justice League #5 GD+ @ $26 (Guide $65), Logan's Run #2-4 NM @ $3.25 each (Guide $8), Marvel Two In One #1 VG @ $8 (Guide $14), Psychoanalysis #2 VG @ $13 (Guide $28), Special Marvel Edition #15 FN/VF @ $11.50 (Guide $66), Swamp Thing #1 VG/FN @ $21 (Guide $40), Tales of Suspense #65 FN+ @ 24.50 (Guide $84), Thor #225 FN+ @ $8 (Guide $11 – a bright spot – 1st Firelord), Walt Disney's Comics & Stories #100 VG/FN @ $25 (Guide $55), Where Monsters Dwell #1 FN @ $7.50 (Guide $12.00), and X-Men #133 VG/FN @ $5 (Guide $12.50).

I have tried to list a wide range of examples. I sold thousands of comics last year and the vast majority were at similar prices. High grade, low grade, mainstream superhero, Archie or Western. Published 1950s, '60s, '70s or later. Doesn't seem to matter. If it is not a key issue in nice shape 50% off OPG is pretty much a given and 65% off is not uncommon

Yet all of the examples I've listed above sold for well above their original cover price. I'm still selling collectibles, not used books. I can sell VG Silver and VF Bronze comics - just not at OPG prices. The real problem becomes buying collections for resale. OPG in hand, individuals selling comics they found in the attic view offers based on the real market value as thievery. Because "The Guide" says it they are worth a lot more.

Perhaps you ask what is driving the prices down on run type books: First, eBay has made it apparent that run type books are common. Then add professional grading where buyers can count on the grade they purchase at being the grade they later sell at. Whereas eBay has made run books look common, CGC has proven that high grade keys and super high grade most anythings are scarce. So the prices of those books have risen dramatically as the moneyed class now views them as good investments.

Collectors – rightly concerned that they will never own high grade copies of the big books if they do not move fast - continue to sell their run type books to raise the money to buy the keys. So the common issues have yet more downward pricing pressure as still more copies enter the market

Speaking of books that are selling well – I should mention a few of those sales. It's not all bottom feeding here at Comics Ina Flash! Before doing so I should note the impact professional grading has had here as well. Some really hot books (like Amazing Fantasy #15) - in lower grades especially - sell for about as much raw as they do professionally graded. Routinely though if you want to obtain market value on key, not so key and/or high grade books, they need to be professionally graded. The problem here is obvious - grading and slabbing costs money and takes time. I find myself routinely doing the math on this: How much might it sell for raw? How much slabbed? What will it cost to get it professionally graded and how long before I have it back to sell?

While doing this mental math I often think of the Gold rushes of the 19th and early 20th centuries. The smart money was made by those selling picks and shovels, not those digging for gold. But I digress.

Anyway, some recent sales that reflect the healthy side of the market: G.I. Combat #168 CGC 9.8 @ $400 (great Adams cover), Giant-Size Kid Colt #1 CGC 9.4 @ $140, Amazing Adventures #1 PGX 9.4 @ $125, Flash #225 PGX 9.4 @ $45, Amazing Spider-Man #40 CGC 7.5 @ $172, Captain

The healthy side of the market is reflected in hearty sale prices for issues like G.I. Combat #168

America #113 CGC 9.4 @ $281, #117 CGC 9.2 @ $312, Machine Man #19 CGC 9.8 @ $150, Special Marvel Edition #15 CGC 9.4 @ $160, Superman #273 CGC 9.8 @ $138, Justice League of America #1 PGX 8.5 @ $4550, #138 CGC 9.6 @ $71, Sgt. Fury #1 PGX 3.0 @ $350, Champions #1 CGC 9.6 @ $104, Strange Adventures #208 PGX 9.0 $80, Phantom #1 CGC 8.0 (GK) @ $245, Tales From the Crypt #35 CGC 8.5 $788, Batman #244 CGC 9.2 $215, Adventure Comics #300 CGC 9.0 $1166, Brave & Bold #54 CGC 9.4 @ $2300, CGC 9.0 $665, Tales of Suspense #39 CGC 6.5 $3320, #59 CGC 7.0 @ $173, #63 CGC 8.5 @ $231, Tales to Astonish #35 PGX 5.0 $327, Demon #1 CGC 9.4 @ $111, Strange Tales #110 CGC 4.0 @ $325, Green Lantern #87 CGC 9.0 $169, and Conan the Barbarian #3 CGC 9.2 @ $189.

Some of these sales are over Guide or market highs (Brave and the Bold #54, G.I. Combat #168, Tales From the Crypt #35), a few were a bit low, but most sold for around Guide. But the trend here is that books are selling well when professionally graded and slabbed. High grade keys selling exceedingly well. Technically, the OPG doesn't list prices for professionally graded books nor does it list prices for books in grades of 9.4 and higher. Which is another challenge the OPG needs to address if they wish to be remain the industry standard.

So what to take away from the roller coaster ride that is the market today? Well in Adversity, Opportunity always exists.

If you like collecting long runs of your favorite characters, if you enjoy reading your books so don't want them in perfect shape locked up in an impenetrable holder, now is a fantastic time to buy. It's like having a time machine and purchasing comics at 1990s prices.

If you have money, it certainly appears that high grade key issues are solid investments. Avengers #1 CGC 9.4 has gone from 17K to 100K in ten years. We don't know if it will increase in value another six-fold in the next 10 years. But with only seven 9.4s and three 9.6s in the CGC census, we do know that the demand will continue to greatly exceed the supply.

If you want to cast your eyes about for other books with potential to appreciate nicely in value, a number come to mind. The key DC issues are still overlooked – though the Green Lantern movie has brought some attention to Showcase #22. Historically the key DCs have constantly trailed, then played catch up with the key Marvels. The early Marvels have a larger fan base for sure – but Stan and company only started doing superhero books in the early '60s because DC was making money with costumed heroes for years before that. Plus the DCs are substantially scarcer in high grade. Also tempting are the better Gold Key first issues. Magnus, Lost in Space, Doctor Solar, Phantom, Star Trek, and Turok (OK – Turok #1 is a Dell). These books are CHEAP, they have solid fan bases (TV shows/Movies/Video Game franchise) and are often even scarcer in high grade than comparable DCs.

West Stephan Collector

Mainline publishers such as Timely and DC are still the blue chips of the Golden Age. After that, classic covers sell in every grade and generally at above Guide prices. Hitler cover appearances are at an all-time high. World War II covers are especially hot and show no signs of slowing down. 1930s DC Super-hero books are always a quick sale. Centaur titles are getting a boost in popularity as collectors are realizing how truly scarce most of them are. Fiction House is red hot, especially titles where the Guide is far too low, such as Fight Comics #25-28 and the Good Girl covers of Wings Comics #82-89. The hottest Golden Age book on the planet has to be Marvel Mystery Comics #46 with the classic Hitler cover. A CGC-graded 2.0 copy sold for $2868 (almost 10 times Guide) at auction, and a restored 7.0 copy sold on eBay for $1500 as a "Buy it now".

Sci-fi titles of the '50s are also doing well, but mostly with the covers that really stand out. More and more collectors are "cover collecting", meaning they are more interested in what is depicted on the cover than the interior story. For instance, Action Comics #43-46 are all valued the same in the Guide, but reality is that Action Comics #43 and #44 with their classic War covers will always outsell Action #45 and #46.

Al Stoltz Basement Comics

Yes, here we are again, another year of buying and selling under our belts and many great books were found and sold to happy collectors and investors. Yes, it was a good year for us and far better than the dark days of 2008, changes can be seen taking place online and at shows if you just take a look. I am pretty sure that 2011 was the real year of re-alignment of prices for the other 80-90% of the comic back issues out there. Seems like every show that I attended this year was full of dealers flying signs signaling sales of 30-80% off boxed stock that was sitting on the tables at their booths. I see it as real life catching up with "whatever we feel like pricing" of the '80s and early '90s finally reflecting the fact that customers will buy lower grade items...BUT...at a greatly reduced price.

Books listed under Overstreet value on our eBay store sell, but really sell with a 20% discount offered during sale periods. So the price point is there and if a value is there for lower grade items, then the happy buyer spends away. I also always like to point out that most of my buyers at conventions are of the late Baby Boomer age and very few are under the age of twenty five. As an industry we need to keep finding ways to pull in new buyers of back issues and keep the interest in building collections so this art form can be appreciated for many more decades to come. Hopefully the plethora of movies related to DC and Marvel characters will keep the wheel of comic collecting moving forward.

Shows: I was happy to set up at just five major shows this year but did attend a few others including San Diego Comic Con for my 11th time! As a comic buyer and seller at San Diego I now trim my time there down to Tuesday to Friday and get out of town..literally..as the monster crowds grow and the act of just walking the show floor becomes more of an impossibility. I was actually stunned by the amount of Marvel keys that were for sale at SDCC this year and by my ability to spend lots of money for online inventory at this year's show. I normally do not get a chance to buy lots of comics at SDCC but dealers both large and small were in the mood to make as many dollars as they could before the weekend came to a close. Wizard Chicago and Baltimore Comic-Con rounded out my top three shows to buy both High Grade and wacky stuff that I have interest in by the box full. MegaCon in Florida was super good as usual and Beth and her group do a fantastic job. Wizard Philly was as crowded as I ever saw and was a great show and is only an hour from my house. NYCC by Reed is fast becoming the SDCC of the East and could potentially pull even more attendees when they take over the whole building and we all get more elbow room after the 2012 show. This is also the "Official " 20th year of Basement Comics, but I traded and sold far before that and cannot believe that 20 years has now flown by working for the meanest Boss I have ever had...myself !

eBay Sales: While a great amount of my income does come from online selling both to customers on eBay and those clients I have built up over the many years, it is eBay that constantly confounds me as a business. Constant changes and new rules makes selling on eBay a gigantic chore and it seems that the new CEO is pushing to sweep all the "junk" sellers from their universe. So far we keep up with the new nutty rule changes and try to stay ahead by offering 30 day returns and we pay the shipping for that return. So far not one item has been returned and it seems our grading and service are still dead on for the buying public. Our sales were on path to well exceed 2010 sales and our constant injection of minor keys and odd ball items kept the machine humming along. One of our best buys was a load of high grade Spanish Harvey Horror books from the 1950s that are selling very well to many Spanish speaking countries around the world. The South American market has exploded for us with these items and much more and I can see this as a very expanding base in the future. We have also starting shipping boxes of Bronze Age comics to accounts in China. Hey, if they have to enjoy the culture of America then why not do it reading a copy of Howard the Duck #1 with a Coke!

eBay sales are always a blend of all items selling at different times of the year, but overall it always seems to be odd-ball weird items we are known for listing selling the best and Dell Comics other than Westerns bringing up the rear in sales. Auctions aren't really a risk anymore unless you want to just get the opening price on some books. We just hope to get our listings well above 10,000 and keep a pulse on what is selling in the online world and stay competitive in 2012.

What is selling?: As much as it makes me crazy to have to work hard to find flawless books, they do sell and they do not sit around long enough to gather dust. But a recent amount paid for a Fantastic Four #12 in CGC 9.6 of $75,000...really? Come on guys....let's get our feet back on Earth. We slabbbed no books for resell this year and have adopted the business model to base price on GPA or other sources and have sold every nice key book we have purchased raw and let the speculator have their own fun. I always wish them the very best and hope they hit their perceived grades...a future customer in the making if they get their surprise grade numbers.

Another surprise was the ease at selling high grade Treasury Editions this year at the shows we did set up at. We bagged and tagged a large box full of them and I am guessing a weird sense of nostalgia gripped the buyers and they smiled and bought up just about all of the original load we brought out to sell. Legion issues and the Ali-Superman issue lead the way for the DC Treasury issues and Hulk and Thor seemed to be always looked for as far as Marvel Treasury issues go. We were glad to see an interest in items that for many years just languished back at the warehouse.

Big Little Books and older material seem to have died yet again! We bought lots of BLBs this year and never paid more than five bucks for any title even in higher grade. We will begin listing the hundreds of BLBs on our eBay store in 2012 and will price them to go away quickly. Same goes for Platinum and Victorian books...is anyone actually looking for all the different titles that are listed? I have zero customers asking me to find any of these.

The most asked question I fielded this year was when is the Overstreet Guide going to be available as a searchable data base on smart phones and computers? Have no idea and it seems like a natural way to go in the 21st century and the info contained in this collectors tool could really be enjoyed and used more easily. I would download a version to my iPhone in 2 seconds if it finally becomes available!

I guess in conclusion I feel happy that I saw lots of energy and activity at the major shows this year and personally moved loads of material both at shows and online in 2011. My concern of the slashing of prices may actually be a good thing in the end since the dumping of product may just in the end create new collectors that need to fill in those gaps in the new collection...I can only hope so. Perhaps the new wave of comic related movies and convention coverage on shows like G4 will push the interest along on comics and related material for the next generation.

Douglas W. Sulipa Doug Sulipa's Comic World

We sold a lot of comics this year, but still below our pre-Recession (pre-Summer 2008) levels. The main trend I have seen changed is below-average demand for items priced at over $50.00, especially in High Grade. In many genres, I have noticed sales on Low Grade and affordable copies have actually increased. The biggest area of increased demand was for affordable copies of KEY issues (First, Last, Origin, Giants, Anniversary, better Artists, Low Print etc.) with current Good thru Fine Guide prices in the $5 to $50 price range. Price spreads between GD-FN vs. VF-NM- are now so wide, many of these are now very undervalued in GD-FN in the Overstreet Guide and often bring premiums of +25% to +100% over Guide, with many eager buyers.

Many DC and especially Marvel KEY issue comics in GD-FN are near impossible to keep in stock and the current Guide prices are now wholesale prices. (Other sellers and I now more regularly buy KEY issues at 70-125% Guide in GD-FN to mark-up by 50% or more over cost for immediate re-sale to want list buyers.) Similarly, affordable copies of hard-to-find issues from uncommon to scarcer popular titles (especially 1950-1980 era) are sold out in most major dealer inventories and often bring premiums of +25% to +100% over Guide. Just a few examples: Amazing Fantasy #15, Amazing Spider-Man (most Key issues from #1-300), Archie #1-100, Archie's Girls Betty & Veronica #1-100, Batmans by Neal Adams, Conan the Barbarian #1, Creepy #31-80, 121-146 in GD-FN, Dizzy Dames #1-6, Dracula Lives in GD-FN, Eerie #17-80, 121-139 in GD-FN, Hanna-Barbera #1s, Iron Man (1968) #1, Laugh #20-150, Little Lulu #1-30, Magnus (GK) #1, Marvel Spotlight #5 (1st Ghost Rider), Millie the Model #18-93 with DeCarlo-a, Our Army at War #83-130 (Sgt. Rock), Pep #22-161, Scooby Doo (1970s to 1990s), Tarzan (Dell) #1-20, Turok (Dell) #1-5, Vampire Tales in GD-FN, Vampirella #1-33, 91-113 in GD-FN, Werewolf by Night #32 and many More.

Non-KEY issues of common 1965-1980 Marvel & DC Super-Hero comics in VG to FN/VF are still quite plentiful and many were slower sellers. We have started selling large quantities in discounted bargain sets to force sales on many of these, as our warehouse is bursting at the seams with overstock on many of these. Since I have specialized in and gone out of my way to re-stock affordable comics that are hard to find in ANY grade for over 30 years, I have always done quite well with these. I actually search out to re-stock sold out issues of comics other dealers on carry only if they walk in the door. I try to keep near complete inventories of (1960 and newer, with good selection of older issues): ACG, Archie, Charlton, Classics, Comic Digests, Cracked, Dell, Dennis the Menace, Gold Key, Harvey, IW/Super, King, Mad, National Lampoon, Religious, Treasury, Walt Disney, Whitman, etc.

The shortage of copies in dealer inventories for these uncommon to scarce Oddball comics is usually not reported by most Overstreet advisors (high priced and Superhero comics are "sexier" in market reports) thus prices tend to remain unrealistically low, and the "higher demand than supply" shortage continues on year after year. I have a loyal following of regular repeat customers who love my gigantic selection (world's biggest in many categories). This once again was the area that brought in the most sales this year.

High Grade investment copies were still good sellers, but mostly items in the $5 to $50 price ranges, thus a lot of Bronze Age (1970-1984) comics, with increased interest in Copper Age (1985-1992) comics. Many many buyers have finally caught on to the fact that 1980s comics in strict VF/NM or better are getting harder and harder to find, as they are already 23-32 years old. Decades of dumping these comics in Bargain Bins and constant handling have lowered the grade of copies of 1980s comics in most dealer inventories to around a FN/VF average. In addition, many major dealers grade everything in VF or better as NM, while the actual grades (if submitted to CGC) would be a strict 7.0 to 9.0, with only a handful in actual 9.4. Since most of the 1980s comics Guide at between $2 to $10, this has become a widespread practice, considered acceptable by the majority of buyers. It has in fact persuaded many uninformed collectors that VF copies are in fact NM copies. For the advanced and informed collector, it can be a frustrating market to buy in if you collect only strict High Grade in 9.2 or better. Because I have over 20,000 strictly graded (with CGC in mind) affordable High Grade comics in stock, especially those from the Manitoba Pedigree quality collection, I sell many hundreds of these at premium prices. My average asking price, as a percentage of Overstreet Guide 9.2 price, for comics that Guide at $50 or less is: 9.8=400%, 9.6=300%, 9.4=200%, 9.2=150% and with VF/NM copies bringing 9.2 Guide prices.

Our 8000 square foot warehouse is still bursting at the seams with 1,300,000 comics, magazines, digests, paperbacks, records, movies, posters and other related items.

Since I hope to retire in 10-15 years, I have continued to list more items on our overstock clearance sales, so far mostly overstock comics sets in 10-25 item groups at 25-75% off Guide range. By far the most popular set of the year was Captain Canuck (1975-81) #1-4 and Special #1 VF for $39 (almost 50 sets sold), surpassing the previous best seller ROM Spaceknight #1-75 and Annual #1-4. Booster Gold (1986-88) #1-25 became a surprise bestseller and I am currently sold out. (He appeared in the final season of TV's Smallville and rumor has it that the character may be getting his own SyFy channel TV pilot and potential series.) Other unexpected good sellers included: Amethyst (1983) #1-12, Captain Britain (1976 UK) #1-11, Capt. Planet #1-12, Further Adv. of Indiana Jones #1-34, Groo #61-120, John Carter #1-28 and Annual 1-3, Savage She-Hulk #1-25, 2001: A Space Odyssey #1-10, etc.

Many collectors view the prices in Overstreet as set in stone, so they will not pay more, but are still happy when they get items for less. They miss out on buying High Demand items that might have potential for future price escalations and so they often end up buying slower selling items. Many do not fully understand that it is a price GUIDE, and is more an average of the approximate retail price you should expect to have to pay to a professional dealer. Pro dealers are willing to pay more for High Demand items and then need to charge more, often well over Guide. There are many discount places where you can readily buy common items at 25-75% off Guide (eBay, conventions, small dealers, fellow collectors, flea markets, garage sales, auctions, etc.), but these (often transient) sellers usually have: low overhead, smaller selections, off-condition items, questionable condition/grading, etc. Thus, this leaves discounting and/or selling to captive buyers (local only, eBay only, flea market only, non-internet etc.) as their main selling tool. There is nothing wrong with buying discounted comics (as long as you are careful), but these type of sales should NOT be used to judge current values of collectible comics.

Titles like Captain Planet, when sold in groups, were unexpected good sellers. (#1 shown)

On the flip side, many collectors blindly buy comics (especially new comics) for years and decades, without thought about how much they will be able to sell them for, when that time inevitably arrives (often old age) to sell. Many are shocked to hear offers like 25, 10 or even 5 cents each for their common newer comics. For example, I get many emails from sellers wanting to liquidate collections of 1986-1994 era comics that are "Bagged & Boarded" (implying that they are "MINT" because they bought them new). One collector spent presumably 100+ Hours methodically cataloging over 10,000 post-1980 comics by exact condition and price in Guide and came up with a value of over $35,000. He was asking only $20,000 and sent the list to dozens of dealers, but could not understand why he was getting no replies. So I finally emailed him and explained that 95% of his collection consisted of items that all major dealers were already overstocked on and they were already a hard sell. After several email exchanges, he began to understand that he would be lucky to get an offer of 10% Guide on his common slow selling comics and if he wanted more, he would need to become a dealer himself. Getting good money was extremely labour intensive and would take him hundreds of hours of work. Unfortunately a collector cannot just take his $12 Spawn #1 to the grocery store and get a meal for it. He would instead have a hard time getting $4 on eBay for it and even less from a dealer who already has 10 copies in stock. He thanked me for explaining, but soon after, there were still more similar sellers.

Archie Comics: Our Archie inventory is the world's biggest selection (35,000+ Archie comics and 10,000+ Digests in stock). About 85% of what we sell falls into the $2 to $20 each FR/GD to FN condition range items. About 15% sells in the FN/VF to VF/NM condition. We would sell more pre-1988 in High Grade if we had more, but most are scarce in strict VF or better. Everything Betty & Veronica were easily our #1 bestsellers. Golden Age 1941-1950 Archie titles are in high demand (at 120%-150% Guide in any grade. Archies with Dan DeCarlo art issues are always top sellers. 1951-1964 Archie titles are steady sellers. Most GD-FN copies sell at 120-140% Guide. The circa-1960 Horror and Sci-Fi cover issues have 2-3 times the demand as compared to other issues of the period (at 120-135% Guide).

All the other girls of Archie titles still have strong demand (Cheryl Blossom, Ginger, Josie & the Pussycats, Katy Keene, Sabrina, Suzie, etc.) Cheryl Blossom 1982-1993 (pre-1994 and Love Showdown) appearances are in demand when identified and sell for 125-150% Guide. The 1970s Red Circle Horror, 1980s Red Circle/Archie Adventure titles were the most requested in VF or better, and they are in steady demand. All the LAST Issues are still in high demand and even lower supply as minor-Key issues: Archie and Me #161 (2/87), Archie at Riverdale High #113 (2/87), Archie Giant Series #632 (7/92), Archie's Girls B&V #347 (4/1987), Archie's Pals N Gals #224 (9/1991), Archie's TV Laughtout #105 (2/86), Betty & Me #200 (8/92), Everything's Archie #157 (9/91), Jughead #352 (6/87), Laugh #400 (4/87), Life with Archie #286 (9/91), Pep #411 (3/87), all bringing 150-200% Guide.

All the Archie brand Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles Adventures titles are in high demand (while the original Mirage titles are slow sellers) with all the high number and later issues having LOW print runs and being scarcer. The 1990s Hanna-Barbera titles are already hard to find, are in high demand, sold out with almost all dealers, and very undervalued in the Guide, with #1-5 issues being uncommon (selling at 150% Guide) with most #6-up issues being scarce (selling at 200-400% Guide).

The Archie 15¢-c test market variants (2/1962-4/1963) are 50-100 scarcer than regular editions and still bring a very conservative 150-200% Guide (Archie's Madhouse #22 is the major Key issue); Canadian Newsstand Cover Price Variants (10-20 scarcer than USA editions) include: Archie Comics and Digests (35 cent Giants from late 1950s through the mid '60s.) All comics and Digests from 9/1982-4/1997 with Digests up to 12/1997 have a modest demand at about 120% Guide.

This year's bestsellers include: Archie Comics #1-120 (120-150%), Archie All-Star Special - Series; (Winter/1975; 164 Pages, 4 different = 200%), Archie as Pureheart (120%), Archie at Riverdale High (#1-20 = 120% Guide; early appearances of Cheryl Blossom in Charlton Comics: With over 25,000 in stock, we have the world's biggest selection of Charlton comics (95% of 1960-1986 issues and about 50% of the 1940's-1959 issues). Our selection makes our site the first destination for many Charlton fans, from readers to advanced collectors. The TV, Horror and Sci-Fi titles are the bestsellers in both Lower & High Grades, with all issues from 1966-1986 in High Demand. Second most requested are the better artist issues, including; Aparo, Boyette, Buscema, John Byrne, Ditko, Glanzman, Himes, Wayne Howard, Severin, Sanho Kim, Larson, Morisi, Don Newton, Staton, Tom Sutton, Wood, Williamson and Mike Zeck. Hanna Barbera comics are always consistent good sellers. The moderate sellers included: Superhero, War, Western titles, mostly sold to fans and readers that enjoy those genres in multiple publishers. We always do well with Charlton, but most other comic dealers do not bother with them. Everything sells eventually, with no really dead titles. Completonists and collectors who like hard-to-find and unusual items are often fascinated with the Charlton magazines, including: Adult Cartoon titles (Cartoon Carnival, Comedy Capers, Good Humor, 150 Cartoons), Charlton Bullseye, CPL (Fanzine), Horror Monsters, Mad Monsters, Monsters Attack, Sick mag, and other non-Comic mags by Charlton (True Western, Romance, Movie/TV, Puzzle, etc). The 17 different known Charlton / Xerox Comic Digests (Barney & Betty, Bugs Bunny, Dino, Dr. Graves, Flintstones, Jetsons, Pebbles & Bamm-Bamm, Road Runner, Scooby Doo, Space 1999, Tweety and Sylvester, Woody Woodpecker, Yogi Bear, etc.) are still very scarce, rarely found in better than FN and sell for 200-300% Guide.

Bestsellers this year included (at 115-135% Guide): Abbott & Costello, Barney & Betty, Beetle Bailey, Beyond the Grave, Bionic Woman, Blondie, Blue Beetle, Bobby Sherman, Bugaloos, Bullwinkle, Capt. Atom, Charlton Bullseye (comic and magazine), Charlton Premiere, Cheyenne Kid, Cowboy Western, David Cassidy, Dino, Doomsday + 1 (John Byrne), Dudley Do-Right, EH!, E-Man, Emergency (comic and magazine), Flash Gordon, Flintstones, Ghostly Haunts, Ghostly Tales, Ghost Manor, Go-Go, Gorgo, Great Gazoo, Gunfighters, Hanna-Barbera Parade, Haunted, Haunted Love, Hercules, Hong Kong Phooey, Huckleberry Hound, Jetsons, Judo Master, Jungle Jim, Jungle Tales of Tarzan, Kid Montana, Konga, Korg, Magilla Gorilla, Many Ghosts of Dr. Graves, Masked Raider, Midnight Tales, Monster Hunters, Mysterious Suspense, Outer Space, Outlaws of the West, Partridge Family, Pebbles, Phantom, Ponytail, Popeye, Primus, Ronald McDonald, Quick Draw McGraw, Reptisaurus, Ronald McDonald, Sarge Steel, Scary Tales, Scooby Doo, Six Million Dollar Man (comic and magazine), Son of Vulcan, Space Adventures, Space 1999 (comic and magazine), Space War, Speed Buggy, Static, Strange Suspense, Thane, Thunderbolt, Top Cat, Underdog, Unusual Tales, Valley of Dinosaurs, Vengeance Squad, War, War comics (most 1950-1970), Western comics (most 1950-1970), Wheelie & Chopper Bunch, Wyatt Earp, Yang, & Yogi Bear. DC Comics: DC Comics back issue sales are dominated by their long-standing classic characters and teams, especially Batman, Flash, Green Lantern, JLA, JSA, Legion, Superman and Wonder Woman, so it might shock readers to realize all their titles were poor sellers with low print runs in the early 1980s. Circulation statements reveal these Low Print Runs; Batman #357-402 (75,303 to 97,741/month), Detective #482-569 (64,635 to 89,635/month), Flash (1959) #317-350 (72,771 to 69,881/month), Green Lantern (1960) #150-195 (89,657 to 80,765/month), Justice League (1960) #234-257 (96,281 to 82,406/month), Superman (1939-1986) #403-423 (98,767/month) and Wonder Woman (1942) #299-329 (73,256 to 52,145/month). Frank Miller revived Batman, John Byrne revived Superman and Crisis revived the others, with sales of these backbone characters never again low since the mid-1980s. Batman is by far the most collected DC character, as Spider-Man is to Marvel, yet 1960s Batman prices are far more affordable. Justice League is easily the mostly collected DC Team series, yet prices remain more affordable when compared to Marvel's Fantastic Four of the same time period. Since Crisis and George Pérez resurrected Wonder Woman in 1987, she has become arguably the most important female character in comics history. Wonder Woman (1942) #51-130 are in very low supply on the marketplace, a very tough run to complete, with GD-FN condition copies often bringing 125-200% Guide. Wonder Woman (1942) #177-220 are in steady demand. Wonder Woman (1987) #50-100, 121-226 are hard to keep in stock and usually sell at 25-100% over Guide.

DC War comics have never been more collected, with most 1950s issues in very low supply in any grade. Our Army at War #83 (1st true Sgt. Rock) and G.I. Combat #68 are extremely undervalued and on many want lists (expect to pay 150-200% Guide). OAAW #81-82 (Sgt. Rock prototypes) are now slower sellers. OAAW #84-120 are tough to keep in stock in any grade and most major dealers are usually sold out. All Sgt. Rock comics are in demand, with #401-422 having Low Print Runs and being scarcer. All American Men of War, G.I. Combat, Our Fighting Forces and Star Spangled War are all in demand, with 1950s and 1970s issues being most requested. Bronze Age DC War in VF/NM or better are among the fastest selling investment grade copies of the period.

DC Horror and Sci-Fi comics are also in constantly good demand, with low grade reading copies being the bestsellers. Better artist issues of the 1968-1975 era are the most requested. Many investors are having a tough time completing runs of 1970-1985 era Horror titles in VF/NM or better. They are much more uncommon to scarce than many would think. All the Oddball titles (Cartoon, Digests, Humor, Love, Teen, Treasuries, Western etc.) still have a good following and always do well with these, as many dealers do not bother to carry them.

Bestselling DC comics this year included: (GD-FN = 120-140% Guide; FN/VF-VF+ = 100-135% Guide; VF/NM, 9.0 to NM-, 9.2 = 120-150% Guide); Action #377-450, 583, Adventure #381-440, 491-503, All American Men of War #38-117, All New Collectors' Edition C-53 to C-60; All Star

Dell Comics: This year I went through my entire Dell inventory and identified hundreds of Variants that are NOT yet listed in the Guide and sold over 60% of what I found at premium prices. These include Dell Variants: (2/1957-7/1958 = 15 Cent variants and September 1958 "10¢ Now" Cover Date Variants = These sell for a 50% premium over Guide); (1956-1962 Back Cover Variants with Strips in place of ads and Dell Giants with 30-35¢ Variant cover prices = These sell for a 10-30% Premium over Guide). Those back cover Variants with illustrations instead of ads are especially popular, as many have bonus features on the title character. Identified Variants are 2-10 times more saleable as compared to a standard issue (and at a premium too). In addition, I also sold most of my Canadian Editions of Dell comics. These are 10-20 times scarcer than the U.S. editions, but in the past these sold at discounts below Guide. With Variant collectors interest, I sold most of my remaining copies at U.S. Guide prices with no premiums.

VF or better and High Grade CGC copies of Dell comics (with the exception of high demand Key issues and titles) were once again slow sellers. Many sold at heavy discounts off Guide prices at eBay auctions. Meanwhile about 95% of our Dell sales were in the FR/GD (Reading Copies) thru FN (presentable, but still affordable) condition ranges. FN/VF and better copies were slower moving than usual this year. Most Dell comics in GD-FN are still undervalued in the Guide, while many VF-NM Dells are still overvalued in the Guide. This problem occurs because the "Price to Condition" spreads are far too wide. Wide price spreads for Marvel comics make sense, but do not apply well to Cartoon, Western and TV comics.

The bestselling titles (GD-FN = 120-140% Guide; FN/VF-VF/NM= 90-110% Guide) included: Adventures of Mighty Mouse, Air War, Annie Oakley, Bat Masterson, Beetle Bailey, Ben Bowie, Beverly Hillbillies, Bewitched, Big Valley, Bullwinkle, Cheyenne, Chilly Willy, Cisco Kid, Colt 45, Combat, Dell Giants, Dell Variants, Dunc & Loo, Flintstones, Flying Nun, Flying Saucers, Fritzi Ritz (with Peanuts), F-Troop, Gene Autry #101-121, Get Smart, Ghost Stories, Gidget, Have Gun Will Travel, Hogan's Heroes, Huckleberry Hound, I Dream of Jeannie, I Love Lucy, Indian Chief, Jetsons, John Carter of Mars, John Wayne titles, King of Royal Mounted, Kona, Laramie, Lawman, Leave It to Beaver, Little Lulu, Lone Ranger #112-145 & Tonto, March of Comics, Maverick, McHale's Navy, Melvin Monster, Monkees, Movie Classics (Western,

Gold Key Comics (see also Walt Disney Comics): We have over 35,000 in stock (world's biggest selection) thus these are always consistently good solid sellers. 90% of our inventory is GD-FN range grades, but we have a decent selection of FN/VF to VF/NM copies. Luckily, the GD-FN copies are the most popular and bestsellers for us. Titles most requested in VF or better include: Boris Karloff, Dr. Solar, Hanna-

Barbera titles, Magnus, Tarzan, Turok, Twilight Zone, plus Key issues, Horror/SF, TV, #1s and one-shots.

Gold Key Variants are still popular sellers. Whitman Variants of the Gold Key comics (11/1971 thru 4/1980 = 125-200% of GK issue values) (Canadian Newsstand Variant cover price issues (4-8/1968 with 15¢-c prices, 3/1972-4/1973 with 20¢-c prices; 12/1977-3/1978 with reverse 30¢-c prices) bring 125-150% Guide). (Whitman Variant 75¢-c price issues of 1984 Comics that are 60¢-c in USA bring 200-300% Guide).

The bestsellers this year included: (at VF-NM= 110-130% Guide; GD-FN=120-140% Guide) Addams Family, Amazing Chan, Atom Ant, Astro Boy, Auggie Doggie, Avengers (TV) #1 (photo back-c), Bamm Bamm, Banana Splits, Battle of the Planets, Beatles Yellow Submarine, Beneath Planet of Apes, Beetle Bailey, Boris Karloff, Bullwinkle, Cave Kids, Close Shaves of Pauline Peril, Daffy Duck #31-50, Dagar, Dan Curtis (Giveaways) #1-9, Daniel Boone, Dark Shadows, Doc Savage, Dr. Solar, Family Affair, Flash Gordon, Flintstones, Frankenstein Jr., Fun-In, Funky Phantom, George of the Jungle, Gold Key Spotlight, Gomer Pyle, Grimm's Ghost, Hair Bear Bunch, Hanna-Barbera Bandwagon, Hanna Barbera Super TV Heroes, Happy Days, Honey West, *H.R. Harvey Comics: All 1975 and older Cartoon titles were in good steady demand, in FR/GD through FN grades. Most 1976-1990 titles were in moderate demand (mostly in VG to VF grades). 1991-1994 titles all had low print runs (except for issue #1s) and are scarcer, with most issues always sold out with most major dealers. My minimum price for any of these is: VF/NM=$6; VF=$5; FN=$4; VG=$3; G=$2.

Bestselling titles (9.2=150% Guide; VF-VF/NM=115-130% Guide; GD-FN=120-150% Guide) include: all square-bound Giants, Alarming Tales, Alarming Adventures, Alvin, Astro Comics, Baby Huey, Black Cat, Blast-Off, Blondie (undervalued), Bunny, Casper the Friendly Ghost #1-20, Casper (assorted titles, 1961-1974), Casper's Ghostland, Casper & Nightmare, Chamber of Chills, Dagwood, Devil Kids, Dotty Dribble, Family Funnies, Felix the Cat, First Love, First Romance, Flintstones, Friendly Ghost Casper, Fruitman, Hanna-Barbera Giant Size, Harvey Collectors Comics, Harvey Hits, Harvey Pop, Hot Stuff the Little Devil, Jetsons, Joe Palooka, Little Audrey, Little Dot, Little Dot's Uncles & Aunts, Little Lotta, Little Max, Man in Black, Mazie, Mutt & Jeff, Playful Little Audrey, Pebbles & Bamm-Bamm, Richie Rich (all 1960-1974), Sad Sack (all pre-1975), Scooby Doo, Spooky, Stumbo Tintytown, Taste-Freeez, Thrill-O-Rama, Tomb of Terror, Tuff Ghosts, TV Casper & Co., Underdog, Unearthly Spectacular, Warfront, Wendy, Witches Tales and Yogi Bear.

Marvel Comics: To many collectors and dealers alike, back issue Marvels are the only comics really worth having. This narrow view is actually quite widespread, and Marvel comics are so much hoarded, that they have inevitably become the most common comics on the marketplace for the given time period. There are almost 5000 CGC graded copies of Incredible Hulk #181 and presumably 2-4 times as many still ungraded copies, yet it Guides at $1700 in 9.2. There are hundreds of other 1974 comics that are scarcer, yet they Guide at under 1% of that price. Although Marvel has published less than 5% of all extant comics, more dealer inventories have over 50% Marvel than otherwise. Incredibly, supply and demand is so high that prices continue to climb. For about 35 years now Marvel has been viewed by many as the safest publisher to collect and deal in.

How do you make a popular but common or uncommon comic into a Scarce to Rare Comic?? Not with magic, but by seeking only the highest graded copies! When everyone wants high grade, prices keep increasing like a juggernaut, thus the current state of the Market. High Grade Silver Age Marvel have priced many collectors out of that market toward Bronze Age, and now High Grade Bronze prices are driving many to Copper Age comics. In stamps, coins, sports cards and other hobbies, most of the money in the market is focused only on high grade slabbed copies. But in comics, this has not happened, because it is also a media artform, with probably still over 75% of the buyers still want them for story and art, not just for investment. Thus the comic collecting hobby is here to stay for the long haul. Quantity wise, over 90% of my Marvel comic sales are Good through VF condition copies, while only about 10% of my sale quantities are VF/NM or better "investment grade" copies.

Bestselling Marvels this year (GD-FN = 120-140% Guide; FN/VF-VF+ = 100-135% Guide; VF/NM, 9.0 to NM-, 9.2 = 120-150% Guide) included: Amazing Adventures #1,5-8, 11,18, Amazing Spider-Man #50, 96-150,194,300 and Annual #1,2, Astonishing Tales #1,12,25, Avengers #57-200 and Annual #1-10, Captain America #100,109-113,117,140-255 and Annual #1-4, Captain Britain (1976 UK) #1,8(1st Psylocke), Cat #1-4, Chamber of Chills #1-25, Champions #11-17, Conan #1, 3, 271-275, Creatures on the Loose #10-16, 30-37, Daredevil #50-158, 168 and Annual #1-4, Dead of Night #1-11, Deadly Hands of Kung Fu #1,14,17,28, Defenders #1-11, Dr. Strange(1974) #1,14,58-62, Dracula Lives #1-13, Fear #1-31, Fantastic

The Scarecrow of Romney Marsh

Walt Disney Comics: We have a large selection of about 20,000 Walt Disney comics in stock from all their publishers (Dell, Disney, Gemstone, Gladstone, Gold Key, March of Comics, Marvel, Whitman, etc.). Especially popular are all the Live Action TV Series and Movie Classic (both Cartoon and Live Action) comics. Scarecrow of Romney Marsh #1-3 are by far the most requested and impossible to keep in stock even at 200% Guide. The WD Showcase #53 reprint is also in high demand at 200% Guide. Pre-1950 Golden Age Disney titles were in steady demand and hard to re-stock.

Dell titles, the Four Color one-shot titles, Live Action comics (TV and Movie) were above-average sellers (except for the nature and science titles).

Bestselling pre-1985 comics this year (GD-FN = 120-140% Guide; FN/VF-VF+ = 100-135% Guide; VF/NM, 9.0 to NM-, 9.2 = 120-135% Guide) included: Annette (Funicello - all titles), Beagle Boys, Black Hole, Chip N' Dale, Condorman, Darby O'Gill, Davy Crockett (Fess Parker), many Dell Giants, Donald Duck, Dynabrite, Goofy FC, Greyfriars Bobby, Hayley Mills (all titles), Hardy Boys, Huey Dewie & Louie, Ludwig Von Drake, Mickey Mouse, Moby Duck, Movie Classics (most Live Action), Phantom Blot, Scamp, Scarecrow of Romney Marsh, Spin & Marty, Super Goof, Tinker Bell, Uncensored Mouse, Uncle Scrooge #1-60, 174-197, 285-320, Walt Disney Presents (hot title), Walt Disney Showcase, Winnie the Pooh, World of Adventure and Zorro (Guy Williams).

Warren, Skywald & Misc. Horror Comic Magazines - Warren: It seems strange now, but only about a decade ago Warren magazines were on the "Slow Selling List", and the market still had a lot of leftover Warren warehouse copies. As demand picked up, they all got absorbed into the marketplace and they have been in high demand ever since. Due to handling wear, the average Warren warehouse copy was in the FN through VF condition range, with only a small percentage in strict VF/NM range. The Warehouse copies have made them uncommon and still affordable (Creepy #1 with Frazetta art lists at only $230 in 9.2, but might currently be worth 10 times that, if it were not for the Warehouse copies). The issues that sold out earlier in the 1970s and 1980s warehouse, are still the scarcest issues today and many are consistently sold out and in short supply with most dealers.

Creepy, Eerie, Famous Monsters and Vampirella usually make up 90% of Warren sales, yet are less than 50% of the magazines they printed. There are more and more Warren completionists each year, thus the Scarce issues are very difficult to keep in stock. Low Grade Reading copies are amazingly fast sellers and actually bring good premiums. Middle Grade copies are the slower sellers. Creepy and Eerie #41-80 were the most requested issues in High Grades. Investors still want VF/NM or better copies and they get harder to restock each year.

The Highest Demand Warren magazines and scarcer issues include: Blazing Combat #1 & Anthology (GD-FN=300% Guide; VF-NM- = 200%), Comix International #1(200%), Creepy #32(200%), #9, 11, 19, 29, 76, 79, 146(150%), Creepy #10,14,17,18,34,39,46,47,50,53,63, 70,71,78,85, 91,113,132-145 (125% Guide); Best of Creepy paperback (VF $30), Dracula TPB (Maroto-a; 150%), Dracula (UK New English Library mag. editions #1-12; VF = $14; FN=$10; VG=$7 ea); Edgar Allan Poe's Fall of the House of Usher (Hardcover or Softcover 150%); Eerie #17(GD-FN=300%; VF-NM- = 200%); #1, 23(200%); #8, 25, 48, 135(150%); Eerie #18, 24, 28, 38-41,45, 60, 81,125,128, 130-134,136-139 (125% Guide); Famous Ackerman's Monsterland* (1984-1987) #1-17(VF= $12-24); Monster World (replaces Famous Monsters #70-79) #3(VF $60+); #4(VF $35+); Odd World of Richard Corben TPB (200%), On the Scene / Freakout nn (#1; Fall 1967 = 125%); Screen Thrills (1962-1965) #1,10(VF $75+); 2-4 (VF $50); Spacemen (Note: spines split easily, thus tough in VF or better) #1,3(VF=$200+); #2,4-8 and Yearbook (VF=$50-$75); Spirit Special (mail only, approx. 1500 printed = 150%), Outer Space Spirit (TPB; VF $35); Teen Love Stories #1-3 (115-125%), Tiny Tim(125%); Vampirella #1,3,112,113 (GD-FN=125-150% Guide; VF-NM- = 110-125%), #2,4-8,11,12,16,19,32-34,36,41, 45,46,48,49, 51,52,61,63,64,77,78,89,90, 100-111 (GD-FN=125-150% Guide; VF-NM- = 110-125%); #32-34 (spines split easily); Annual #1(125%), Special #1(Softcover=125%; rare Hardcover=200%), Vampirella paperbacks #1-3(VF=$30; FN=$20; GD=$10), 4-6(VF=$50; FN=$30; GD=$15); Vampirella UK mags #1-4(VF $50 ea); Warren Presents #13, 14(150%); Wildest Westerns/Favorite Westerns of Filmland (Note: spines split easily, thus tough in VF or better) #1 (VF=$200; GD=$50); #2(VF=$100; GD=$35); #3-6 (VF=$60; GD=$20).

Skywald: The Skywald magazines (Crime-Machine, Hell-Rider, Nightmare, Psycho and Scream) are in constant demand, are 3-6 times harder to find than Warren magazines and are very hard to keep in stock. These are great horror comics and a "must try" for fans of the Genre. Fans especially like the issues with: Al Hewetson stories, Dracula, Edgar Allan Poe, Frankenstein, Heap, "Horror-Mood", H.P. Lovecraft, Human Gargoyles, Lady Satan, Nosferatu, Werewolves, etc. Especially in demand are issues with art by: John Byrne, Everett, Jeff Jones, Bruce Jones, Kaluta, Marcos, Segrelles, Boris Vallejo, Wrightson, etc. The Horror-Mood issues are said to have inspired Stephen King. VF or better copies are especially difficult to find and are in very high demand. Reading copies sell as fast as we get them. King mags (3-7/1971; Boris-a) are rare (#1 VF = $75; #2 VF=$50); Crime-Machine and Hell-Rider are also decent sellers (#1s = 150%; #2s = 120%). Nightmare, Psycho and Scream (GD-FN= 140-165%; VF-NM- = 120-140%).

Miscellaneous Horror Magazines: Those by Eerie Pub, Globe, Hamilton, Major, Modern Day, Stanley, Tempest Pub

and World Famous are in steady demand. Affordable Reading copies are in very high demand and sell as fast as we find them. VF/NM or better copies are getting scarcer and are usually good sellers, but a bit slower this year due to the economy. The Eerie Pub and Stanley magazines feature “Wild Shocking Gruesome” colorful covers that are the biggest appeal in these. The interiors also include: Blood & Gore, Bloody Stake Through the Heart, Bondage, Decapitations, Severed Heads & Limbs, Skeletons, Torture, Vampires, Werewolves and more. Stanley Pub magazines have a lot of pre-Code horror reprints, with less copies on the marketplace, making them faster sellers. The 1966-1970 issues and the Low Print 1980-1983 issues are the Scarcest and the toughest issues for completionists.

Bestsellers this year (VF-VF/NM=110-125% Guide; GD-FN=130-160% Guide) included: Castle of Frankenstein #1-25, Chilling Tales of Horror, Dread of Night, Ghoul Tales, Grace Tales, Hammer magazines (UK), Horror Tales, Maggots, Monsters Attack, Murder Tales, Shock, Stark Terror, Tales From The Crypt, Tales of the Killers, Tales From the Tomb (1969-70 issues), Tales of Voodoo (1968-70 issues), Terrors of Dracula (all), Terror Tales (1969-70 issues), Web of Horror, Weird (1966-1970, 1979-1981), Weird Vampire Tales (all) and Witches Tales (1969-70).

Christopher Swartz Collector

This past year has been a turbulent time for the back issue comic book market, for all issues, from all ages, with the exception of key Golden Age and key mid to high grade Silver Age issues. All other issues need to decrease or stay at their current Guide value. Even some keys from these eras have been affected by slow sales and troubling economic times. There were three major comic book based movies that came out in 2011 (Thor, Green Lantern, Captain America) which increased demand in key books from these characters, even if the movies didn't live up to fan based expectations.

This being my third year as an Overstreet Advisor, an alarming trend that I have noticed is many advisors, although not all, tend to report overinflated prices for comics and state that year every is a tremendous year for comic sales. This troubling trend can hurt the integrity of the Overstreet Price Guide for the simple fact, that anyone can log on to Heritage, Comiclink, GPA, and even eBay to see the actual fair market value for certain comic books. No one is going to pay $6,000 for an CGC 4.0 Fantastic Four #1 when you can see from any of the above mentioned sites, that copies of that book have been selling for well below that price. I know from experience that the majority of advisors are dealers, and selling comic books is their livelihood, but trying to increase values on certain books to make a profit without actual market facts to support these claims is going to turn people away from utilizing the Overstreet Guide as a resource. Let's dive into the comic book market for 2011.

Golden Age – DC: No big changes here with what issues have been in demand: Action Comics #1-23, Detective Comics #27-40, Batman #1-5, All-American #16, More Fun Comics #52,73, and Wonder Woman #1-6. Action Comics Superman covers (#7,10,13,15) have been selling well above Guide value, with an Action #10 CGC 3.0 selling for $20,000. Same trend with Detective Comics Batman covers (#29,31,33,35,36,37) all selling for a premium. The most popular Golden Age issues this past year have been pre-Robin Detective #27-37, which have been selling for around three times current Guide value.

There have been many keys that have been on a downward spiral, except in high grade, such as All Star Comics #3, Adventure Comics #40, Flash Comics #1, and even Superman #1 selling for below Guide value. Superman #1 is and always will be a desirable book, but I think collectors are not as willing to spend outlandish prices, as in the past, on a book that just reprints the first four issues of Action Comics.

Golden Age – Timely/Marvel: Captain America Comics #1-10 (Kirby issues) have had an increase in demand this past year, most likely because of the feature film of the Captain. The only other Timely that has been consistently selling at or above Guide value, has been Marvel Mystery Comics #9, but even this has seen a decrease in sales price in the later part of 2011. Recently in November, a CGC 2.5 copy of Marvel Mystery #9 sold for $5,300, a far cry from what earlier prices of this book have fetched. All other Timely issues have been in demand but selling for under Guide value, with Marvel Comics #1 still being a “for sure” sell if it is priced right. I anticipate All-American Comics #16 or Batman #1 taking over the 4th most valuable comic book spot from Marvel Comics #1 within the next few years.

All other Golden Age: Pep Comics #22 and Archie Comics #1 have sold very well whenever copies arise. Other books such as Whiz Comics #1 have been easy to sell, but only at below Guide value. EC Horror comics always sell really well, along with Good Girl issues of Phantom Lady #17 and Blue Beetle #54 being in high demand.

Silver Age - DC: The main DC key books during this time-frame that had the most interest this past year are: Showcase #4, 22, Brave & the Bold #28 (1st JLA), Adventure Comics #247 (1st Legion), and Flash #105. All of these books have sold quite well during 2011 and can be had for a fraction of their Marvel counterparts. Finding a mid to high grade copy of any of these issues is far more difficult than finding a X-Men #1 or Tales of Suspense #39 in the same grade. War issues such as Our Army at War #81-83 (1st Sgt. Rock) have shown an increase in interest, with prices reflecting the demand.

Silver Age – Marvel: Amazing Fantasy #15 has continued to be the top book from this era, with prices in all grades, especially 5.0 VG/FN and above, consistently selling for many times above Guide. A CGC 6.0 Twin Cities pedigree copy sold for $20,000 this past November. Journey Into Mystery #83 has been a strong seller this past year as well as Avengers #1, Incredible Hulk #1, Fantastic Four #5, and Tales to Astonish #27. However Fantastic Four #1 and Amazing

Spider-Man #1 have been selling under Guide value in mid-to-low grades and the Guide needs to reflect this. Sgt. Fury and His Howling Commandos #1 is still the most undervalued Silver Age Marvel. If you are able to obtain a VF or better

Sgt. Fury #1 is possibly the most undervalued Silver Age Marvel.

Bronze Age - Marvel:

Within recent years there has been an increase in supply of high grade books from the Bronze Age. This is because many key books from the Bronze Age are being pressed. Eight years ago there were maybe 20 copies of Incredible Hulk #181 in CGC 9.6, now there are hundreds of copies in 9.6 or higher, with many being pressed. While it may seem like a good idea right now to press a key book to obtain a higher grade, what affect will this have on the comic market when it becomes saturated with pressed books? Incredible Hulk #181, Amazing Spider-Man #129, Ghost Rider #1, and Marvel Spotlight #5 in high grade have been selling well, but for all other issues the Guide needs to lower their values, such as Giant-Size X-Men #1 and X-Men #94. Both of these books supply has exceeded demand.

Bronze Age - DC: The only books during this time that deserve a price increase are high grade copies of Green Lantern #76, Batman #227-251, Detective Comics #400, and All-Star Western #10.

San Diego Comic-Con: The best way I can describe this year's past Con is, way too many people that aren't comic book fans. There are less and less comic book dealers and collectors that show up to Con because it has lost touch with its roots, which is a love of comic books. Con has become too Hollywood for its own good, while starting to alienate true comic book fans. I don't feel the need to fight my way through thousands of Twilight tweens in order to get an autograph from my favorite comic book artist. I would like to see the Con administrators plan more comic book related events and panels, as opposed to the current regimen of everything but comics. As for obtaining any significant comics during Con this year, I did not make any purchases. I did obtain a Jim Aparo Brave & the Bold #174 original cover art, but there were no deals on any key books at the show. As a side note, if you are looking to attend a comic show that has a good amount of dealers and a comic fan friendly atmosphere, contact Terry O'Neill of Terry's Comics. For the past few years now Terry O'Neill has been conducting a show in Yorba Linda, CA, which has been a great venue to purchase back-issues, while not having to deal with non-comic fans.

Important Sales or Purchases:

Action Comics #40 CGC 2.5 $325
Adventure Comics #247 CGC 5.0 $1,200
Batman #59 CGC 5.0 $280
Brave and the Bold #28 CGC 3.5 $950
Captain America Comics #7 CGC 5.0 (Joe Simon Signature Series) $2,300
Fantastic Four #1 CGC 4.5 $4,300

X-Men #1 CGC 4.0 $1,350

On an end note, collectors need to realize that the Overstreet Price Guide is exactly that, a guide. The prices contained in this book are not the end all or be all of comic book prices, but should be used as a reference to the current comic book market place. The Overstreet Price Guide has been the one true comic book price guide since 1970 and hopefully for the foreseeable future, but if the Guide does not reflect the actual market activity, then I can see some collectors opting to stop using the Guide as a resource. Until next year, stay fan-boys my friends.

Michael Tierney Collector's Edition & The Comic Book Store

The traditional selling seasons for new comics were flip-flopped in 2011 when the mainstream DC universe ended with little pomp or fanfare, and was replaced by the alternate reality universe of Flashpoint for what turned out to be a summer of filler when DC announced that once Flashpoint concluded there would be a complete reboot. DC then confused the message when they added that it was really more of a relaunch of titles like Batman and Green Lantern, which would retain some of their history, but not all. Many long-term fans were angered, especially with the abandonment of Action Comics' numbering that was nearing #1000, and ended their collections immediately. The normally strongest new comic sales months of the Summer were a disappointment.

But when the actual launch hit in September, it was well supported by a media campaign that reached new and lapsed readers alike. Having started making my own TV commercials, I had fortuitous timing when my commercial plugging the event, and the 29th anniversary of my first store, Collector's Edition, ran on the same programming.

For the first time ever, September was the best month of the year. But, to put it in proper perspective, it was only my 6th best September out of 30, showing how far new comic sales had fallen.

Marvel's plan for the year was much the same as it has been for years. The longer running series got relaunched with #1 issues, and a Super-Hero died every few months. The first to die, while achieving decent sales numbers, was the Human Torch, who'd soon return in a special that reverted to the original numbering of #600. I figured wrong when I thought that the death of the Ultimate Spider-Man would have even greater demand. It didn't. There was no interest from non-regulars, as the general public apparently knew the difference between the Amazing and Ultimate Spider-Men.

But Marvel's relaunches, including the introduction of Peter Parker's replacement of half-black/half-hispanic Miles Morales as the Ultimate Spider-Man, only achieved temporary boosts, and subsequently fell to numbers less than the original series they had replaced.

Marvel's big summer crossover event of Fear Itself sold well with the core titles, but poorly with the spin-off mini-series. It's clear that fans are no longer enamored with either big Event series or the now common #1 issues, and many would actually prefer the continuity of high numbers. DC's success in spite of this trend was largely due to their mass media ad campaign, shown by the way those characters featured in their commercials are the ones who did well, while the rest of the New 52 quickly slipped back to pre-Flashpoint numbers and lower. This fact is illustrated by how all of the #1 issues were reprinted, sometimes multiple times, but for the #2 issues there were only a handful.

New readers are what pushed sales up on Justice League, Superman, Batman, Aquaman, and Wonder Woman. But creating new readers remains the area where publishers still need more improvement.

When DC made their switch to digital, they finally adopted a grading system. The only problem with this was that every single title of DC's new 52 was rated Teen Plus. The all-important new customer market of the Tweeners was completely ignored, with everything aimed either at older readers or the Kiddie books of Johnny DC, with nothing for ages 9 through early Teens. Marvel did only a smattering of books, as true All-Ages material was as scarce as ever, despite the enthusiasm of youth for comics being as great as ever. This year's crowds for our annual "Halloween On the Hill" at Collector's Edition numbered in the thousands. One young girl was so excited about her Strawberry Shortcake comic that she threw down her candy pail and walked off, so engrossed in reading that she fell twice within a few steps, but kept popping back up with unbroken attention.

As much as digital is now being touted, holding an actual comic in your hands is something that will provide a unique experience long after the current digital platforms have become obsolete, like 8-track or VHS tapes. It is clear that text conversion to digital is impacting the chain booksellers, who had previously wiped out all the independent bookstores, so much so that the local Yellow Pages informed me that next year they were dropping the "Book Dealers -- Retail" listing. But, just as the piano survived technological evolutions in music, the combination of graphics and words in comic books makes this a format best presented in print. Then there's the whole collectability aspect that digital can never compete with.

So, given how obvious it is that back issue sales in 2011 were not driven by new comics sales, and how last year I didn't see a single back issue sale for over $300.00, you might think that this year would be a repeat. But the exact opposite happened as back issues were hot in 2011, with extra sizzle being provided by this year's batch of Super-Hero movies.

Thor hammered the registers twice, first with the theatrical release and again with Blu-Ray and DVD, selling many dozens of Jack Kirby issues in Journey Into Mystery and Thor in the $15 to $45 range. Captain America might have done the same but, outside of his first appearance in Avengers #4, there really aren't a lot of high-dollar Captain America comics from the Silver Age, and much less Kirby.

Green Lantern back issue sales were also way up thanks to a movie adaptation. Key sales include a Fair copy of #1 for $60.00, and Hector Hammond's first appearance in Green Lantern #5 in GD+ for $60.00

But it wasn't just movie related back issues that were selling. It seemed that the more customers were disappointed with the summer's slate of new comics, the more they delved into the past.

The Amazing Spider-Man was hopping, selling the 1st appearance of the Lizard in a Poor copy of #3 for $45.00, #13 in VG- for $67.50, and the three controversial drug issues of #96 in FN for $27.00, #97 in VF for $28.00, and #98 in VF+ for $37.50. Sold two copies of Morbius' 1st appearance in #101, one in GD+ for $15.00 and another in VG+ for $38.00. The Death of Gwen Stacy in #121 in FN+ went for $70.00, the 1st appearance of the Punisher in #129 in VG sold lightning fast for $60.00, and the 1st Tarantula in #134 in VF went for $26.25.

First appearances were a key as ever. The 1st appearances of the Silver Surfer and Galactus in Fantastic Four #48 sold in FN for $116.25, their 2nd appearance in #49 went in VF for $120.00, and their 3rd in #50 in FN went for $97.50.

I sold a number of key appearances in the Brave and the Tiny Titans was a bright spot in a market that offers few new books for young readers.

Bold, including #12 with the 4th Challengers of the Unknown in GD for $86.00, and #31 with Aquaman in VF- for $157.50. Sold two copies of #54 featuring the 1st appearance and origin of the Teen Titans, one in VG for $55.00 and a FN+ for $60.00. In Showcase, I sold the 2nd appearance of the Sea Devils in #28 in VF for $125.00, and the 1st Silver Age Spectre in #60 in VG for $36.00. Another key 1st appearance was that of Darkseid in Superman's Pal Jimmy Olsen #134 in FN+ for $17.25.

The 1st Appearance of Iron Fist in Marvel Premiere #15 sold in VF+ for $55.00, and the origin of the Venom Costume in Marvel Super-Heroes Secret Wars #8 sold in NM for $25.00. The origin of the Watcher told in Tales of Suspense #53 went in GD for $24.75. Sold an entire run of the reprint issues of X-Men in issues #67 through #93. X-Men as a whole sold very well this year.

My best sales were from the Golden Age, starting with Lex Luthor's second appearance in Superman #4, with a Good copy selling for $650.00. I also sold two copies of Superman #18, one in Good for $275.00 and another in GD- $200.00. Other notable Superman sales were issue #69 in Good for $52.50, and Superman's Pal Jimmy Olsen #7 in FN- for $71.25.

Batman also had some good Golden Age activity with #24 in GD $90.00, #35 in GD for $80.00, #41 in VG for $155.00, and #98 in FN- for $175.00. Batman in Detective Comics #95 sold in VG+ for $150.00, and #136 in VG+ for $100.00.

Just about everything was moving. Simon & Kirby's Adventures of the Fly #1 sold in VG+ for $67.75. And the Western comics even saw some action with Gunsmoke #1 selling in FN+ for $62.50, the Real Life Story of Fess Parker #1 in VG for $18.00, and Roy Rogers #10 in VF for $77.75.

Funny Animals were not to be ignored, as Fox & Crow #1 sold in VG+ for $62.50 and Quick Draw McGraw (Four Color) #1040 in VG- for $21.00. Even the TV puppet Howdy Doody #6 sold in FN+ for $78.00.

Those were the bigger books. Eighties comics also moved very well, and I literally sold a ton of 'reading material' out of my 50 cent boxes. Here the Comics Code Approval was heavily sought out by parents, making even the cheapest Nineties and early New Millennium comics difficult to move without any kind of ratings guidelines.

One Nineties comic that did move was New Mutants #98, featuring the 1st appearance of Deadpool. Sold a copy in NM for $40.00 and a MT copy for $50.00.

All in all, it was a banner year for old comic sales!

Overall, people are being more cautious. High grade and really significant pieces are very strong, but regular stuff is hit or miss. For example, Fantastic Four #5 in VF condition is going to sell quickly at a healthy price, but Fantastic Four #42 in Fine will have to be discounted for it to move in a reasonable amount of time.

I believe the internet, as time goes by, shows what's truly scarce and special and what isn't. Certain Golden Age books and titles, such as Speed and Prize Comics, are genuinely tough to find in any grade, while nearly all Silver and Bronze Age books are available plentifully. Of course demand is a huge driver. Incredible Hulk #181 and Amazing Spider-Man #129 are common, but there's endless demand for them!

The market's strong at the core, with an ever larger amount of material needing to be discounted, some to get it sold. Certified books remain very strong, although the standard multiples of Guide prices no longer apply. It's become more complex, as certain issues are preceived as harder to locate than others, driving the price on those upward. So, an Amazing Spider-Man #10 in CGC 9.2 will go for above Guide price, but not much, while Amazing Spider-Man #9 in CGC 9.2 will go for much more. Just doesn't turn up as often. Also page quality has become more important. We had an Incredible Hulk #181 CGC 9.8 with off-white pages. A copy in 9.8 with white pages had sold for $24,000, and a copy with off-white to white pages sold for $20,000. Our copy sold for $17,000. That's quite a difference for the same grade!

The Original Art market has been steadily growing. It's a bit of a star system. Regular decent pages will sell for very reasonable prices, while outstanding or historic pages sell for big $$$. Covers and splash pages which are most "poster-like" sell for by far the most, and pages with good characters and action do very well. Artists such as Kirby, Ditko, Steranko, Smith, Wrightson, Wood lead the way.

Metropolis Collectibles, Inc.

When I came into this business, I didn't know where it would take me or how things would work out. I was and continue to be a very competitive person. Every day I feel like I am climbing a mountain. Every day I am almost at the top, yet the next day the mountain is taller. My companies have accomplished some amazing things over the last few years. After selling the first $1,000,000.00 comic book in 2010 (Action Comics #1 CGC 8.0) and the most expensive comic ever sold for $1,500,000.00 (Action Comics #1 CGC 8.5), I challenged my partner, my employees and myself with the task of topping 2010. It was no easy task, but we did it! In 2011, we sold the first Silver Age comic book to break the million mark with the sale of Amazing Fantasy #15 CGC 9.6 for $1,100,000.00 and broke our own record with the sale of the 9.0 Action Comics #1 CGC 9.0 at $2,161,000.00. 2012 is coming and it will receive the same challenge. I am hopeful that by the time you read this market report, we will have changed the collecting world once more.

2011 will be remembered for the debut of the Atlantic

City Collection. It was one of the most exciting auctions of the year. The sales of the Captain America Comics #1 CGC 9.2 for $343,057.00 and the Action Comics #10 CGC 9.2 for $258,000.00 were astounding highlights. This original owner collection proved that there were still fresh, high-grade Golden Age collections out there that could change the comic collecting landscape.

The Silver Age market has dominated the headlines for a number of years. This is due to the popularity of the characters, the movies, the abundance of high-grade material, and of course, the record prices realized. This year we made news with the aforementioned Amazing Fantasy #15 9.6 sale, the Amazing Fantasy #15 CGC 9.4 at $325,000.00, the Avengers #1 CGC 9.6 for $250,000.00, the X-Men #1 CGC 9.6 for $200,000.00 and Showcase #4 CGC 9.2 for $100,000.00.

The Golden Age market continues to percolate and grow in its importance. Aside from the major six and seven figure priced sales mentioned in the preceding paragraphs, we have also noticed an increasing demand for low- and mid-priced Golden Age titles. We are seeing sales increases across many publishers and titles, not just Timely and DC. A growing number of astute collectors are buying these truly rare comic books. This is a trend I confidently expect to see more of in 2012.

One last incredibly important auction result to take note of is that of the first appearance of the original Captain Marvel in Whiz #1 CGC 6.0 for $176,007.000. Many have often said this book, whose character outsold Superman for years, was under-valued and under-appreciated. With this price realized, this is no longer the case. This is another indicator that the Golden Age of Comics has returned.

The Bronze Age has been affected in an adverse manner by the increase in the number of high-grade copies joining the census. I have found that the prices have plateaued to a certain extent, and stability and slight growth has been restored. I grew up during the Bronze Age of comics and never get tired of seeing super high grade copies of 1970s Avengers and Green Lantern. I know there are many people out there who feel the same way and continue to put Bronze Age runs together. Don't be afraid to do this. Enjoy, have fun, you will get some great deals and better yet, it will put a big smile on your face.

I sincerely want to thank every one of you who has made a purchase from us in the recent or distant past. You have given me a profession about which I am very passionate and something I am proud to do. In return, I will continue to do my very best to promote our hobby, and to expound upon its virtues as a true American art form, a dynamic form of entertainment and a valuable method of growing one's wealth. From the bottom of my heart, thank you all.

In closing, I'd like to share a little bit about my background. My parents came to the United States from Italy in the 1960s. They spoke very little English, had next to no money and were basically living in a cousin's basement sleeping on lawn furniture. My father worked three jobs washing dishes in restaurants and pizzerias all over New York City trying to build a future for his family. He learned how to make pizza and the very next day, got a job as a pizzaiolo. From there he learned how to butcher and cook classic southern Italian dishes. He saved and saved and eventually opened his own pizzeria in Brooklyn. From there he would open a number of well-received restaurants with names like Napoli, In Roma Di Notte, Il Pescatore and Villa Venezia. My mother, an amazing woman, great cook, seamstress and super home-maker, raised me and my two older brothers in Rockaway Beach, Queens. I share this story to give you an insight into who I am and where I come from. From a very early age, my parents instilled in me the idea that if you studied and worked hard, you could become anything you wanted in this great country of ours. I believe these are the key ingredients that have led to my success. Thanks mom and dad. And again, I thank all of you for your support and patronage.

Frank Cwiklik - Metropolis Collectibles, Inc.

I spend most of my days sitting in a wheely chair surrounded by boxes of old comics answering hundreds of emails and occasionally getting up to grab lunch or another stack of Golden Age bags. I do far less phone work now than I did when I first started, and the majority of my client contact comes via email or the website. Because of this, I have become very attuned to crowds and clientele at conventions, as these have become the few times I can really interact one-on-one in person with our busy customer base, and to make new contacts. It also means I notice big changes in interest and interaction with comics customers on the whole, as I only see them a few times a year and the little changes that other folks might miss become more pronounced to me. Here's what I've noticed, all of which are very positive for the vintage comics market.

First, the age and gender of vintage comics buyers is changing. In a market predominantly made up of males in their 30s through 50s, it really stands out when you have a number of women, both old and young, stopping by and buying books with knowledge and a clear sense of what they like and what comics will suit them, not to mention the influx of relatively younger buyers who are flush with their first real money and are looking to start collecting long-term. I made several new client contacts at Chicago and San Diego this year, all women, who collect everything from Black Canary to St. John's titles, to Baker and Heath art, and who are all knowledgeable and ready to buy. The stereotype of the Golden and Silver Age comics collector (see: The Simpsons), never really accurate to begin with, is finally starting to crumble as these new buyers enter the market with confidence and enthusiasm. Much of this can be attributed to the second observation I've made this year...

The vintage comics market has penetrated the mainstream consciousness in a big way. Unlike the speculator boom of the '90s, when the cheap faddishness of modern collecting tarnished the perceptions and appearance of comic book collecting, the price tags of high-profile books and the professional appearance put forth through internet, TV and convention appearances, have made an indelible impact on the average person's perceptions of our business. Our COO, Vincent Zurzolo, has diligently made the rounds of major media outlets, giving a public face to the overall comics market that wipes out the misperceptions that have previously made it hard to attract collectors from other fields such as fine art or rare books. When I first started doing conventions some years ago (you kids get off my lawn), I would spend half my day at the booth fielding questions from people who had no idea of the value of the books, or waving away lookie-loos who would paw at the booth not knowing that they were touching thousands of dollars worth of material. What I saw this past year in San Diego, especially, but also in Chicago and New York, were hundreds of people stopping before our booth and quietly explaining to each other, as though they were in a library or museum, that these were the books they saw on CNN, or that they read about on Scoop, etc. The average person is now more likely to understand the value and significance of what we do and what we sell than at any time in our business' history. This is instrumental to the third point I've discovered this past year...

Everyone wants in. I have no less than a dozen new clients in our database who explicitly and specifically sought us out this past year to move their money into vintage comics, either for long-term investment or for pleasure, but usually both. The runaway success of high-profile books sold by us has attracted buyers who are looking for tangible investments that are not prey to the volatility of the stock market or real estate, and not choked by the erratic regulatory environment that is unnerving so many other markets and spooking investors. The new buyers coming in are impressed by the stability and simplicity of the comics market, and like having an asset that they not only understand, but that brings them great pleasure. Again, the newfound and hard-earned respect given to our field is the reason this is possible, and it hasn't happened overnight. One new client told me he loves the idea of simply having a book he really likes, keeping it tucked away, pulling it out to enjoy it, and knowing that when he's ready to sell, all he has to do is come to us, name a price, and we'll get it sold for him. (Yes, I know, there are a few extra steps in there, but you must admit it's easier than selling real estate. And more fun.)

Speaking of fun, this brings me to the last observation, which seems counterintuitive, but not really...

The pop culture monster that swallowed San Diego may not be such a monster after all. Every year, I hear a few older buyers or more determined comic nerds bemoan the size of San Diego or Chicago's pop culture areas, complaining that the comics have been forgotten. And yet, the number of calls I've gotten this year from clients, or emails, or messages over the site, mentioning that they saw us on their local news promoting one of the big cons, or that they got our card from our booth at Wizard or C2E2, or just new customers finding us through one of these big popular culture cons, tells me that the old-school comics booths are finding their way into their consciousness just as much as the enormous movie and TV booths are spreading across the sales floor. I'd always hoped that the increased attention from mainstream culture to the world of comics would translate into sales for our end of the business, and slowly but surely, it seems to be happening. I have a small group of new solid buyers who we only met because they were intrigued by the size and scale of the Chicago or San Diego or New York shows, and who came to check them out. Would I have met those buyers without their showing up to see an Avengers movie display or to see the Batmobile? Maybe, maybe not. What I can tell you is that without the media saturation that Reed, San Diego, and Wizard all attract for their shows, our business may not have been able to get the leg up on other collectibles that it has.

Speaking of conventions, an experiment Metropolis conducted in San Diego was one of the most enjoyable sales events we've organized yet, and one of the most successful. A longtime friend and client of Metropolis amassed an impressive mid- and high-grade Timely collection, including a full Captain America run and extensive runs of most other Timely titles like All Winners, All Select, Human Torch, Marvel Mystery and USA Comics. It was an awesome run of books, and knowing that we needed to give it the exposure it deserved, we brainstormed on how to make the biggest impact. Vincent knew that San Diego would be the ideal show at which to sell the books, but we took it much further, making it a full event, waiting until Preview Night of San Diego Con to reveal the books at both the show and on the website. It took some coordination and luck, as there was the risk that the books would fire too early on the site, or that technical glitches would make them available too late and books would be sold at the show before online buyers had a chance to grab them. Thankfully, I was able to stay on the phone with our Vice President Ben Smith at the office while our team pulled down the curtains on the display booth, and the sale went live simultaneously at San Diego and on MetropolisComics.com. The night went off without a hitch, as I pulled books from the wall as they sold on site, and removed books from site inventory as we sold them at the booth. There was a buzz at the con and a major frenzy ensued. I discovered later that some extremely eager Timely collectors were buying on their smart phones while standing by the booth in case one or the other method failed them!

The promotion, coordination and excitement that was generated led us to the best single-day con sales in our history, and nearly half the collection was sold within the first week. This made our client, who was in San Diego to watch the fun from a front row seat, very pleased indeed. It was one of the most rewarding evenings I've had in this business, and I'm now trying to come up with an even better opening-night event for next year!

Sales from the Super-Soldier collection generated enough heat to make the Wizard World Chicago show the strongest yet. In fact, many of the sales at Wizard Chicago this year were Timely sales, though there were some old standbys making strong showings, as Fiction House, EC, and even Prize titles sold very well, in both high grades and reader grades, showing that this con has become the go-to place for specialized and scholarly collectors looking for merchandise that might seem lost in the shuffle of key issues and high-grade auctions. I'd also note that our sales in general, both at shows and on our site, have reflected a return to more rare titles and publishers, and obscure Golden Age inventory that sat unjustly neglected for some years is now once again generating interest. Most of the books I brought to conventions per request this year tended to be "caviar" books, which are the kind I really enjoy seeing and selling, so it made me a very happy camper indeed.

As for the other two monster shows of the year, Big Apple, as always, is a hometown favorite that hearkens back to the glory days of Seuling shows and church-basement swap meets. Not that the sale of a 7.5 Amazing Fantasy #15 for $48,000 is anything to sniff at, so it's not like the Penn Plaza shows don't attract their fair share of killer sales. Again, strong sales of titles like Hit Comics, Smash Comics, and a Silver Streak #1 goes to prove that the classic Golden Age scarcities are coming back into play in an increasingly specialized and educated market.

New York Comic Con was, as always, an impressive and audience-gobbling show. We scored some impressive sales, including the Super Soldier copy of the ultra-scarce All-American Comics #61, Plastic Man #1 VF/NM and a solid 9.4 PGX Incredible Hulk #181. Again, at this show, we met serious buyers from all over the U.S. and overseas who came specifically because of the hype over record-breaking comics and the size of the convention, and who had not been buyers to that point. Something is working!

Finally, Reed's feisty and colorful upstart, C2E2, once again proved that Chicago can support a San Diego-sized con, and again, unexpected and unusual titles anchored our sales, with solid books from ACG, Quality, Better, and others. Of course, there was no shortage of terrific key sales, such as the ubiquitous Amazing Fantasy #15, this time selling in 5.5 CGC, plus the 9.8 Boston copy of Captain America #109, a really handsome Journey Into Mystery #83 in 8.5 CGC, and a nice Fantastic Four #20 in 9.4 CGC. We made many new contacts at this show thanks to strong prices and a general public awareness of the seriousness of the comics investing market.

I'd said last year that there was no one magic bullet for our business. The popularity and success of our web site, the changing nature of conventions, and the new customers resulting from both require us to think smart and adapt to a changing landscape. The excitement seen in our new clients, the media and "civilian" attention paid to our business, and the long-term goodwill and business created, make everything worthwhile. It's my hope that some of the folks reading this now are the new collectors who've been enticed into the market by these changes and successes. If so, welcome. The best is yet to come! For those of you who've been collecting for years through thick and thin, congratulations. I think we've all finally hit the big time. As always, feel free to drop me a line at orders@metropoliscomics.com or call 1-800-229-METRO extension 10.

Robert Reynolds - ComicConnect.com

When ComicConnect.com launched in the summer of 2007, we had no idea that the business would one day hold the records for the three most expensive comic book sales in history. On November 30, 2011, we set the world record for a comic book sale with Action Comics #1 CGC 9.0 at $2,161,000, beating out our previous world record of a CGC 8.5 copy for $1,500,000, and making it the first and only comic book to ever break the $2 million dollar mark. This was not ComicConnect.com's only 7-figure sale for the record books in 2011. Earlier in March, we set the record for the most expensive Silver Age comic book ever sold with the highest graded copy of Amazing Fantasy #15 CGC 9.6 for $1,100,000.00. Our quarterly Event Auctions, our Monthly Auctions, and our fixed price marketplace have become a destination for smart collectors and dealers alike.

In April of this year, there was much excitement and the industry was abuzz when we helped recover the stolen copy of Action Comics #1 that belonged to our client, actor Nicolas Cage. Eleven years ago, the comic was stolen out of a display vault at his house after a party. ComicConnect.com was contacted by a California entrepreneur hoping to make a few bucks buying the contents of auctioned-off storage units. He had stumbled across a once-in-a-lifetime find: a high-grade copy of Action Comics #1. Unfortunately for the California man, it was THE Action Comics #1—the same one that was stolen in 2000. Stephen Fishler, our CEO, flew to California and recovered the comic with the help of the LAPD.

2011 also saw ComicConnect.com's addition of four-color print catalogs to promote our online Event Auctions. The positive feedback we received from both buyers and sellers was overwhelming. Collectors loved having something tangible in their hands to help them pinpoint the comics and original art lots they wanted to bid upon. Consignors were overjoyed to have the benefit of a print catalog, but still only pay a 10% seller's commission with no buyer's premiums. The debut of our auction catalogs has truly created a "cake and eat it too" phenomenon helping to make ComicConnect.com a very viable selling option for collectors everywhere.

This year ComicConnect.com debuted the Atlantic City Collection as well as the Oregon Collection in our August and November Event Auctions. The Atlantic City Collection was comprised of some of the highest graded Golden Age Comics such as Action Comics #10 CGC 9.0, Action Comics #13 CGC 9.2, Action Comics #19 CGC 9.4 and Detective Comics #25 CGC 9.0. I was blown away when I saw the comics in person. It's almost easier to believe the owner had a time machine. For a collector to have kept these amazing comics in such pristine shape and off the market for 70 years is simply incredible.

High grade Silver Age DC collectors were also happy to see ComicConnect.com's introduction of The Oregon Collection: a 1950's Superman-centric collection kept in perfect climate conditions.

Collectors know that it is nearly impossible to find this material in high grade with superior page quality. The collection contained both the highest graded first appearance of Supergirl in Action Comics #252 CGC 9.2 as well as the highest graded Superman's Girlfriend Lois Lane #1 CGC 8.0. Professional graders who had a chance to view the collection in person described the comics as "stunning" and "freakishly well-preserved."

For the happy surprise of the year, on December 3rd, Whiz Comics #2 (#1) CGC 6.0 hammered at an astounding $176,007. The comic features the first appearance and origin of Captain Marvel. SHAZAM!

ComicConnect.com sold fifteen comics each for over $100,000 in 2011 including five copies of Action Comics #1, four copies of Amazing Fantasy #15 and two Superman #1's.

THE WAR REPORT

by Matt Ballesteros & the War Correspondents
Richard Evans, Andy Greenham, and Mick Rabin

Welcome to the fourth edition of the War Report! A comprehensive chronicle specifically focused on the War comic genre; composed by devoted collectors, enthusiasts, and subject matter experts who have toiled to provide you with an annual account of the activities within the War comic book marketplace. The report includes ruminations on the creative forces behind the War comic classification, speculations on the medium's collectability, and opinions on the War comic field as a whole.

I want to thank returning War Correspondents Richard Evans, Andy Greenham, and Mick Rabin. Three renowned and knowledgeable veterans of the genre, whose overall eruditions and contributions give this report substance, and more importantly aid in qualifying it as a bona fide resource for the collecting industry. Should you ever want direct input from any of these authoritative experts (among other War connoisseurs); I encourage you to visit the "War Thread" on the CGC Forum.

As we do each year, this report typically covers topics such as market highlights and books on the move, discussions about characters or the artists that created them, deliberations on the actual stories and the art that drives them, War comic rankings in the marketplace, and other related subjects. This year, we also endeavor to test out a new feature – a short segment that will dabble in investment opportunities from our point of view. We hope you enjoy all our submissions and welcome your feedback on any part of our report.

Definition of a "War Book" Very, Very Briefly Revisited

We characterized War comics as "Stories centered on the military, which is involved in major armed conflicts" (i.e., no Cold War, police actions, spy stories, etc.)

We eliminated war stories with super-heroes (by employing the notion that "a war story with a super-hero is by definition a 'fantasy' story")

We defined classifications for specific war themes. We selected "War Battle Tales" (i.e., stories that were predominantly centered on characters engulfed in battle).

Therefore, for now, we purged classifications such as War Adventure, War Propaganda, and Tragedy in Wartime, etc.

We categorized two main comic book ages:

- The Golden Age
- The Atom/Silver Age/Bronze Age

If you would like an in-depth look at our comprehensive classification process, I encourage you to pick up a copy of the Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide #39, #40 or simply visit www.warcomicreport.com for more details.

News from the Front - A Market Report

We have beguiling intel from the market. If you had the opportunity to read our report from last year you may recall that we talked about a softening in the market. A drop in middle and low grade books that we attributed not to economic reasons, or lack of interest in the genre, but to the fact that the market was suddenly flooded with a greater supply of low to mid grade War books (an opinion that we still steadfastly hold). What we were interested in understanding however, was how the market would behave through the ensuing year. In short, the fledgling collecting year began much like the previous year ended: low to mid grade War books had reached a plateau in supply and demand and high grade keys were still fetching moderately high prices. Overall, there is, was, and still is one constant—buyers are gunning after books in all war titles across the board: DC, Marvel, EC, Atlas, Charlton, Fiction House, St. John... you name it.

The War niche, however, was temporarily affected by yet another pivotal event. For a second time in five years, Keith Marlow decided to unload his extensive high grade War collection. Surprisingly, Keith had managed to amass a heady collection of high grade key books (we wonder when the man sleeps). However, this time his collection, primarily made up of DC War, was larger and the key books (which were great in number) were all, for the most part, highest census across the board. How he accomplished the feat of acquiring these pedigree books in half a decade is still a wonder to us hardcore War books collectors.

Nevertheless, and back to the point, right in the middle of a year that had seemed to level off, this pedigree collection gets dropped on the market's proverbial lap courtesy of Heritage Auctions. As aforementioned, this stockpile dwarfed his previous collection not only in size but in overall grade. OK, in most cases we were only talking about a half grade or full grade differential, but in our niche, where a 9.0 is highest census, a full grade tick is a tremendous upgrade. What I'm getting at is that this auction was a market first for our genre. Interestingly, this auction coincided with contemporaneous sales of additional key books through ComicLink, eBay, and other well known sales channels. It was a gold rush. Consequently, what transpired was quite fascinating. . . .

Although, Keith recouped a moderate gross return on his books overall, individual sales were wildly divergent. There were some amazing prices actualized and there were some downright and surprising disasters. From our point of view only the prime key books and the high-grade/low-census books garnered exceptionally formidable prices, the rest took a sizeable hit. Now, for the books that experienced losses, they were still commanding four figures on average (so, these aren't inexpensive books), but compared to where they stood in the market the previous year, they were underperforming as a whole. Obviously, the War Correspondents were watching closely as this event unfolded. More importantly, we were able to circle back and study the phenomenon, reviewing the events of this and other near simultaneous auctions, evaluating prices, comparing results against census reports and discussing amongst ourselves. After the usual deliberation on our part, we came to this inevitable conclusion: the existing market could not bear the weight of multiple auctions and the sale of such a large collection all at one time.

After all, only so many hardcore DC War enthusiasts exist that can play at the dollar level that these types of books command. It's not that there wasn't wide general interest. The interest was there, and every book sold for higher prices than anyone would have believed several years ago. But too many high-end DC War books were released at once for each to extract its full matured potential. This is very useful tactical information for us long term collectors, and certainly if you understand its impact, valuable intel for those of you toying with the idea of getting into the War comic market.

Let's not forget, a good number of individual sales still broke every record of our genre and transcended the values and prices comparable to key superhero books (more on that later in this report).

Nevertheless, we witnessed a veritable brouhaha of auctions unfold, showering books down onto our genre. And when it was done, we were left wondering how the War category was affected overall.

Consequently, after watching the market attentively for the ensuing six months after the auctions, we noticed something that we have not seen or experienced since before 2007. We had our answer. . . . There seems to be little to nothing left. I repeat—a complete dearth of high grade War books remain in the market (particularly high grade DC War). Is there anything left? Ironically, after such an onslaught of books hit the market a mere nine months ago, we feel that there really isn't. Certainly a new outcrop could emerge at some point, but for now the market has in essence gobbled everything up. The fact is, these auctions did such a good job of gaining a vast purchasing audience, we feel that the War books in those auctions and sales have been spread out among a greater number of collectors, not lumped in concentrated pockets. Our conclusion: the likelihood of a large mass of high grade War books hitting the market again in the next few years and in the same manner is highly unlikely—possible, but unlikely. You can't discount a new major find or other anomalous factors of course; but, this past year was a doozy.

So, after all that transpired, we sat gazing out into the market, and what did we see as the net result of this depleted market? This is where we got our final elucidation: With a market now barren of high grade War, when anything of notable caliber does appear—it goes for big, big, big dollars. That makes sense of course with more buyers and fewer high grade books to go around. Trolling our typical War book sources and channels, it is evident that only a few gems remain available—and when they do go on the block, we witness fireworks! This has been the case for weeks now. Whether it continues or not will certainly be dependent on many factors. But at least you have our opinion as to why.

Our recommendation: shop carefully, try to find unslabbed copies of key books, and hang on to them. If you are in the market to sell . . . well, this is a very opportune moment to do so. Our recommendation, however, is to sell in small controlled bursts. In that manner, you will maximize your return. Good luck out there.

Other Battlefield Ops

Sgt. Marvel: Last year we pointed out that Sgt. Fury #1 was doing extremely well, with sales for CGC 8.5s and 9.0s commanding $6k to $10k per book. Well, we are pleased to report that interest in this key Marvel war hero has not waned. Since our last report, there have been numerous sales that ran the spectrum of prices, solidifying its importance to the niche and the overall comic hobby. Although there were some outright steals (like an 8.0 finding a new home for less than $3K), there were also monumental prices achieved for the book. A notable sale to mention was the auction of one of the top census 9.4s which hammered in at nearly $30K! Wow! A pretty explosive price considering that there are four more 9.4 copies of the book on census! Nevertheless, Sgt. Fury aficionados have spoken—the book is hot. The War Correspondents still feel that Sgt. Fury #1 has not found its true value rhythm however, and we may see some varying sales recorded over the next year or so. It will be interesting to witness if it maintains its intensity, or even better, surpasses current expectations. We'll see and compare notes next year.

With all the interest in #1, a couple other Sgt. Fury issues have inevitably gained some momentum, particularly issue

Interest has not waned in this key Marvel War book, Sgt. Fury and His Howling Commandos #1.

#2 and, of course, the infamous #13 Captain America crossover. We anticipate that these books will continue to perform well overall, so we will also be keeping an eye on them.

It must be mentioned however that mid-grade copies of the entire Sgt. Fury run are available by the veritable truckload. There seems to be an endless supply available everywhere. We of course feel that this may potentially produce an adverse halo effect on the overall value of the title, but perhaps the singular gems of the run can still hold their own. Nevertheless, if you are interested in the title for investment sake, we recommend sticking with the three aforementioned issues or only ultra high grade copies of the remaining title. Otherwise, benefit from the cornucopia of low grade Fury books out there and get yourself an entire run to read and enjoy.

Lifting the Fog of War

A benefit of writing the War Report is our opportunity to correspond with Bob Overstreet directly about our avocation. In one such communication the topic arose regarding the descriptions related to Sgt Rock's first appearance. There has been heavily conflicting conjecture on this subject in the past and we jointly felt it would be good to get to the bottom of the matter. Bob had his suspicions about the precision of the existing information, and welcomed our ideas on the subject. Consequently, Bob invited us to help redefine and illuminate details on Sgt Rock's first appearance in the succession of books credited with the character's origination. I am of course referring to the shroud of mystery surrounding the first "true" appearance of Rock in G.I. Combat #68, Our Army at War #81, #82 and #83—the issues recognized with the distinction of directly accounting for his origin.

It has been our pleasure and honor to write the War Report these last few years (and we are equally thrilled to contribute to the advancement of the comic hobby in whatever capacity). Thus, when tasked with such a commission, we proceed cautiously with the suggestion of any wide sweeping modifications. The fact remains, however, that some confusion persists in the industry regarding this matter, and we feel honored (and duty-bound) to bring much needed clarity to the subject. When discussing the matter with Bob, we proposed presenting him with evidence that would support our findings in the actualization of the story arc and on how those story arcs may impact values on the books. He was graciously amenable to our thoughts and charged us to move forward.

I understand that Sgt. Rock as a character receives a tremendous amount of attention from this report and from other war collectors in general. It's not that there aren't other memorable and key figures that grace the pages of alternative and exceptional war titles (e.g., Sgt. Fury, Don Winslow, Enemy Ace, Iron Corporal, Jeb Stuart, The Unknown Soldier and many more). It's just that compared to Rock, no other character in the War comic genre is so equally indelibly imprinted within the psyche of War comic fans and in pop culture as whole. That said, Sgt. Fury is certainly giving Rock a run for his money lately, but it will take years of exposure before Fury could garner anywhere near the same recognition and status. At present, Sgt. Rock is unequivocally the most important character in the entirety of the War comic genre (Golden, Silver or Bronze Age). Ergo, among other factors, Sgt. Rock's prominence largely influences the growing popularity of the War genre within the overall comic industry. It is for this reason that Bob and the War Correspondents feel it essential to share what we have definitively identified as Rock's true originations, and in which comic book issues they manifested.

In short, the team went to work. We researched and itemized any book credited with a Sgt. Rock prototype or early appearance (including minor prototypes such as All-American Men of War #28 or G.I. Combat #56). After compiling a complete list we pulled out and reread each of the books carefully, making notes on key details panel by panel. We contemporaneously dug into any historical data that we could get our hands on to ensure we were considering any anomalous factors (including articles, interviews with the creators, and published subject matter expert opinions).

Our threshold inquiry in this process was to satisfy ourselves that the books most significantly tied to Sgt. Rock's first appearance—i.e., G.I. Combat #68, Our Army at War #81, #82 and #83—were indeed the best, most appropriate and undeniable sources of Rock's origins. That we concluded they were should be of no surprise to anyone, but it did bear scrutiny as we wanted to be thorough in our research. What is far more interesting is the data we compiled regarding these four key books. Here again, while ardent War book collectors will not likely be shocked to read what emerged from our efforts, one or two important factors have come to light that may have an impact on the esteem and value of the books overall. Here is what we found:

- G.I. Combat* #68 – “The Rock” (Jan 1959). A character named Jimmy referred to as “The Rock” appears as a sergeant on the cover, but as a private in the story. And although DC later reprints the story in early 1972 (see OAAW #242), editors have to modify the reprinted issue to fit DC's needs by editing Jimmy's name out. In brief, G.I. Combat #68 is definitely a key Sgt. Rock prototype, but undeniably not his first true appearance.

- Our Army at War* #81 – “The Rock of Easy” (April 1959). Three months after G.I. Combat #68, OAAW #81 features a story with a character named “Sgt. Rocky”, who is referred to as “The Rock of Easy”. However, Sgt Rocky is a “4th grade rate” sergeant (only has three chevrons / stripes) and not the Master Sergeant we all know the true Sgt. Rock to be. Nevertheless, with the editor's promise of more stories of a “...Rock-like Sergeant”, it is clear that the creative team has something in mind, making OAAW #81 a significant prototype issue.

- Our Army at War* #82 – “Hold up Easy” (May 1959). Appearance of a character named Sgt. Rock ... Wait! Appearance of “a” Sgt. Rock?! What does that mean? And why isn't this issue credited with his “first” appearance? Well, in this final Kanigher and Drucker prototype amalgam, we get a character that is still short of the Kanigher and Kubert creation, and who appears in a supporting “motivator” role to the main characters of the story. Moreover, and of particular significance, he appears again only as the prototyped 4th grade rate sergeant (three stripes/chevrons). Nonetheless, it is important to state that the character does actually physically “appear” in the issue, and is not merely appearing “in name only” as widely believed in the industry. With this clarification, his key prototype appearance in six panels in the six-page story “Hold up Easy” should have a considerable impact on the importance of this book from this point forward.

• Our Army at War #83 – “The Rock and Wall” (June 1959). As a demonstratively key determinant, Sgt. Rock is finally introduced as the main character of the title story, and more importantly, as a “Master Sergeant” (six stripes—three chevrons and three rockers) by what is the 1st actual collaboration on Rock between creators Kanigher and Kubert (who are credited as the true progenitors of the defined character). Further, readers are finally given the 1st definitive narration, as compared to all the other previous issues, that unequivocally defines the “Rock of Easy” as Sgt. Rock in the actual storyline. All these key elements combined make OAAW #83 the indisputable issue to furnish the 1st “true appearance” of Sgt. Rock.

• Our Army at War #84 – “Laughter on Snakehead Hill” (July 1959). Story advances true Sgt. Rock continuity in the 13-page title story featuring Sgt. Rock and Easy Co. And with this being his 2nd true appearance, it is a significant issue.

Not that we didn’t already know of the existence of this key data, but now we had these facts distinctly memorialized. The task then was to put those details in a format that Bob could use for the OCBPG. One matter that was important to address as we conveyed this information was how we saw the chronicling of the prototype books GIC #68, OAAW #81 and OAAW #82. The fact is, that while each of the power trio have fluctuated in prominence over the years (with G.I. Combat #68 originally being credited with Rock’s first appearance, a credit that was then later bestowed on Our Army at War #81, and now OAAW #82’s significant relevance has come more into light), the trait that they all share is that each leads up to the true first appearance in OAAW #83. Stated differently, while on their own, each is fairly important for various reasons;—they are ALL key prototype issues that lead up to the 1st definitive Rock in OAAW #83. Once we reached that conclusion, we compiled the remaining key descriptors for Bob to utilize as he saw fit for the price guide. Below is what we produced in list form:

Overstreet, but how the market reacts over time to our assertions and our suppositions.

Taking Cover

We are very fortunate to have Andy Greenham in our ranks. He is a specialist who truly fights to keep the genre thriving and you can witness his efforts directly on the CGC Forums. Thanks to him the boards have been treated to several War comic “best cover polls” over the years that have aided in putting crosshairs on the most coveted War comic covers in the genre. This year was no exception. Utilizing willing and contributing members of the forum, Andy organized and moderated the polling of an entire new 2012 poll. This year however there was a twist. Because every poll thus far had washtone covers dominating the field, he disallowed them in this latest poll. His request was simple. Using the guidelines of what we deem a “War book”—no superheroes, etc.—he asked voters to nominate the top 100+ War comic covers and then pare them down to the best. What you see below are the top 10 issues from the poll, and it’s great to see so many Atlas books make the list and an EC war book topping it out! Better yet, you can now use this as a great cheat sheet for chasing down what will most likely be highly sought after cool War cover books. Happy recon missions!

A Medal of Honor for Our Army at War #83

Yes, we are spotlighting this book again. My apologies to non-DC War collectors, but the impact this book has had on the entire genre is too important not to spotlight. It is a comic that, whether you are a fan of DC War or not, continues to do its part in bringing deserved attention to our niche of the hobby. It is clear that the market agrees. OAAW #83 is the reigning King of the War comic genre. This is supported by the fact that in the last 12 months we witnessed incredible leaps in prices actualized for the key book—regardless of its grade!

The most significant sale being that of Keith’s CGC 8.0 copy sold via Heritage in November 2011. There was great speculation as to what price it would grab, as mid-grade issues were performing incredibly well prior to the year-end auction. I don’t believe, however, that anyone could have predicted the book would bring in nearly $17,000! This even had us hardcore War collectors shell-shocked, especially since it is still 2nd to the CGC 9.0 copy on the census!

Furthermore, ensuing sales on ANY grade of the book have continued to go for way over Guide. Nonetheless, we are incredibly pleased that this very important book is receiving highly warranted action and interest.

Recent confirmed sales figures since our last report:

Our Army At War #83 CGC 8.0 $17,000
Our Army At War #83 CGC 7.5 $9,600
Our Army At War #83 CGC 7.0 Qualified $967
Our Army At War #83 CGC 6.0 $1,600
Our Army At War #83 CGC 5.5 $1,100
Our Army At War #83 CGC 4.5 $2,350
Our Army At War #83 CGC 4.0 $1,135
Our Army At War #83 CGC 4.0 $900
Our Army At War #83 CGC 3.0 $710
Our Army At War #83 CGC 2.5 $480
Our Army At War #83 CGC 1.8 $500

All these, along with a few equally commanding sales that we did not list, truly support the notion that Our Army at War #83 and the 1st true appearance of Sgt. Rock is a key book in the annals of the overall comic book market. More importantly, these sales show that the book is consistently getting prices that make it a long term winner and that the recent larger-scale sales are no anomaly.

And although #83 is making big noise in the market, relatively few #83s are for sale (as it is a fairly difficult book to find in general). A good example of its rarity is the fact that since the high profile sale of the CGC 8.0 copy in Nov 2011, only a handful of books have been slabbed and added to the CGC census—This is the opposite phenomenon of what one normally sees, as when a book becomes an obvious overnight powerhouse in the market, typically the census numbers soar in the subsequent months. In this case, other than two books, there have been maybe less than 10 low grade copies added to the census ranks. In sum, as far as we can tell, other than a single CGC 7.5 and a lone 6.0, nothing else submitted has received a higher grade than a CGC 3.5. A tough book indeed!

When considering all I just mentioned, you may now want to contemplate this: When put side by side to comparable super-hero books, OAAW #83 not only holds its own, but quite frankly outpaces a good number of the top 20 Silver Age books listed by the Guide. When you look at what the market is garnering for super-hero books of equal grade and then measure that against the current OCBPG Top 20 list, you will see that the book is at least in contention with Showcase #22 (ranked 12th in 2011) and, dare we say, is quite possibly approaching the performance of Brave and the Bold #28 (ranked 9th in 2011). OK, we know that this is not going to happen overnight, that the comic will need continued performance over the next few years, and that Bob Overstreet will need to carefully scrutinize its market growth and significance... But, we strongly feel that this book is merely a few years away from making the top 20 list in some manner. Watch out super-hero books - a War comic is invading!

The Spoils of War

As War comic enthusiasts we are asked some fairly similar questions every year: "What is your favorite title or series?" "What do you feel are the top 3 War books?" "Which War book do you think has the best cover?" And of course, there is the often repeated "Is this a good investment?"

Well, with this being our fourth year producing the War Report, we felt we may dare broach the subject of potential investment strategies. It's not that the "News from the Front" segment isn't filled with our opinions on how the genre is fairing overall in the comic book market. But here, we are specifically spotlighting a book or two that we feel are very good buys for the enthusiast who may be dabbling with the idea of a potential return on their purchase.

Colossal Disclaimer: THE INFORMATION PROVIDED IN THIS SEGMENT MAY BE WHOLLY INACCURATE. NONE OF THE WRITERS, CONTRIBUTORS, OR PUBLISHERS OF THIS REPORT CAN BE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE ACCURACY OF THIS INFORMATION OR FOR HOW YOU USE THIS INFORMATION, NONE ARE FINANCIAL OR INVESTMENT ADVISORS AND NONE CAN PREDICT HOW THE MARKETPLACE WILL ULTIMATELY VALUE THESE BOOKS. USE AT YOUR OWN RISK.

These are merely the opinions of seasoned War comic collectors. We are not financial analysts, we are not soothsayers, and we are obviously biased to our genre. We urge you to use caution when taking heed to any of our investment opinions.

OK, on to our prognostication...

This first statement is going to seem rather obvious. Although there may be a hidden exception, most superior investment books will likely be a known key book of some nature. So, I don't think we are going to surprise anyone here with a filler issue from a title. Rather, we will spotlight a gem that we feel has the potential to move positively.

Long Term Return

• Don Winslow #1 (Four Color Comics - Series 1 nm (#2) (Dell, 1939) – a Golden Age character and series that has not yet had a chance to blossom to its full potential. Although not heavily sought after, we feel that the character and series helped pave the way to war and war adventure lines in the ensuing years. It's not an easy book to find, but if you do and if you have patience, this issue should bring you back a small return in 5+ years.

Don Winslow #1 has plenty of long term investment potential.

• Our Army At War

#100 – Also a tough book to get, so that will be your first problem, but we believe the market does not yet reflect nor understand the substance and rich potential of this book. Even low grade copies would be a good investment here. Obviously your return will be commensurate with the grade level of the book.

But, we see this book steadily gaining momentum over the next 4 to 5 years.

• Our Army At War #83 – obvious pick. Yet, with the dollar values this book is bringing in, it is still a costly investment. We feel strongly about the inherent and enduring growth of this book, but you may have to sit on it for 2-3+ years before you can get a solid return. Unless of course you find a low to moderate deal on a raw copy... then your return will be immediately worth bragging about.

Short Term Return

• Our Army At War #82 – This is the spotlight pick of this report. If you have not read our segment in this report on the classification of Sgt. Rock's first appearance, take a moment and read above. It in essence lays down the foundation as to why we think this book is such an incredible buy. Part of the benefit of this report is that we are cleaning the rafters of misnomers, and because this is still early in our crusade we could be bringing to center stage a book that has been woefully misunderstood, giving it the most potential to climb aggressively. Bottom-line, for such an important and pivotal book, in our opinion, it is simply greatly undervalued.

First of all, it is the opinion of the War Correspondents that OAAW #82 holds as much weight, value and importance in the incubation of the Sgt. Rock character as G.I. Combat #68 and OAAW #81, one could even argue that it may even be a bit stronger if you consider that it IS the first appearance of a character named Sgt Rock, as opposed to #81's "prototyped" Sgt. Rocky.

As you may have known, or now know, there has been a misconception in the market for many years about OAAW #82, that in our eyes has reduced this book's true potential. I'm of course referring to the accepted concept that the issue was the - 1st Sgt. Rock appearance, in name only...” Where in actuality, Sgt Rock physically appears six different times in the six-page story “Hold up Easy”. This is a fairly fundamental difference. And this key differentiator should have a strong impact on its value.

By the way, if you compare this unique circumstance to say, Wolverine’s appearance in Incredible Hulk #180, the distinction here is that in Incredible Hulk #180, Wolverine appears briefly on the last page, however, in OAAW #82, Sgt Rock, albeit still in prototype form, appears several times throughout the six page story. Except now imagine that it was not even widely known that Wolverine even appeared in Incredible Hulk #180... and we just pointed it out. Food for thought!

Buy this book, and buy it now – at the current and generally agreed upon low values presently bestowed on it— before the market has had an opportunity to correct itself. Of course, this article is not making it easier for you, but you have two things to your advantage: 1) How many people have actually read this far into this report, and 2) This Guide and potentially other market reports will be careful not to make a sudden change in their valuing of #82, as they will typically need to adjust pricing in a controlled and governed manner.

We envision good returns on this book in as soon as 12 months. Happy chasing!

Losing Ground

There are a few books that we see fluctuating in performance. Just as we identify movers, it is only fair that we mention books that have shown some slowing. We would like to point out two keys that have slipped a little in the last year.

The first is OAAW #81. We have witnessed some backsliding in value on the book. Not because of what we disclosed above about OAAW #82, but mainly because the market has recently realigned its core focus onto OAAW #83, undermining the value of #81 in the short term. The book is still very important and has some great long term potential and, when compared to super-hero books, is still a tough one to get, so don’t be frustrated if you own a copy. But, it is going to take a few years for the market to correct itself in light of the market share the other Sgt. Rock books are commanding. If you are thinking about buying a copy, this would actually be a good time to do some picky shopping. The book is garnering a bit lower sales figure as of late and it may be a good time to snap one up. However, do not expect any return in the short term. This is a book you will need to be happy to own just because it’s a damn good comic and hard to get in anything above CGC 6.5. Let’s see where it stands in 5 years.

The other book is G.I. Combat #91. There was a recent rush on this book as there were few copies in market circulation, and with its classic 1st Haunted Tank cover, it gained momentum because of cool cover speculators. However, its recent attention has brought a good number of copies out. It’s not an inordinate amount of copies, but again, the market is correcting itself as the once obscure book now seems more readily available in mid-grades. Good luck finding an 8.5 or higher though....

Gaining Rank

Since our first report in Overstreet #39, we have been watchful of the market and its fluctuations and movements, providing a ranking of the top books in the War category. After developing the initial rank listing in 2008 we’ve been careful not to make any abrupt changes to the position of the books. However, we are continuously making small tweaks as we either gather new intel on the books or see activity or changes in the market. We are delighted to report that we have been able to expand our rankings this year to include some more issues (and their corresponding ranks). After careful deliberation we present the following War books rankings:

TOP BOOKS

The following tables denote the rate of appreciation of the top Golden Age, Platinum Age, Silver Age and Bronze Age books, as well as selected genres over the past year. The retail value for a Near Mint- copy of each book (or VF where a Near Mint- copy is not known to exist) in 2012 is compared to its Near Mint- value in 2011. The rate of return for 2012 over 2011 is given. The place in rank is given for each comic by year, with its corresponding value in highest known grade. These tables can be very useful in forecasting trends in the market place. For instance, the investor might want to know which book is yielding the best dividend from one year to the next, or one might just be interested in seeing how the popularity of books changes from year to year. For instance, Pep Comics #22 was in 23rd place in 2011 and has increased to 14th place in 2012. Premium books are also included in these tables and are denoted with an asterisk(*).

The following tables are meant as a guide to the investor. However, it should be pointed out that trends may change at anytime and that some books can meet market resistance with a slowdown in price increases, while others can develop into real comers from a presently dormant state. In the long run, if the investor sticks to the books that are appreciating steadily each year, he shouldn't go very far wrong.

GRADING DEFINITIONS

When grading a comic book, common sense must be employed. The overall eye appeal and beauty of the comic book must be taken into account along with its technical flaws to arrive at the appropriate grade.

10.0 GEM MINT (GM): This is an exceptional example of a given book - the best ever seen. The slightest bindery defects and/or printing flaws may be seen only upon very close inspection. The overall look is "as if it has never been handled or released for purchase." Only the slightest bindery or printing defects are allowed, and these would be imperceptible on first viewing. No bindery tears. Cover is flat with no surface wear. Inks are bright with high reflectivity. Well centered and firmly secured to interior pages. Corners are cut square and sharp. No creases. No dates or stamped markings allowed. No soiling, staining or other discoloration. Spine is tight and flat. No spine roll or split allowed.

Staples must be original, centered and clean with no rust. No staple tears or stress lines. Paper is white, supple and fresh. No hint of acidity in the odor of the newsprint. No interior autographs or owner signatures. Centerfold is firmly secure. No interior tears.

9.9 MINT (MT): Near perfect in every way. Only subtle bindery or printing defects are allowed. No bindery tears. Cover is flat with no surface wear. Inks are bright with high reflectivity. Generally well centered and firmly secured to interior pages. Corners are cut square and sharp. No creases. Small, inconspicuous, lightly penciled, stamped or inked arrival dates are acceptable as long as they are in an unobtrusive location. No soiling, staining or other discoloration. Spine is tight and flat. No spine roll or split allowed. Staples must be original, generally centered and clean with no rust. No staple tears or stress lines. Paper is white, supple and fresh. No hint of acidity in the odor of the newsprint. Centerfold is firmly secure. No interior tears.

9.8 NEAR MINT/MINT (NM/MT): Nearly perfect in every way with only minor imperfections that keep it from the next higher grade. Only subtle bindery or printing defects are allowed. No bindery tears. Cover is flat with no surface wear. Inks are bright with high reflectivity. Generally well centered and firmly secured to interior pages. Corners are cut square and sharp. No creases. Small, inconspicuous, lightly penciled, stamped or inked arrival dates are acceptable as long as they are in an unobtrusive location. No soiling, staining or other discoloration. Spine is tight and flat. No spine roll or split allowed. Staples must be original, generally centered and clean with no rust. No staple tears or stress lines. Paper is off-white to white, supple and fresh. No hint of acidity in the odor of the newsprint. Centerfold is firmly secure. Only the slightest interior tears are allowed.

9.6 NEAR MINT+ (NM+): Nearly perfect with a minor additional virtue or virtues that raise it from Near Mint. The overall look is "as if it was just purchased and read once or twice." Only subtle bindery or printing defects are allowed. No bindery tears are allowed, although on Golden Age books bindery tears of up to 1/8" have been noted. Cover is flat with no surface wear. Inks are bright with high reflectivity. Well centered and firmly secured to interior pages. One corner may be almost imperceptibly blunted, but still almost sharp and cut square. Almost imperceptible indentations are permissible, but no creases, bends, or color break. Small, inconspicuous, lightly penciled, stamped or inked arrival dates are acceptable as long as they are in an unobtrusive location. No soiling, staining or other discoloration. Spine is tight and flat. No spine roll or split allowed. Staples must be original, generally centered, with only the slightest discoloration. No staple tears, stress lines, or rust migration. Paper is off-white, supple and fresh. No hint of acidity in the odor of the newsprint. Centerfold is firmly secure. Only the slightest interior tears are allowed.

9.4 NEAR MINT (NM): Nearly perfect with only minor imperfections that keep it from the next higher grade. Minor feathering that does not distract from the overall beauty of an otherwise higher grade copy is acceptable for this grade. The overall look is "as if it was just purchased and read once or twice." Subtle bindery defects are allowed. Bindery tears must be less than 1/16" on Silver Age and later books, although on Golden Age books bindery tears of up to 1/4" have been noted. Cover is flat with no surface wear. Inks are bright with high reflectivity. Generally well centered and secured to interior pages. Corners are cut square and sharp with ever-so-slight blunting permitted. A 1/16" bend is permitted with no color break. No creases. Small, inconspicuous, lightly penciled, stamped or inked arrival dates are acceptable as long as they are in an unobtrusive location. No soiling, staining or other discoloration apart from slight foxing. Spine is tight and flat. No spine roll or split allowed. Staples are generally centered; may have slight discoloration. No staple tears are allowed; almost no stress lines. No rust migration. In rare cases, a comic was not stapled at the bindery and therefore has a missing staple; this is not considered a defect. Any staple can be replaced on books up to Fine, but only vintage staples can be used on books from Very Fine to Near Mint. Mint books must have original staples. Paper is cream to off-white, supple and fresh. No hint of acidity in the odor of the newsprint. Centerfold is secure. Slight interior tears are allowed.

9.2 NEAR MINT- (NM-): Nearly perfect with only a minor additional defect or defects that keep it from Near Mint. A limited number of minor bindery defects are allowed. A light, barely noticeable water stain or minor foxing that does not distract from the beauty of the book is acceptable for this grade. Cover is flat with no surface wear. Inks are bright with only the slightest dimming of reflectivity. Generally well centered and secured to interior pages. Corners are cut square and sharp with ever-so-slight blunting permitted. A 1/16"-1/8" bend is permitted with no color break. No creases. Small, inconspicuous, lightly penciled, stamped or inked arrival dates are acceptable as long as they are in an unobtrusive location. No soiling, staining or other discoloration apart from slight foxing. Spine is tight and flat. No spine roll or split allowed. Staples may show some discoloration. No staple tears are allowed; almost no stress lines. No rust migration. In rare cases, a comic was not stapled at the bindery and therefore has a missing staple; this is not considered a defect. Any staple can be replaced on books up to Fine, but only vintage staples can be used on books from Very Fine to Near Mint. Mint books must have original staples. Paper is cream to off-white, supple and fresh. No hint of acidity in the odor of the newsprint. Centerfold is secure. Slight interior tears are allowed.

9.0 VERY FINE/NEAR MINT (VF/NM): Nearly perfect with outstanding eye appeal. A limited number of bindery defects are allowed. Almost flat cover with almost imperceptible wear. Inks are bright with slightly diminished reflectivity. An 1/8" bend is allowed if color is not broken. Corners are cut square and sharp with ever-so-slight blunting permitted but no creases. Several lightly penciled, stamped or inked arrival dates are acceptable. No obvious soiling, staining or other discoloration, except for very minor foxing. Spine is tight and flat. No spine roll or split allowed. Staples may show some discoloration. Only the slightest staple tears are allowed. A very minor accumulation of stress lines may be present if they are nearly imperceptible. No rust migration. In rare cases, a comic was not stapled at the bindery and therefore has a missing staple; this is not considered a defect. Any staple can be replaced on books up to Fine, but only vintage staples can be used on books from Very Fine to Near Mint. Mint books must have original staples. Paper is cream to off-white and supple. No hint of acidity in the odor of the newsprint. Centerfold is secure. Very minor interior tears may be present.

8.5 VERY FINE+ (VF+): Fits the criteria for Very Fine but with an additional virtue or small accumulation of virtues that improves the book's appearance by a perceptible amount.

8.0 VERY FINE (VF): An excellent copy with outstanding eye appeal. Sharp, bright and clean with supple pages. A comic book in this grade has the appearance of having been carefully handled. A limited accumulation of minor bindery defects is allowed. Cover is relatively flat with minimal surface wear beginning to show, possibly including some minute wear at corners. Inks are generally bright with moderate to high reflectivity. A 1/4" crease is acceptable if color is not broken. Stamped or inked arrival dates may be present. No obvious soiling, staining or other discoloration, except for minor foxing. Spine is almost flat with no roll. Possible minor color break allowed. Staples may show some discoloration. Very slight staple tears and a few almost very minor to minor stress lines may be present. No rust migration. In rare cases, a comic was not stapled at the bindery and therefore has a missing staple; this is not considered a defect. Any staple can be replaced on books up to Fine, but only vintage staples can be used on books from Very Fine to Near Mint. Mint books must have original staples. Paper is tan to cream and supple. No hint of acidity in the odor of the newsprint. Centerfold is mostly secure. Minor interior tears at the margin may be present.

7.5 VERY FINE- (VF-): Fits the criteria for Very Fine but with an additional defect or small accumulation of defects that detracts from the book's appearance by a perceptible amount.

7.0 FINE/VERY FINE (FN/VF): An above-average copy that shows minor wear but is still relatively flat and clean with outstanding eye appeal. A small accumulation of minor bindery defects is allowed. Minor cover wear beginning to show with interior yellowing or tanning allowed, possibly including minor creases. Corners may be blunted or abraded. Inks are generally bright with a moderate reduction in reflectivity. Stamped or inked arrival dates may be present. No obvious soiling, staining or other discoloration, except for minor foxing. The slightest spine roll may be present, as well as a possible moderate color break. Staples may show some discoloration. Slight staple tears and a slight accumulation of light stress lines may be present. Slight rust migration. In rare cases, a comic was not stapled at the bindery and therefore has a missing staple; this is not considered a defect. Any staple can be replaced on books up to Fine, but only vintage staples can be used on books from Very Fine to Near Mint. Mint books must have original staples. Paper is tan to cream, but not brown. No hint of acidity in the odor of the newsprint. Centerfold is mostly secure. Minor interior tears at the margin may be present.

6.5 FINE+ (FN+): Fits the criteria for Fine but with an additional virtue or small accumulation of virtues that improves the book's appearance by a perceptible amount.

6.0 FINE (FN): An above-average copy that shows minor wear but is still relatively flat and clean with no significant creasing or other serious defects. Eye appeal is somewhat reduced because of slight surface wear and the accumulation of small defects, especially on the spine and edges. A FINE condition comic book appears to have been read a few times and has been handled with moderate care. Some accumulation of minor bindery defects is allowed. Minor cover wear apparent, with minor to moderate creases. Inks show a major reduction in reflectivity. Blunted or abraded corners are more common, as is minor staining, soiling, discoloration, and/or foxing.

Stamped or inked arrival dates may be present. A minor spine roll is allowed. There can also be a 1/4" spine split or severe color break. Staples show minor discoloration. Minor staple tears and an accumulation of stress lines may be present, as well as minor rust migration. In rare cases, a comic was not stapled at the bindery and therefore has a missing staple; this is not considered a defect. Any staple can be replaced on books up to Fine, but only vintage staples can be used on books from Very Fine to Near Mint. Mint books must have original staples. Paper is brown to tan and fairly supple with no signs of brittleness. No hint of acidity in the odor of the newsprint. Minor interior tears at the margin may be present. Centerfold may be loose but not detached.

5.5 FINE- (FN-): Fits the criteria for Fine but with an additional defect or small accumulation of defects that detracts from the book's appearance by a perceptible amount.

5.0 VERY GOOD/FINE (VG/FN): An above-average but well-used comic book. A comic in this grade shows some moderate wear; eye appeal is somewhat reduced because of the accumulation of defects. Still a desirable copy that has been handled with some care. An accumulation of bindery defects is allowed. Minor to moderate cover wear apparent, with minor to moderate creases and/or dimples. Inks have major to extreme reduction in reflectivity. Blunted or abraded corners are increasingly common, as is minor to moderate staining, discoloration, and/or foxing. Stamped or inked arrival dates may be present. A minor to moderate spine roll is allowed. A spine split of up to 1/2" may be present. Staples show minor discoloration. A slight accumulation of minor staple tears and an accumulation of minor stress lines may also be present, as well as minor rust migration. In rare cases, a comic was not stapled at the bindery and therefore has a missing staple; this is not considered a defect. Any staple can be replaced on books up to Fine, but only vintage staples can be used on books from Very Fine to Near Mint. Mint books must have original staples. Paper is brown to tan with no signs of brittleness. May have the faintest trace of an acidic odor. Centerfold may be loose but not detached. Minor tears may also be present.

4.5 VERY GOOD+ (VG+): Fits the criteria for Very Good but with an additional virtue or small accumulation of virtues that improves the book's appearance by a perceptible amount.

4.0 VERY GOOD (VG): The average used comic book. A comic in this grade shows some significant moderate wear, but still has not accumulated enough total defects to reduce eye appeal to the point that it is not a desirable copy. Cover shows moderate to significant wear, and may be loose but not completely detached. Moderate to extreme reduction in reflectivity. Can have an accumulation of creases or dimples. Corners may be blunted or abraded. Store stamps, name stamps, arrival dates, initials, etc. have no effect on this grade. Some discoloration, fading, foxing, and even minor soiling is allowed. As much as a 1/4" triangle can be missing out of the corner or edge; a missing 1/8" square is also acceptable. Only minor unobtrusive tape and other amateur repair allowed on otherwise high grade copies. Moderate spine roll may be present and/or a 1" spine split. Staples discolored. Minor to moderate staple tears and stress lines may be present, as well as some rust migration. Paper is brown but not brittle. A minor acidic odor can be detectable. Minor to moderate tears may be present. Centerfold may be loose or detached at one staple.

3.5 VERY GOOD- (VG-): Fits the criteria for Very Good but with an additional defect or small accumulation of defects that detracts from the book's appearance by a perceptible amount.

3.0 GOOD/VERY GOOD (GD/VG): A used comic book showing some substantial wear. Cover shows significant wear, and may be loose or even detached at one staple. Cover reflectivity is very low. Can have a book-length crease and/or dimples. Corners may be blunted or even rounded. Discoloration, fading, foxing, and even minor to moderate soiling is allowed. A triangle from 1/4" to 1/2" can be missing out of the corner or edge; a missing 1/8" to 1/4" square is also acceptable. Tape and other amateur repair may be present. Moderate spine roll likely. May have a spine split of anywhere from 1" to 1-1/2". Staples may be rusted or replaced. Minor to moderate staple tears and moderate stress lines may be present, as well as some rust migration. Paper is brown but not brittle. Centerfold may be loose or detached at one staple. Minor to moderate interior tears may be present.

2.5 GOOD+ (GD+): Fits the criteria for Good but with an additional virtue or small accumulation of virtues that improves the book's appearance by a perceptible amount.

2.0 GOOD (GD): Shows substantial wear; often considered a "reading copy." Cover shows significant wear and may even be detached. Cover reflectivity is low and in some cases completely absent. Book-length creases and dimples may be present. Rounded corners are more common. Moderate soiling, staining, discoloration and foxing may be present. The largest piece allowed missing from the front or back cover is usually a 1/2" triangle or a 1/4" square, although some Silver Age books such as 1960s Marvels have had the price corner box clipped from the top left front cover and may be considered Good if they would otherwise have graded higher. Tape and other forms of amateur repair are common in Silver Age and older books. Spine roll is likely. May have up to a 2" spine split. Staples may be degraded, replaced or missing. Moderate staple tears and stress lines may be present, as well as rust migration. Paper is brown but not brittle. Centerfold may be loose or detached. Moderate interior tears may be present.

1.8 GOOD- (GD-): Fits the criteria for Good but with an additional defect or small accumulation of defects that detracts from the book's appearance by a perceptible amount.

1.5 FAIR/GOOD (FR/GD): A comic showing substantial to heavy wear. A copy in this grade still has all pages and covers, although there may be pieces missing. Books in this grade are commonly creased, scuffed, abraded, soiled, and possibly unattractive, but still generally readable. Cover shows considerable wear and may be detached. Nearly no reflectivity to no reflectivity remaining. Store stamp, name stamp, arrival date and initials are permitted. Book-length creases, tears and folds may be present. Rounded corners are increasingly common. Soiling, staining, discoloration and foxing is generally present. Up to 1/10 of the back cover may be missing. Tape and other forms of amateur repair are increasingly common in Silver Age and older books. Spine roll is common. May have a spine split between 2" and 2/3 the length of the book. Staples may be degraded, replaced or missing. Staple tears and stress lines are common, as well as rust migration. Paper is brown and may show brittleness around the edges. Acidic odor may be present. Centerfold may be loose or detached. Interior tears are common.

1.0 FAIR (FR): A copy in this grade shows heavy wear. Some collectors consider this the lowest collectible grade because comic books in lesser condition are usually incomplete and/or brittle. Comics in this grade are usually soiled, faded, ragged and possibly unattractive. This is the last grade in which a comic remains generally readable. Cover may be detached, and inks have lost all reflectivity. Creases, tears and/or folds are prevalent. Corners are commonly rounded or absent. Soiling and staining is present. Books in this condition generally have all pages and most of the covers, although there may be up to 1/4 of the front cover missing or no back cover, but not both. Tape and other forms of amateur repair are more common. Spine roll is more common; spine split can extend up to 2/3 the length of the book. Staples may be missing or show rust and discoloration. An accumulation of staple tears and stress lines may be present, as well as rust migration. Paper is brown and may show brittleness around the edges but not in the central portion of the pages. Acidic odor may be present. Accumulation of interior tears. Chunks may be missing. The centerfold may be missing if readability is generally preserved (although there may be difficulty). Coupons may be cut.

0.5 POOR (PR): Most comic books in this grade have been sufficiently degraded to the point where there is little or no collector value; they are easily identified by a complete absence of eye appeal. Comics in this grade are brittle almost to the point of turning to dust with a touch, and are usually incomplete. Extreme cover fading may render the cover almost indiscernible. May have extremely severe stains, mildew or heavy cover abrasion to the point that some cover inks are indistinct/absent. Covers may be detached with large chunks missing. Can have extremely ragged edges and extensive creasing. Corners are rounded or virtually absent. Covers may have been defaced with paints, varnishes, glues, oil, indelible markers or dyes, and may have suffered heavy water damage. Can also have extensive amateur repairs such as laminated covers. Extreme spine roll present; can have extremely ragged spines or a complete, book-length split. Staples can be missing or show extreme rust and discoloration. Extensive staple tears and stress lines may be present, as well as extreme rust migration. Paper exhibits moderate to severe brittleness (where the comic book literally falls apart when examined). Extreme acidic odor may be present. Extensive interior tears. Multiple pages, including the centerfold, may be missing that affect readability. Coupons may be cut.

OVERSTREET ADVISORS

Even before the first edition of The Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide was printed, author Robert M. Overstreet solicited pricing data, historical notations, and general information from a variety of sources. What was initially an informal group offering input quickly became an organized field of comic book collectors, dealers and historians whose opinions are actively solicited in advance of each edition of this book. Some of these Overstreet Advisors are specialists who deal in particular niches within the comic book world, while others are generalists who are interested in commenting on the broader marketplace. Each advisor provides information from their respective areas of interest and expertise, spanning the history of American comics.

While some choose to offer pricing and historical information in the form of annotated sales catalogs, auction catalogs, or documented private sales, assistance from others comes in the form of the market reports such as those beginning on page 74 in this book. In addition to those who have served as Overstreet Advisors almost since The Guide's inception, each year new contributors are sought.

With that in mind, we are pleased to present our newest Overstreet Advisors:

METROPOLIS

WE'RE CONFUSED!

We hope that someone who reads this will be able to explain why this kind of thing happens, because we don't get it!

The following is a true story...

At the biggest convention of the year, a dealer who traveled hundreds of miles to set up bought a high-grade Fantastic Four #1 for roughly 1/2 the price that we would have paid. After that comic passed through the hands of several dealers, Metropolis did in fact buy it. The fellow who initially sold it at the convention could easily have made seven thousand dollars more if he had sold it to us.

SHOULDN'T THESE GUYS KNOW BETTER?
SHOULDN'T EVERYONE?

Is it still better to get more money for your comics than less?
Does the Earth still revolve around the Sun? Are there still people out there who are not offering their books to Metropolis and losing money selling to the wrong guy?

If anyone out there can shed some light on why this still happens in this day and age, could you please let us know?

METROPOLIS

www.metropoliscomics.com

FACT 1: ABSOLUTELY NO OTHER COMIC DEALER BUYS MORE GOLDEN AND SILVER AGE COMICS THAN METROPOLIS.

Although the pages of the price guide are filled with other dealers offering to pay "top dollar," the simple truth is that Metropolis spends more money on more quality comic book collections year in and year out than any other dealers in the country. We have the funds and the expertise to back up our word. The fact is that we have spent nearly 4 million dollars on rare comic books and movie posters over the last year. If you have comic books to sell please call us at 1.800.229.6387. A generous finder's fee will be given if you know of any comic book or movie poster collections that we purchase. All calls will be strictly confidential.

FACT 2: ABSOLUTELY NO OTHER COMIC DEALER SELLS MORE GOLDEN AND SILVER AGE COMICS THAN METROPOLIS.

We simply have the best stock of Golden and Silver Age comic books in the country. The thousands of collectors familiar with our strict grading standards and excellent service can attest to this. Chances are, if you want it, we have it !

APPRAISAL SERVICE

If you'd like to know the value of your comics, why not ask the guys who created the universal 10 point grading scale? Metropolis offers the following absolutely free!

1. VALUE APPRAISAL to determine your comics' retail value based on all parameters including current desirability of the comic, relative scarcity and historical significance.
2. COMPLETE EXAMINATION of comics for all types of restoration.
3. DOUBLE GRADING SYSTEM to ensure greatest accuracy.

Our staff reflects over 50 years of comic evaluation and retail experience. There is not a more knowledgeable staff anywhere. For more info, call Toll-Free

1.800.229.METRO
(6 3 8 7)

Please limit the number of comics to 10.
Comics should be from 1930 -1975.
That is our field of expertise.

SELLER TIP :

Sometimes having your comics sealed by a 3rd party grader increases the value. Other times it won't and you only lose money on grading fees. Our consultation determines when and when not to have a comic "slabbed", and you'll even save 20% submitting comics to 3rd party graders through Metropolis!

THE ONLINE MARKETPLACE TO BUY AND SELL COMICS

For over 25 years, the experts at ComicConnect.com have been recognized and renowned for selling the most sought after comic books and collections. Our services have been enlisted by the individuals who are the most aggressive collectors in the market. If you're considering selling your comics there is no company better poised than ComicConnect.com to help you realize the best return.

In today's market, the decision of just how to sell your comics is critical. Making the right choice is like walking a tightrope without a net. Perhaps the most common pitfall novice sellers fall into is blindly consigning to an auction house. If you're considering parting with your collection, and think an auction house is the best way to go, we strongly advise you consider the following:

Do the Math. The commission rate an auction house charges you, the seller, is typically 15%. However, the auction house will also charge the bidder a "buyer's premium" of 19.5%. Make no mistake about it, a bidder in an auction simply deducts that additional 19.5% from the final price they are willing to pay. Bottom line: The auction house is taking nearly a 35% cut from each and every transaction. By having their hand in the pocket of both the bidder and the seller, the auction house ensures the most profit for itself, while the consignor hemorrhages on their investment. At ComicConnect.com, our seller's commission is only 10%, and we do not charge buyer's premiums. That's it. The rest of the proceeds go back into your pocket where it rightfully belongs.

When you consign to ComicConnect.com, you have at your disposal the services of the most experienced comic book sellers in the world. More importantly, you benefit from the thousands upon thousands of long-term customer relationships we've developed over the past 25 years. We're in it for the long haul, and will work with you to develop a strategy that will get you the highest return. We won't "square-peg" your collection into a formula that doesn't fit. We will pursue the avenue or avenues that work best for the comics you consign. Sometimes, that means selling your comics to the private individuals who pay the very best for being offered the very best. Oftentimes, we will arrange exclusive viewings at our showroom in Manhattan. We also maintain thousands of want lists of customers waiting in the wings for certain comic books to come to market - comic books that you may have in your collection. If you're thinking of selling your comics, visit our online marketplace at ComicConnect.com. For a free consultation, call ComicConnect.com at 212.895.3999 or email support@comicconnect.com.

WANT LIST COMICS

WE FILL WANT LISTS

We have a simple question to ask . . . have you *us your want list yet? Here is what it will cost you . . . 5 to 10 minutes of your time.

Here is what you could stand to gain . . . SOME OR ALL OF THE COMIC BOOKS (CGC OR RAW)

WHAT ARE YOU WAITING FOR?

"The Batman #1 you sold me was in the nicest, unrestored condition I've ever seen!", Bob Overstreet, author "The Official Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide."

"I'm glad that you have a great selection of Golden Age and Silver Age comics in stock. You have been able to constantly find books to fill some very tough missing holes in my collection. I also appreciate your consistent, tight grading and fair prices!"

Dan Hampton, Las Cruces, NM

These are just two of the many satisfied customers that have bought books from us in the past. Over the years, we have developed a very strong return customer base because we ACCURATELY price, grade, and describe books (in detail) over the phone and through the mail/email. If CGC books are desired, we can definitely fill those needs as well !!! In the past few years, we have acquired nearly EVERY major Golden Age and Silver Age book more than once for our many want list clients. Please check out our great selection of old books! (CGC or Raw).

We don't claim that we can fill every list all the time, but if any company can accomplish this, it would certainly be us! We can say this with much confidence because our representatives travel to the majority of the 50 states and Canada plus attend many of the major comic book conventions (San Diego, Chicago, Detroit, New York, etc.) to uncover books you would not have the opportunity to find. When we are not on the road, we spend MANY hours on the phone locating books from our long list of past and present comic sources we've developed over the 25 years we have been dealing in comic books. When sending your want list either E-MAIL us, or mail us and include a self-addressed stamped envelope (if possible), your phone number, and a good time to reach you. We DON'T send out catalogs, so please ask for specific books and conditions desired. We will contact you when we find the items you've requested. Phone calls are also welcomed. WE WILL GLADLY SUGGEST AND PERSONALLY PUT TOGETHER COMIC BOOK INVESTMENT PORTFOLIOS FOR BIG AND SMALL INVESTORS. COMIC COLLECTOR/DEALER

for many comics of interest

▼ POINTS TO CONSIDER ▼ TO SELL ON EBAY OR NOT TO SELL ON EBAY—THAT IS YOUR QUESTION?

- Consigning your comics to an eBay seller or an auction may not let you realize your collection's potential. EBay sellers and auctions charge 15% to 35% on every transaction regardless if they sell for less than guide. Many items sell for way below guide and you still pay all related charges. Many dealers buy these items well below market value. After you consider all charges and the final selling price you will generally net much less than we would. Selling to us there will be no charges, no waiting for payment. It's easy, and you will be treated with honesty and fairness.
- We have over 25 years experience in comic fandom. We have purchased many well-known collections while competing against other interested parties. Give us the chance to show you your top price.
- Being a collector/dealer gives us the ability to buy your entire collection and pay you the most for it. You will maximize your collection's value.

You have everything to gain by contacting us. WHY miss out on your BEST OFFER? Call 603-869-2097 today!

COMIC BOOK PRESSING AT ITS FINEST.

*This copy of
Amazing Fantasy #15
was submitted to us as

After our expert pressing and resubmission to CGC, the book received an unrestored grade of CGC 7.5 and a value increase of $25,000.

Pressing is the most radical concept to emerge in the comic book market since CGC. Matt Nelson, owner of Classics Incorporated, offers the most effective, safe pressing in the industry--and the most trusted eye for any comic book in any grade. He has viewed over 100,000 vintage comic books the past decade, including many of the most valuable and scarce comics in the world. No one else can offer a more complete knowledge of a book's grade, value and demand in the marketplace.

Be weary of others who offer to press comics; they usually don't maximize your books' grades, or worse, damage occurs from improper pressing. There are countless kinds of comics and possible defects, so there is no simple way to press a book. You must consider the company who has invested the most research and development into a process that accounts for all variables.

Our proscreen service is just as vital, which determines if your comic should even be pressed in the first place. We achieve the most successful upgrades in the industry thanks to our deadly accurate proscreens. In fact, most other pressers don't offer a proscreen service, leaving you to take your own chances. As critical as pressing is for your collection's value, it's just as critical to determine when not to press your books so you avoid wasted fees, downgrades, or even damage.

Visit our website for more information on pressing. We do on-site proscreens at the major shows each year, including San Diego, Chicago and New York, and offer guaranteed turn times and discounts for bulk submissions. Our reputation speaks for itself. Ask anybody!

COMIC BOOK RESTORATION AT ITS FINEST.

Before Restoration

After Restoration

We're proud to offer a revolutionary process in comic book restoration called leafcasting, which has dramatically improved the appearance of comics we restore. Prior to 2008 the traditional method of piece replacement to covers and interior pages involved a painstaking process by hand. Leafcasting accomplishes all of this in one step, creating a seamless fill that matches thickness and flexibility.

Our color touch methods have also evolved, which, in hand with leafcasting, has created stunning results, higher grades and value. This means the field of candidacy has now broadened. But the most important question still remains...is your comic book worth restoring? The answer to this question involves finding a balance between value, cost and preservation.

When we proscreen your comic book for restoration, our expert eye evaluates the book's integrity, and then compares its potential value against various scenarios of restoration to determine what best works to achieve your goal. Be assured that we will give you an honest appraisal of your comic's restoration potential, even if it means suggesting that nothing be done to your comic book.

Visit our website classicsincorporated.com for detailed information regarding our restoration service, including a number of before/after examples. You'll also find a valuable tool that allows you to enter pertinent information about your comic book to determine if it's worth restoring.

PROFESSIONAL'S OPINION

So, why buy comics without CGC's certification?

When you purchase a comic certified by CGC, you know that it has been graded by the hobby's most experienced and trusted team, according to an established grading standard. Furthermore, every book graded by CGC undergoes a thorough restoration check by leading professionals. When restoration is detected, it's clearly noted on the certification label.

Once certified by CGC, every comic is encapsulated in a state-of-the-art, tamper-evident holder, providing superior protection and stability for long-term enjoyment. For your comic books, you deserve certification from CGC, the only impartial, third-party grading service.

HERITAGE AUCTIONS IS PROUD TO HAVE STEVE BOROCK ON OUR TEAM!

Steve Borock is perhaps the best-known and most respected figure in the vintage comics hobby. His expertise has further cemented Heritage's status as by far the leading auctioneer for vintage comics and original comic art. During his long tenure as President of CGC, Steve had the final word on every grade that CGC assigned. His reputation for fairness, honesty and impartiality was a key component in CGC's acceptance among the community of collectors and dealers.

"Steve is a true comics fan and has been a great statesman for our hobby. CGC would not be where it is today without him!"

Mark Haspel, CGC President and Primary Grader

"I wouldn't have joined Heritage unless I truly believed it's the very BEST place for collectors to get top dollar for their comic collections," Steve says. Protecting collectors and sellers alike has been my primary focus for over two decades, and I am now doing the same for all who consign their comic books and original comic art to Heritage."

Steve can be reached at SteveB@HA.com or 1-800-872-6467, ext. 1337.

COMICS & COMIC ART AUCTION

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE GARY DAHLBERG ESTATE $2,000,000 SOLD IN HERITAGE AUCTIONS!

August 28, 2011

Mr. Barry Sandoval
Heritage Auctions
Dallas, Texas

Dear Barry,

I wanted to thank you and your colleagues for everything that Heritage has done marketing and auctioning the comic book collection of my late brother-in-law Gary Dahlberg.

When Gary passed away, the family knew very little about vintage comic collecting. We knew Gary's collection was valuable but had no idea how valuable. We discussed the collection with several of the leaders in the comic book collecting industry before selecting Heritage to represent us.

We were all thrilled to see Gary's collection featured in a special catalog with photographs and his personal biography, as well as in all of the printed mailers and brochures you put out before the Signature Auctions. With your cooperation and involvement, the collection was covered in many magazine and newspaper articles, making the front page of the Minneapolis Star Tribune. It was also shown on TV news. Heritage committed to using its considerable resources in marketing this collection. You sure came through.

I was present at the first auction which featured extremely competitive bidding, and saw the first 400 comics sell for well over $1 million. Sales at this point are close to $2 million and still going strong.

I strongly feel that Heritage made sure that Gary's collection was prepared and presented in the most profitable way. In doing this, Gary's name and collection has become well known to every serious collector in the country. I don't think anyone could have done a better job.

I have talked to many people in your company over the last several months. Everyone I talked to was very patient with me and took the time to make sure all of my questions were completely answered. The entire family is impressed with your expertise and professionalism throughout the process. We all are extremely glad that we chose Heritage to represent us.

Sincerely,

Tom Madison

If You Want To Get Top Dollar For Your Collection, Read This!!!!

I routinely buy comic books from most of the dealers and auction houses in this book.

If I am buying comic books from them,
I know they can't offer you more for your collection than I CAN!

I do NOT have a website.

I do NOT have a store.

I do NOT have employees.

I do NOT have any overhead.

If you have something I want, I CAN and WILL pay you top dollar for it! If I can't offer you top dollar for something, I will happily direct you to someone who can.

I spent several million dollars last year buying comics, and would like to spend even MORE this year!
Before you agree to sell your collection for less, give me a chance to make you an offer!

No collection is too big or too small!
I am buying all comic books Pre-1966.

Brian Howard Art

Not many people can remember when they became passionate about a particular pastime—but I can. My love for comics started when I picked up my first comic book at age 6. This realm of colorful heroes and magical worlds transported me to foreign lands and mythical places.

But it was more than a passing phase—something I realized when I found myself unable to part with a single issue and only wanted to amass a bigger collection. Upon landing my first job at 12-years-old, all the money I earned went into my hobby as I dragged my parents to countless yard sales and flea markets in search of the kind of comics I wanted, but couldn't afford at enthusiast shows or stores. My love for the genre was cemented.

Neat Stuff Collectibles came to fruition shortly after I graduated from college. They say it's best when you love what you do so transitioning this pastime from recreation to vocation was an easy choice.

At the San Diego Comic Con, I was bitten by another bug: original comic art. The piece in question depicted a page from one of my favorite comic books ever. It was truly unique and one-of-a-kind, so I purchased it for sentimental reasons and never looked back.

So why should you place your comic art in my trust? Because even after all these years, I still get the same feeling when I look and touch this stuff as you do. I understand and respect the passion and thought that goes into amassing a comic compilation and most every dollar I earn gets reinvested back into my collection.

Let's chat comic art anytime.

Sincerely,

Brian Howard Schutzer

JOHN VERZYL AND DAUGHTER ROSE, "HARD AT WORK."

John Verzyl started collecting comic books in 1965, and within ten years he had amassed thousands of Golden and Silver Age comic books. In 1979, with his wife Nanette, he opened "COMIC HEAVEN," a retail store devoted entirely to the buying and selling of comic books.

Over the years, John Verzyl has come to be recognized as an authority in the field of comic books. He has served as a special advisor to the "Overstreet Comic Book Price Guide" for the last 25 years. Thousands of his "mint" comics were photographed for Ernst Gerber's "Photo-Journal Guide to Comic Books." His tables and displays at the annual San Diego Comic Convention and the Chicago Comic Convention draw customers from all over the country.

The first COMIC HEAVEN AUCTION was held in 1987, and today his Auction Catalogs are mailed out to more than ten thousand interested collectors and dealers.

BIG LITTLE BOOKS

INTRODUCTION

In 1932, at the depths of the Great Depression, comic books were not selling despite their successes in the previous two decades. Desperate publishers had already reduced prices to 25¢, but this was still too much for many people to spend on entertainment.

Comic books quickly evolved into two newer formats, the comics magazine and the Big Little Book. Both types retailed for 10¢.

Big Little Books began by reprinting the art (and adapting the stories) from newspaper comics. As their success grew and publishers began commissioning original material, movie adaptations and other entertainment-derived stories became commonplace.

GRADING

Before a Big Little Book's value can be assessed, its condition or state of preservation must be determined. A book in Near Mint condition will bring many times the price of the same book in Poor condition. Many variables influence the grading of a Big Little Book and all must be considered in the final evaluation. Due to the way they are constructed, damage occurs with very little use - usually to the spine, book edges and binding. More important defects that affect grading are: Split spines, pages missing, page browning or brittleness, writing, crayoning, loose pages, color fading, chunks missing, and rolling or out of square. The following grading guide is given to aid the novice:

9.4 Near Mint: The overall look is as if it was just purchased and maybe opened once; only subtle defects are allowed; paper is cream to off-white, supple and fresh; cover is flat with no surface wear or creases; inks and colors are bright; small penciled or inked arrival dates are acceptable; very slight blunting of corners at top and bottom of spine are common; outside corners are cut square and sharp. Books in this grade could bring prices of guide and a half or more.

9.0 Very Fine/Near Mint: Limited number of defects; full cover gloss with only very slight wear on book corners and edges; very minor foxing; very minor tears allowed, binding still square and tight with no pages missing; paper quality still fresh from cream to off-white. Dates, stamps or initials allowed on cover or inside.

8.0 Very Fine: Most of the cover gloss retained with minor wear appearing at corners and around edges; spine tight with no pages missing; cream/tan paper allowed if still supple; up to 1/4" bend allowed on covers with no color break; cover relatively flat; minor tears allowed.

6.0 Fine: Slight wear beginning to show; cover gloss reduced but still clean, pages tan/brown but still supple (not brittle); up to 1/4" split or color break allowed; minor discoloration and/or foxing allowed.

4.0 Very Good: Obviously a read copy with original printing luster almost gone; some fading and discoloration, but not soiled; some signs of wear such as corner splits and spine rolling; paper can be brown but not brittle; a few pages can be loose but not missing; no chunks missing; blunted corners acceptable.

2.0 Good: An average used copy complete with only minor pieces missing from the spine, which may be partially split; slightly soiled or marked with spine rolling; color flaking and wear around edges, but perfectly sound and legible; could have minor tape repairs but otherwise complete.

1.0 Fair: Very heavily read and soiled with small chunks missing from cover; most or all of spine could be missing; multiple splits in spine and loose pages, but still sound and legible, bringing 50 to 70 percent of good price.

IMPORTANT

Most BLBs on the market today will fall in the Good to Fine grade category. When Very Fine to Near Mint BLBs are offered for sale, they usually bring premium prices.

A WORD ON PRICING

The prices are given for Good, Fine and Very Fine/Near Mint condition. A book in Fair would be 50-70% of the Good price. Very Good would be halfway between the Good and Fine price, and Very Fine would be halfway between the Fine and Very Fine/

Near Mint price. The prices listed were averaged from convention sales, dealers' lists, adzines, auctions, and by special contact with dealers and collectors from coast to coast. The prices and the spreads were determined from sales of copies in available condition or the highest grade known. Since most available copies are in the Good to Fine range, neither dealers nor collectors should let the Very Fine/Near Mint column influence the prices they are willing to charge or pay for books in less than near perfect condition.

The prices listed reflect a six times spread from Good to Very Fine/ Near Mint (1 - 3 - 6). We feel this spread accurately reflects the current market, especially when you consider the scarcity of books in Very Fine/Near Mint condition. When one or both end sheets are missing, the book's value would drop about a half grade.

Publisher Codes: BRP-Blue Ribbon Press; ERB-Edgar Rice Burroughs; EVW-Engel van Wiseman; FAW-Fawcett Publishing Co.; Gold-Goldsmith Publishing Co.; Lynn-Lynn Publishing Co.; McKay-David McKay Co.; Whit-Whitman Publishing Co.; World-World Syndicate Publishing Co.

Terminology: All Pictures Comics-no text, all drawings; Fast-Action-A special series of Dell books highly collected; Flip Pictures-upper right corner of interior pages contain drawings that are put into motion when rifled; Movie Scenes-book illustrated with scenes from the movie. Soft Cover-A thin single sheet of cardboard used in binding most of the giveaway versions.

PROMOTIONAL COMICS

by Dr. Arnold T. Blumberg, DCD with new material and additional research by Sol M. Davidson, PhD, and Robert L. Beerbohm

Everyone wants something for free. It's in our nature to look for the quick fix, the good deal, the complimentary gift. We long to hit the lottery and quit our job, to win the trip around the world, or find that pot of gold at the end of the proverbial rainbow. Collectors in particular are certainly built to appreciate the notion of the "free gift," since it not only means a new item to collect and enjoy, but no risk or obligation in order to acquire it.

Ah, but there's the rub. Because things are not always what they seem, and "free gifts" usually come with a price. As the saying goes, "there's no such thing as a free lunch," so if it seems too good to be true, it probably is. This is the case even in the world of comics, where premiums and giveaways have a familiar agenda hidden behind the bright colors and fanciful stories. But where did it all begin?

EXTRA EXTRA

As we learn more about the early history of the comic book industry through continual investigation and the publishing of articles like those regularly featured in this book, we gain a much greater understanding of the financial and creative forces at work in shaping the medium, but perhaps one of the most intriguing and least recognized factors that influenced the dawn of comics is the concept of the premium or giveaway. (Note: Some of the historical information referenced in this article is derived from material also presented in Robert L. Beerbohm's introductory articles to the Platinum Age and Modern Age sections.)

The birth of the comic book as we know it today is intimately connected with the development of the comic strip in American newspapers and their use as an advertising and marketing tool for staple products such as bread, milk, and cereal. From the very beginning, comic characters have played several roles in pop culture, entertaining the youth of the country while also (sometimes none too subtly) acting as hucksters for whatever corporation foots the bill. From important staples to frivolous material produced simply to make a buck, these products have utilized the comics medium to sell, sell, sell. And what better way to hook a prospective customer than to give them "something for nothing?"

Starting in the 1850s, comics were being used in free almanacs such as Elton's, Hostetter's and Wright's to lure readers for the little booklets to sell patent medicine, farm products, tobacco, shoe polish, etc. Most of these are exceedingly rare today, hence it is difficult to compile an accurate history. More mention of these early precursors can be found in the Victorian Comics Era essay following this one. But although comic characters themselves were already being aggressively merchandised all around the world by the mid-1890s--as with, for example, Palmer Cox's The Brownies--the real starting point for the success of comics as a giveaway marketing mechanism can be traced to the introduction of The Yellow Kid, Richard Outcault's now legendary newspaper strip.

Newspaper publishers had already recognized that comic strips could boost circulation as well as please sponsors and advertisers by drawing more eyes to the page, so Sunday "supplements" were introduced to entice fans. Outcault's creation cemented the theory with proof of comic characters' marketing and merchandising power.

Soon after, Outcault (who had most likely been inspired by Cox's merchandising success with The Brownies in the first place) caught lightning in a bottle once more with Buster Brown, who has the distinction of being America's first nationally licensed comic strip character. Soon, comic strips proliferated throughout the nation's newspapers as tycoons like Hearst and Pulitzer recognized the drawing power of the new medium and fought circulation wars to capture the pennies of the nouveau readership. They paid exorbitant salaries to comic strip artists such as Rudolph Dirks (Katzenjammer Kids), and used the funnies as newspaper supplements and as premiums to attract readers. Corporations soon had the chance to license recognizable personas as their own personal pitchmen (or women or animals...). Comic character merchandise wasn't far behind, resulting in a boom of future collectibles now catalogued in volumes like Hake's Price Guide to Character Toys.

TWO BIRTHS FOR THE PRICE OF ONE

Comic books themselves were at the heart of this movement, and giveaway and premium collections of comic strips not only appealed to children and adults alike, but provided the impetus for the birth of the modern comic book format itself. It could be said that without the concept of the giveaway comic or the marketing push behind it, there would be no comic book industry as we have it today. Well-known now is the story of how in spring 1933 Harry Wildenberg of Eastern Color Printing Company convinced Proctor & Gamble to sponsor the first modern comic book, Funnies on Parade, as a premium. Its success led to the first continuing comic book, Famous Funnies, and the rest, as they say, is history.

In 1935, while working on the printing presses of Eastern Color developing how modern comic books get printed,

This unused cover was designed as the second cover for "Motion Picture Funnies Weekly." While the concept for this promotional comic title never caught on, the inaugural issue did feature the origin and first printed appearance of the Sub-Mariner.

Julian J. Proskauer came up with an idea for printing "Comic-Books-For-Industry." In July 1936 he made his first sale through his newly formed William C. Popper & Co. to David M. Davies, then advertising manager for Seagram's Distillers Corp. for three million copies of Seagram's Merrymakers in time for the 1936-37 Christmas season. "Thus was a new industry born," wrote Printing News in August 1945.

Even a casual perusal of the listings in this section of the Guide will dazzle the reader with the endless variety of purposes that this medium has served. Yes, promos have been used to hawk products from athletic equipment to zithers and zip codes, but comics are too versatile an art form to be confined to a few uses. They've swayed

READ ALL ABOUT IT

The impact of this new approach to advertising was not lost on the business world. Contrary to modern belief, comic books were hardly discounted by the adults of the time...at least not those who had the marketing savvy to recognize an opportunity - or a threat - when they saw one. In the April 1933 issue of Fortune magazine, an article titled "The Funny Papers" trumpeted the arrival of comics as a force to be reckoned with in the world of advertising and business, and what's more, a force to fear as well. At first providing a brief survey of the newspaper comic strip business (which for many of the magazine's readers must have seemed a foreign topic for serious discussion), the article goes on to examine the incredible financial draw of comics and their characters:

"Between 70 and 75 per cent {sic} of the readers of any newspaper follow its comic sections regularly...Even the advertiser has succumbed to the comic, and in 1932 spent well over $1,000,000 for comic-paper space."

Although the article continues to cast the notion of relying on comic strip material to sell product in a negative light, actually suggesting that advertisers who utilize comics are violating unspoken rules of "advertising decorum" and bringing themselves "down to the level" of comics (and since when have advertisers been stalwart preservers of good taste and high moral standards), there is no doubt that they are viewing comics in a new light. The comic characters have arrived by 1933...and they're ready to help sell your merchandise too.

Fortune wasn't the only one to take notice as World War II came and went. In 1948, Louis P. Birk, the head of Brevity, Inc., an important promotional comics publisher said, "Comics are serious business." In an article in Printers' Ink magazine, he estimated that more than 80 different "comic booklets" had been produced and more than 45,000,000 million copies distributed in the five years before 1948. But of course, comics were serious business long before businessman/historian Birk noted the fact for posterity.

THE MARCH OF WAR AND BEYOND

Through the relentless currents of time, comic strips, books, and the characters that starred in them became more and more an intrinsic part of American culture. During the turmoil of the Great Depression and World War II, comic characters in print and celluloid form entertained while informing and selling at the same time, and premium and giveaway comics came well and truly into their own, pushing everything from loaves of bread to war bonds.

In the 1950s and '60s, there was a shift in focus as the power of giveaway and premium comics was applied to more altruistic endeavors than simply selling something. Comic book format pamphlets, fully illustrated and often inventively written, taught children about banking, money, the dangers of poison and other household products, and even chronicled moments in American history. The comic book as giveaway was now not only a marketing gimmick--it was a tool for educating as well.

The 1970s and '80s saw another boom in premium and giveaway comics. Every product imaginable seemed to have a licensing deal with a comic book character, usually one of the prominent flag bearers of the Big Two, Marvel or DC. Spider-Man fought bravely against the Beetle for the benefit of All Detergent; Captain America allied himself with the Campbell Kids; and Superman helped a class of computer students beat a disaster-conjuring foe at his own game with the help of Radio Shack Tandy computers.

Newspapers rediscovered the power of comics, not just with enlarged strip supplements but with actual comic books. Spider-Man, the Hulk, and others turned up as giveaway comic extras in various American newspapers (including Chicago and Dallas publications), while a whole series of public information comics like those produced decades earlier used superheroes to caution children about the dangers of smoking, drugs, and child abuse.

Comics also turned up in a plethora of other toy products as the 1980s introduced kids to the joy of electronic games and action figures. Supplementary comics provided "free" with action figure and video game packages told the backstory about the product, adding depth to the play experience while providing an extra incentive to buy. Comics became an intrinsic part of the Atari line of video cartridges, for example, eventually spawning its own full-blown newsstand series as well.

As the twentieth century gave way to the twenty-first, giveaway comics were still being produced for inclusion in action figure and video game packages, as well as in conjunction with countless consumer items and corporations. It seems that the medium still has a lot to offer for all those companies desperate to make the most of their market share.

A COMIC BY ANY OTHER NAME

One of the earliest names for promotional comics was "special purpose comics." In their pursuit of superheroes, collectors have allowed promotional comics to lie fallow - underappreciated and uncollected. Without a legitimate name, these products were given sundry other appellations - industrial comics, promos, giveaways, premiums, promics - each accurate but only for a small segment of the unorganized but lusty and lively medium. Perhaps no one name can cover all the variations and purposes of this branch of comic art, but for practical reasons if we accept the general premise that these comics were created to promote an idea, a product or a person, then "Promotional Comics" is probably as convenient a catch-all title as we can come up with.

We used the phrase "for practical reasons" because the word "practical" goes to the heart of promotional comics more than it does for any other comics product. What greater testimony is there to the medium's impact on American culture than to note their use by hard-headed, profit-minded business people and corporations? They invest their money and they expect results.

Today, premium comics continue to thrive and are still utilized as a valuable marketing and promotional tool. "Free" comics are still packaged with action figures and video games, and offered as mail-away premiums from a variety of product manufacturers. The comic industry itself has expanded its use of giveaway comics to self-promote as well, with "ashcan" and other giveaway editions turning up at conventions and comic shops to advertise upcoming series and special events. Many of these function as old-fashioned premiums, with a coupon or other response required from the reader to receive the comic.

As for the supplements and giveaways printed all those years ago, they have spawned a collectible fervor all their own, thanks to their atypical distribution and frequent rarity. For that and the desire to delve deeper into comics history, we hope that by focusing more directly on this genre, we can enhance our understanding of this vital component in the development and history of the

Today, promotional comics continue to be used as a marketing tool to reach both children and adults alike. This 2005 comic was produced by Marvel Comics as a salute to the men and women of the armed forces.

Whether you're a collector or not, we're all motivated by that desire to get something for nothing. For as long as consumers are enticed by the notion of the "free gift," promotional comics will remain a vital marketing component in many business models, but they will also continue to fight the stigma that has long been associated with the industry as a whole. "Respectable" sources like Fortune may have taken notice of the power of comic-related advertising 71 years ago, but after all this time comics still fight an uphill battle to establish some measure of dignity for the medium. Perhaps the higher visibility of promotional comics will eventually prove to be a deciding factor in that intellectual war.

See ya in the funny papers.

Early issues were full size, 32 pages, and were printed with and without an extra cover of slick stock, just for the advertiser. The binding was stapled if the slick cover was added; otherwise, the pages were glued together at the spine. Most 1948 - 1951 issues were full size, 24 pages, pulp covers. Starting in 1952 they were half-size (with a few exceptions) and 32 pages with slick covers. 1959 and later issues had only 16 pages plus covers. 1952 -1959 issues read oblong; 1960 and later issues read upright. All have new stories except where noted.

THE PIONEER AGE

The American Comic Book: 1500s-1828

For the last few years, we have featured a tremendous article by noted historian and collector Eric C. Caren on the foundations of what we now call “The Pioneer Age” of comics. We look forward to a new article on this significant topic in a future edition of The Overstreet Comic Book Price

Guide. In the meantime, should you need it, Caren’s article may be found in the 35th through 39th editions.

That said, even with the space constraints in this edition of the Guide, we could not possibly exclude reference to these incredible, formative works.

The Murder of King Henry III (1589).

Quite frankly, because we can see in them the very building blocks of the comic art form.

The shooting of the Italian Concini (1617).

Over the course of just a few hundred years, we see the evolution of narration, word balloons, panel-to-panel progression of story, and so much more. If these stories aren't developed first, how would we ever have reached the point that that The Adventures of Mr. Obadiah Oldbuck could have come along in 1842?

As the investigation of comic book history has blown away the notion that comic books were a 20th-century invention, it hasn't been easy to convince some, even with the clear, linear progression of the artful melding of illustration and words.

"Want to avoid an argument in social discourse? Steer clear of politics and religion. In the latter category, the most controversial subject is human evolution. Collectors can become just as squeamish when you start messing with the evolution of a particular collectible," Eric Caren wrote in his article. "In most cases, the origin of a particular comic character will be universally agreed upon, but try tackling the origin of printed comics and you are asking for trouble."

"The Bubbler's Medley" (1720).

"Join, or Die" from the Pennsylvania Gazette, May 9, 1754.

"Amusement for John Bull..." from The European Magazine (1783).

Cartoons satirizing Napoleon on the front page of the Connecticut Mirror, dated January 7, 1811.

But the evidence is there for any who choose to look. Before the original comics of the Golden Age, there were comic strip reprints collected in comic book form. The practice dated back decades earlier, of course, but coalesced into the current form when the realities of the Great Depression spawned the modern incarnation of the comic book and its immediate cousin, the Big Little Book.

Everything that came later, though, did so because the acceptance of the visual language had already been worked out. Before Spider-Man and the Hulk, before Superman and Batman, before the Yellow Kid, Little Nemo, and the Brownies, cartoonists and editorial illustrators were working out how to tell a story or simply convey their ideas in this new artform.

Without this sort of work, without these pioneers, we simply wouldn't be where we are today.

"A Consultation at the Medical Board" from The Pasquin or General Satirist (1821).

Comic Strips and Books: 1646-1900

A Concise History & Price Index Of The Field As Of 2012

ORIGINS OF EARLY AMERICAN COMIC STRIPS BEFORE THE YELLOW KID

by Robert Lee Beerbohm, Richard Samuel West
& Richard D. Olson, PhD ©2012

(This article was originally created by Doug Wheeler, Robert Beerbohm and Richard D. Olson, PhD for CBPG #32 and continues to be revised annually by the current authors.) We welcome any and all corrections and additions.

Special Thanks This Installment To Leonardo De Sa, Terrence Keegen, Gabriel Laderman and Joe Rainone.

Middle: "A Warm Place - Hell", one of two images definitely known to be drawn and engraved by Paul Revere, 1768. Word balloons had wide-spread usage in many cartoons in the 1700s. Right: The Tables Turned by James Gillray, 1797 commenting on an "invasion" of England by 1400 French convicts. The use of word balloons was wide spread in many parts of the world long before the Yellow Kid's parrot uttered a few words in 1896.

The Comic Almanac(k) debuted in America in 1831 with the earliest-known titles starting heavy with humor and sporting crude woodcut single panel cartoons. Ellm's American Comic Almanac was one of the first. By 1835 Davy Crockett, one of the nation's earliest national folk heroes, began issuing his own version. In the late 1840s the Comic Almanac(k)s began to offer tall-tale sequential comic strips which became somewhat commonplace in the 1850s, fueled by the advent of the California Gold Rush. They were instrumental in the development of the American comic strip and we will be reporting more new finds after further research into American folklore.

We have a lot of new discoveries to share with you again this year as amply evident in the price index which follows this year's history lesson. A quantum leap has finally been achieved in the area of introducing the comic book collecting world to American Comic Almanac(k)s as well as a huge multitude of American humor periodicals, many of which contained sequential comic strips.

This Victorian Era section is devoted to comic strips and books published during the years the United States expanded across the North American continent, fought a Civil War, shifted from an agrarian to an industrial society, "welcomed" waves of immigrants, and struggled over race, class, religion, temperance, and suffrage - and all of it depicted and satirized by generations of mostly now long-forgotten cartoonists. The social attitudes, beliefs, and conventions of 19th century America, the good as well as the bad, are to be found in abundance. Perhaps the first question to pop into most readers' minds will be, "What, beyond the happenstance of publication date, are Victorian Era comics?"

There has been a long slow-motion evolution of the comic strip which was not invented in America, contrary to many previous history books on the subject. One must examine many aspects of concurrent popular culture. The main aspect that we believe most distinguishes Victorian Era comic strips from those of later eras was the extremely rare use of word balloons within sequential (multi-picture) comic stories. When word balloons were used, it was nearly always within single-panel cartoons. On the occasions when they appeared inside a strip, with very few exceptions, the ballooned dialogue was inconsequential. Nineteenth-century comics tended to place both narration and dialogue beneath comic panels rather than within the panel's borders as they were thought by many to interfere with the art. Many of these comics are to the word balloon-strewn post-Yellow Kid comics of the 20th Century as silent movies are to the later "talkies." Just as sound changed how stories were structured on film, so too did comic strips change when the words were moved from beneath panels to inside them, and dialogue rather than narration drove the story in conjunction with the pictures.

The Victorian Era of actual comic strip books began on different dates in different nations, depending on when the first publication of a sequential comic book on their soil is known to have occurred. For the U.S. this happened when the American literary periodical Brother Jonathan printed the 40-page, 195-panel graphic novel The Adventures of Mr. Obadiab Oldbuck as a special extra dated September 14, 1842. Almost six decades later, America's Victorian comics came to their end, replaced by the onslaught of Platinum Age books reprinting newspaper strips from Bennett, Hearst, and Pulitzer Sunday comic sections, among many others.

There is considerable overlap between Victorian Era and Platinum Age comic books and strips. Those publications that continued from one century into the next, such as Puck, Judge, and Life, have their pre-1900 issues listed within the Victorian Age section, while their post-1899 issues can be found inside the Platinum Age. Some non-sequential (i.e., single-panel) American comic items existing prior to 1842 are also listed herein, going back to 1795. These belong to what could tentatively be called the Age of Caricature (1770s through 1830s). This was a fertile period for the art in England, when Gillray and Rowlandson, and, later, Cruikshank, Heath, and Seymour were that nation's top cartoonists. During the same period in the U.S., there were no artists who made their living as caricaturists, though William Charles, printer and engraver, did produce about two dozen spirited cartoon broadsides from 1805 to 1820, the most important ones concerning events of the War of 1812.

In addition, one can trace origins of American comic books to the humorous Comic Almanacs which began in earnest in the early 1830s.

The earliest known cartoon-like woodcut printed on paper in North America was in a Puritan children's book first published in 1646. Titled simply The Burning of Mr. John

The Comus Offering, 1830 sample page of single panel cartoons using word balloons in every panel. Very Rare.

Rogers, it showed in flaming graphic detail what happens to those who stray from the flock and have to be burned at the stake. Dr. Wertham would have had a field day with that one!

Cartoon broadsides and other single panel images, often using word balloons, appeared from pre-Revolution days through the end of the 19th Century. The earliest known attributed cartoon, designed by the ubiquitous Benjamin Franklin, was "Heaven Helps Only Those Who Help Themselves," which first appeared in his pamphlet Plain Truth in 1747.

The most popularly remembered 18th-Century American cartoons are likely Franklin's "Join or Die" in 1754, representing the American Colonies as severed snake parts, and "The Bloody Massacre Perpetrated in King Street" -- Paul Revere's 1770 depiction of the Boston Massacre, which he pirated from the earlier Henry Pelham broadsheet cartoon "The Fruits of Arbitrary Power."

In September 1826, John Warner Barber, New Haven, Ct. (1798-1885) designed and self-published the broadside The Drunkard's Progress, Or The Direct Road to Poverty, Wretchedness and Ruin showing in four stages sequentially "The Morning Dram" which is "The Beginning of Sorrow," "The Grog Shop" with its "Bad Company," "The Confirmed Drunkard" in a state of "Beastly Intoxication," and the "Concluding Scene" with the family being driven off to the alms house. It is an interesting set of cuts, faintly reminiscent of Hogarth. Barber began his career in 1819, age 21, engraving on wood. He devoted most of his career to the multitude of art chores associated with book production. As late as 1870 he was issuing Barber's Temperance Tracts, which built upon his 1826 original plus four panels showing the positive effects of living without alcohol.

The first American whose fame was based primarily on his cartoons appears to be David Claypoole Johnston (1798-1865). Johnston provided illustrations for various almanacs, books, and periodicals, including the masthead for Brother Jonathans. Most notable of Johnston's comics work was his nine-issue series Scraps, which he self-published from 1828 to 1849. This series was highly influenced by George Cruikshank's series Scraps and Sketches, which first appeared in 1827. Because of the resemblance, Johnston became known in his day as "the American Cruikshank." Each issue of Johnston's Scraps consists of four large folio-sized pages, printed on one side, with nine to twelve single-panel cartoons per page, and each page often organized around a theme. Also popular was his comic album *Outlines Illustrative of the Journal of F A K (1835), which parodied passages from the journal of recently published observations on America by British actress Fanny Kemble.

Johnston, himself a failed actor, had an interest in the theater his entire career. In addition to producing a number of prints depicting American actors in famous roles, he collaborated with actor Henry J. Finn to produce the 1831 (American) Comic Annual, with Finn as Editor and Johnston as artist, published by Richardson, Lord and Holbrook, Boston. It featured almost 30 full-page Johnston-designed copper engravings and woodcuts. Also that year, Finn solo produced Finn's Comic Sketch Book, a twelve-page album similar to Johnston's Scraps with upwards of half a dozen single-panel cartoons per page. It was published by Peabody and Co, of New York in business from 1831-1843. (Finn died tragically in a steamboat accident Jan. 13, 1840.)

Perhaps Johnston's most interesting contribution to the history of the comic strip in American came in 1837, when he produced the sequential comic broadside, Illustrations of the Adventures & Achievements of the Renowned Don Quixote & his Doughty Squire Sancho Panza (27.4 x 30.4 cm). This blank-reverse engraved print was an elaborate twelve-panel satire of the Andrew Jackson-Van Buren administration. It likely sold for 25 cents, seeing distribution in Boston, New York and Philadelphia. Much later, in 1863, Johnston drew another sequential comic broadside, The House the Jeff Built (27.5 x 36.7 cm), a bitter indictment of Jefferson Davis and the Southern slavocracy.

In July 1839, Wilson and Company, a newly formed New York printing firm, began publishing a mammoth newspaper by the name of Brother Jonathan. The publisher, J. Gregg Wilson had employed the newspaper format for Brother Jonathan to circumvent the higher postage rates imposed on magazines, but Brother Jonathan was a newspaper in format only -- it contained not a shred of news, instead specializing in serialized fiction, some of it written by Americans but most of it pirated from foreign sources. Despite the cost savings, the mammoth format had its limitations; when opened it measured a whopping three feet by four feet. So, once Brother Jonathan was an established success, Wilson and Day began in January 1841 the simultaneous publication of a magazine-sized quarto edition of Brother Jonathan that reprinted the contents of the mammoth edition.

Later that same year, to capitalize on the name recognition of their successful twin publications, Wilson and Company started issuing book-length Brother Jonathan Extras in the same format as the quarto magazine. These reprints are counted among the earliest paperback books in America. Most of the Extra numbers were pirated European novels. For example their eighth extra was the first American printing of a Charles Dickens novel. But for their ninth Extra, they did something no American publisher had ever done before -- they pirated a graphic novel, Rodolphe Töpffer's The Adventures of Mr. Obadiab Oldbuck. By reformatting Oldbuck from its original small oblong strip design to fit Brother Jonathan's standard quarto format Wilson and Company inadvertently made this edition (alone) of Obadiab Oldbuck resemble a modern comic book. Oldbuck's arrival on the shores of the New World would directly inspire a wave of American imitators. [This first Wilson printing of Oldbuck from 1842 was reprinted in same-size limited edition facsimile by the Naples Comicon in 2003. An English translation by Leonardo De Sá of Töpffer's original draft is at leonardodesa.interdinamica.net/comics/lds/]

Even though in 1904 (in its September 3 edition), The New York Times accurately identified the Brother Jonathan Extra as the first American comic book as well as Wilson & Co. utilizing Tilt & Bougue's original printing plates as well as still being in print for sale in New York at such a late date, Töpffer has already been largely forgotten in the New World. It is high time Töpffer received credit long overdue as the inventor of the modern comic strip, laying previously long-held myths to rest.

Töpffer (1799-1846) was a playwright, novelist, artist, and teacher from Geneva, Switzerland, who in 1827 had begun producing what he called "picture novels," sharing them with his friends and students. His earliest editions were self-published via lithography on transfer paper as they use the word "autographie" in their imprints. The earliest printers were J. Freydis, Frutiger (1830s) and Schmidt (1840s). These first sequential comic books, scripted in Töpffer's native French language, found their way to Paris and became an instant hit. According to Gombrich in Art and Illusion (1960), "Töpffer recognized that he could rely on the reader to supplement from their own lives what was omitted between the panels. This is crucial in the development of the sequential comic strip."

Cover to the subscriber version of the earliest-known sequential comic book published in America, The Adventures of Mr. Obadiab Oldbuck, Sept. 1842, Wilson & Co. New York, originally conceived in 1828 in Geneva Switzerland by creator Rodolphe Töpffer.

The demand for his comic books soon outstripped the supply, and pirated editions, redrawn by others, were created by Parisian publisher Aubert to capitalize on this. In a world where international copyright conventions did not exist, this was perfectly legal, if morally questionable. Thus, in 1841, London publisher Tilt and Bogue commissioned George Cruikshank to create an English version of Töpffer's Les Amours de M. Vieux Bois by pirating Aubert's pirated edition of the Geneva original.

scenes. Confirmation of this fact came when George Cruikshank's personal copy surfaced in auction recently with the inscription "Copied from a French book by my Brother Robert" above the title page with the same scene. This is the translation that was reprinted by America's Wilson and Company as The Adventures of Mr. Obadiab Oldbuck utilizing the original Tilt and Bogue printing plates.

Tilt and Bogue followed up their success by translating into English two additional stories of Töpffer's seven published graphic novels: Beau Ogleby, circa 1843 (originally Histoire de M. Jabot), and Bachelor Butterfly two years later (from Histoire de M. Cryptogame). David Bogue also published picture-story strip books by John Leighton using the pseudonym Luke Limner. He wrote and drew beautiful comic books titled London Out of Town or The Adventures of the Browns At The Seaside; Comic Art-Manufactures; and The Ancient Story of the Old Dame and Her Pig starting in 1847, but none of these seem to have ever been republished in America. They follow a definite Töpffer influence. This growing body of comic book production was made easier by the spreading understanding of transfer paper lithography, otherwise the panels would have had to have been drawn and lettered mirror reverse. Gombrich referred to Töpffer's comic books as "the innocent ancestors of today's manufactured dreams... everywhere in these countless episodes of almost surrealist inconsequence we find a mastery of physiognomic characterization which sets the standard for such influential humorous draftsmen in the 19th century as Wilhelm Busch in Germany."

A Register of The New York City Book Trades 1821-1842 by Sidney F. & Elizabeth Stege¹², Huttner (The Bibliographical Society of America, NYC, 1993) mentions Benjamin H. Day bought into Brother Jonathan's publisher,

Wilson and Company, in this year, becoming at some point an equal partner with owner J. Gregg Wilson. The Register lists them both as publishers of Brother Jonathan at the same address of 162 Nassau Street. Other historical artifacts state Day eventually became sole-owner and publisher. Exactly when has not yet been determined, though we have figured out with certainty before 1850.

This is the same Benjamin H. Day who started the first successful penny newspaper in 1833, The (New York) Sun, transforming it in four short years into the largest circulation daily in the world at that time. He sold out his ownership of the Sun to his brother-in-law during the financial "panic" of 1837, a mistake he regretted the rest of his life. He re-emerged heavily involved in Brother Jonathan definitely by 1840 and as a partner by 1841. Brother Jonathan's offices were right next door to Tamany Hall. (See the first 20 minutes of the 2002 movie Gangs of New York to visualize the period atmosphere and their customer base.) According to The Brothers Harper by Eugene Exmen (Harper & Row, 1965), on page 125, "Brother Jonathan... offered in its weekly edition and also in special supplements very cheap reprints of English novels. In effect, it began a price-cutting war against the older established 'pirates' among the book publishers..." Day, it appears, had found the perfect project on which to build a new empire.

Desirous of repeating the success they had with Obadiab Oldbuck, Wilson and Company published the first American edition of Bachelor Butterfly in 1846. Three years later, they reformatted Obadiab Oldbuck back into its original British shape using lithography, dropping a handful of comic panels and altering the text to hide these deletions. Soon thereafter, they published other comic books for a steadily growing market that they had helped to stimulate. In recognition of their significant role in the dissemination of sequential comics, Wilson and Company deserve to be remembered as the first comic book publisher in America.

Back in Europe, perhaps inspired by his involvement with Töpffer's Obadiab Oldbuck, George Cruikshank soon created several sequential comic books of his own. These too found their way to America. The Bachelor's Own Book, published first in Britain in 1844, became the second known U.S. published sequential comic book when it was reprinted by Burgess, Stringer and Company the following year. Next was Cruikshank's masterpiece The Bottle, the Hogarthian-style tale of a man whose addiction to alcohol brings himself and his family to ruin. After debuting in London in 1847, it was reprinted the same year in a British-American co-publication between David Bogue and Americans Wiley and Putnam. Both printings were in huge folio form, available in either black and white or professionally hand-tinted versions. In 1848, the story saw American print again, this time in smaller form, placed at the front of the otherwise prose volume Temperance Tales; Or, Six Nights with the Washing-tonians. It continued to be reprinted by a variety of publishers into the early 20th Century. The Bottle was even reproduced onto painted glass slides and then projected by magic lantern onto a screen for the moral edification of temperance audiences. The Drunkard's Children, Cruikshank's sequel to The Bottle, was issued July 1, 1848 as a British-American-Australian co-publishing venture, but was less successful, and had not nearly as many reprints.

The Strange and Wonderful Adventures of Bachelor Butterfly by Rodolphe Töpffer (New York, 1846) was America's 3rd comic book; Wilson & Company's second comic book, this time out staying with the original European format.

The most clearly sequential, as well as fun, of George Cruikshank's comic books was The Tooth-Ache, first issued in London in 1849. It was reprinted in America later that same year by Philadelphia map maker J.L. Smith. An additional concurrent version was also issued from Boston.

When closed, this booklet appears an unassuming 5-1/4 inches tall by 3-1/4 inches wide. Its striking feature is that the book folds open accordion style, stretching the entire 43-panel story along one single strip of paper, which when fully extended is seven feet, three inches long! The Tooth-Ache was issued in both black and white and professionally hand-colored editions. Abridged editions of the story, printed in black and white and with a "normal" page-turning rather than foldout presentation, appeared inside promotional giveaway comics issued by American companies in the 1880s.

Thanks to Töpffer, Cruikshank, and a handful of enterprising American publishers, the 1840s should be remembered as the decade when America first fell in love with the comics.

It had seen the U.S. publication of six sequential comic books, as well as the importation of other comics with foreign imprints. America's growing interest in graphic humor was further stimulated by the growth of two other fields: the cartoon broadside and the humor magazine.

As mentioned before, the cartoon broadside had been a part of the American scene since pre-Revolution days, but it did not flourish until stone lithography (introduced in 1818 and in wide use by the 1830s) made the reproduction of images relatively fast and cheap. From the early 1830s into the mid 1840s, the leading producer of cartoon broadsides in America was New York printer H. R. Robinson, who either drew his own cartoons or employed others, especially E. W. Clay, to do it. Clay is notable for having produced the first sequential comic broadside in America. Published in 1834 and entitled, "This Is the House that Jack Built" (50 x 32 cm), the nine-panel parody of the classic nursery rhyme was an attack on the Jackson Administration. The dominant theme of American cartoon broadsides was political, as befitted a nation where politics was the leading spectator sport. As the American electorate grew increasingly educated and prosperous, the demand for cartoon broadside also increased. During the 1840s, lithographers in New York, Boston, and Philadelphia, entered the field to satisfy that demand. The best known of these, Nathaniel Currier, later Currier and Ives, joined the fray in 1848. The firm employed many artists, but its chief political cartoonist was Louis Maurer and its chief comic artist was Thomas Worth.

Except for the three previously cited sequential cartoon broadsides, nearly all of the cartoon broadsides published in America from 1832 to 1876, its dominant era, were single panels. From the 1860s onward, broadside series on a single comic theme became common, the most famous being Thomas Worth's Darktown series. These can be loosely categorized as sequential comics since they employed the same characters and formed a story of sorts when hung together on a wall, as was the publisher's expectation. Sequential art or not, the cartoon broadsides nearly always employed the speech balloons that later became one of the defining characteristic of the American comic strip.

During the same decade that sequential comics and cartoon broadsides were growing in popularity, the illustrated American humor magazine made its debut. The British comic weekly Punch, founded in 1841, was an immediate success, both in England and the United States. It was a handsomely printed quarto, initially twelve pages and later sixteen, with a repeating cover design, backed by a page of small advertisements, humorous text interspersed with comic spot art, and a single panel full-page cartoon. A significant subset of Punch's subscriber base was located in the U.S., to which thousands of copies were exported on an ongoing trans-Atlantic basis. Inevitably, enterprising American publishers attempted to repulse this invader with a home-grown comic weekly. The first, Yankee Doodle, came to town (New York, that is) on October 10, 1846, for one year. Judy (November 28, 1846 to February 20, 1847), The John-Donkey (January 1 to October 21, 1848), and The Elephant (January 22 to February 19, 1848) soon followed. None of them was successful, but all of them continued to feed the growing American interest in comic art.

By the late 1840s, comic art was flourishing in America. The conditions were right for the production of the earliest known American-created sequential comic book. Brothers James and Donald Read, who had worked for a time as cartoonists on Yankee Doodle, were the creators of Journey to the Gold Diggins by Jeremiah Saddlebags. This spirited send-up of the California gold rush craze was published in June 1849 by Stringer and Townsend, the late publishers of Judy, and, soon after, by U. P. James of Cincinnati. This Töpffer-influenced comic book chronicles the adventures of its hero Jeremiah Saddlebags in his get-rich-quick quest for gold in California. It is highly sought by collectors of Western Americana. Interestingly, the back cover of the Stringer and Townsend edition carries an advertisement for Rose and Gertrude - a Genevese Story, one of Rodolphe Töpffer's non-comics prose novels.

Stringer and Townsend was making something of a name for itself as a publisher of comic art. It will be remembered that it was one of the 1845 participants in the American publication of The Bachelor's Own Book. And, then, in 1846-47, it published Judy. Its decision to issue Jeremiah Saddlebags was all in due course.

The Gold Rush proved to be a gold mine for American comic artists. Aside from being a featured topic in the 1849 edition of David Claypool Johnston's Scraps, in comic almanacs, and in Currier cartoon prints, it was the subject of several other significant sequential series. The first, The Adventures of Mr. Tom Plump (a fat man who nearly starves to death in his failed attempt at California Gold riches), saw print in 1850. The second, The Adventures of Jeremiah Old-Pot (a twelve-part burlesque narrative of a New York businessman who attempts to get rich selling tin in price-inflated California), ran throughout 1852 in Yankee Notions. Though the narrative was distinctly American in its humor, the artwork was probably German in origin. Yankee Notions' Publisher, T. W. Strong, built his business on recycling old woodcuts with new captions attached. It should be noted that the Old-Pot series, borrowed or otherwise, was the first sequential art to appear in an American humor magazine. Yankee Notions, published from 1852 to 1875, also has the distinction of being the first comic monthly published in America.

"Moses Keyser the Bowery Bully's Trip to the California Gold Mines," was a 13-page comic story that appeared in Elton's Californian Comic All-My-Nack for 1850. It was reprinted at least twice in the circa 1850-51 booklet The Clown, Or The Banquet of Wit and later again in Sam Slick's Comic Almanac in 1857. The Clown is also notable as the earliest known anthology of sequential comics, with the bonus that each multi-panel story is by a different artist. Many of the artists are as yet unidentified, and how much of it is original American material versus that reprinted from Europe is presently unknown. But verified are cartoons by George Cruikshank, Elton (American), the Read brothers, Grandville (French), and Richard Doyle (British). The Doyle contribution reprints the comics story "Brown, Jones and Robinson and How They Went to a Ball," which originally saw print in the August 24, 1850 issue of Punch. This is the first known American appearance of these Doyle characters, and was almost certainly pirated.

Richard Doyle's The Foreign Tour of Messrs. Brown, Jones, and Robinson is basically a travelogue in illustrated form, told via humorous episodes, part sequential cartoon sequences, and part snapshots of moments jumping forward in time. This halfway sequential format was ideal for most 19th Century cartoonists, who, with rare exception, had not quite grasped how to maintain a single sequential story for much longer than two dozen successive panels. Doyle had simplified Töpffer's formula in a manner most artists could attempt to emulate. Episodes of "Brown, Jones, and Robinson" originally appeared in Punch in 1850, until a dispute between the Roman Catholic Doyle and Punch's editors over an anti-Papal joke ended with Doyle's resignation. Doyle redrew and expanded the story into a single album, first seeing print in 1854 from British publisher Bradbury and Evans.

New York Publisher D. Appleton brought the album to America, reprinting it in 1860, 1871, and 1877. Next, Dick and Fitzgerald of New York pirated Doyle's story sometime in the early 1870s. Doyle's format from Foreign Tour was emulated again and again. Examples include: the 1857 Mr. Hardy Lee, His Yacht, by Charles Stedman; the 1860s- 1870s G. W. Carleton-published Our Artist In... series, set in various Latin American countries; the Augustus Hoppin 1870s sketch novels On the Nile, Crossing the Atlantic, and Ups and Downs on Land and Water; and Life founder John Ames Mitchell's 1881 (pre-Life) The Summer School of Philosophy at Mt. Desert. D. Appleton, the official, authorized American publisher of Foreign Tour, even commissioned an American artist - Toby - to create a sequel comic album involving Doyle's characters visiting the U.S. and Canada, published in 1872 as The American Tour of Messrs Brown, Jones and Robinson. In terms of influencing the development of mid-19th Century American comics, Doyle's Foreign Tour ranks with the works of Töpffer, Cruikshank, and Busch.

Doyle was also the author of an equally popular earlier cartoon series for Punch, titled, In Manners and Customs of Ye Englyshe, Mr. Pips Hys Diary, which was reprinted in 1849. In this work, Doyle told his story using a deliberately primitive almost stick-figure art style, combined with the Hogarthian structure of large single panel cartoons leaping forward in time with each picture.

Manners and Customs of Ye Harvard Studente, which ran in the first year of the Harvard Lampoon (1876-current), shows the clearest influence. The series by then student Francis Gilbert Attwood was collected in 1877 by Houghton Mifflin. Attwood followed it up with Manners and Customs of Ye Bostonians, again in the pages of the Harvard Lampoon, but it is unknown whether that series was ever reprinted in book form. Attwood later became one of the regular artists in Life.

The Extraordinary and Mirth-provoking Adventures by Sea and Land of Oscar Shanghai, inspired by Bachelor Butterfly, was issued May 1855 by Garrett and Company, Publishers, No. 18 Ann Street, New York. Oscar Shanghai has many misadventures including being swallowed by a whale, making a trip in a flying machine to Africa, where he is shot out of a huge bow by a "Black Prince" for refusing to marry a local princess of color. After more adventures, he makes it back home.

Oscar Shanghai's first publisher was confirmed in 2002 with the discovery of a very rare 36-page catalog from 1856 of books, pamphlets and prints handled by B.H. Day (successor to Wilson and Company) who was by this time publishing Brother Jonathan as a twice-a-year holiday pictorial only. The catalog has a few crossover advertisement pages from an associate publisher, Garrett and Company. This rediscovered treasure, which sold for $750 in 2002, contains within a sequential strip of one panel per page over 32 of those pages titled "Peter Piper in Bengal," by John Tenniel, reprinted from four 1853 issues of Punch. In the narrative, Peter Piper tries his hand hunting all different kinds of wild game with many misadventures.

Amongst the many varied types of "Cheap Books" for sale in this rare catalog are the comic books The Adventures of Obadiab Oldbuck, Bachelor Butterfly's Queer Love Adventures and Misfortunes, and The Fortunes of Ferdinand Flipper, plus the aforementioned Oscar Shanghai. All were priced at "25¢ per copy, postage free, refunds paid out in stamps." There is also an advertisement for a comic book entitled A Day's Sport - Or, Hunting Adventures of S. Winks Wattles, a Shopkeeper, Thomas Titt, a "legal gent," and Major Nicholas Noggin, a Jolly Good Fellow Generally by Henry L. Stephens (1824-1882) of Philadelphia.

Stephens, later the political cartoonist for Vanity Fair (New York, 1859-1863) and a leading children's book illustrator, produced his first work, Illustrations of the Poets: From Passages in the Life of Little Billy Vidkins, a small wrapped album of 32 comic woodcuts, in 1849. It was first published by S. Robinson, of Philadelphia, and reprinted with variant titles several times in the 1850s including Yankee Notions. It is likely that Little Billy Vidkins was printed before Jeremiah Saddlebags, though more research is needed before making this claim.

Garrett and Company was also responsible for the 1856 publication of The Sad Tale of the Courtship of Chevalier Slyfox-Wikoff, Showing His Heart-Rending Astounding and Most Wonderful Love Adventures with Fanny Elssler and Miss Gambol. This book parodied the very public relationship between the then-famous wealthy American aristocrat Henry Wikoff, and the even more famous European actress/ dancer Fanny Elssler. It is dated thusly because Wikoff's memoir is pictured in the comic book.

Apparently in late 1854 Garrett and Company formed a brief two-year partnership with Dick and Fitzgerald, officially becoming Garrett, Dick and Fitzgerald in November 1856, while continuing to operate out of the same 18 Ann Street address in New York. One month later they issued Richard Doyle's British published graphic novel The Foreign Tour of Messrs. Brown, Jones, and Robinson, reformatting it into the same oblong shape as Garrett's two prior comic books (which in turn were formatted in imitation of Töpffer's albums). This information came to light just this year. The interested scholar is encouraged to check out the new listings for Garrett's The Home Circle in the index.

In 1858, Garrett appears to have dropped out, leaving Dick and Fitzgerald alone with the former's book stock, his place of business, and most importantly, the printing plates for his comic books. For reasons unknown, Dick and Fitzgerald steered away from reprinting Garrett's comic books for more than a decade. But in the 1870s they resumed publication - not only of the three albums published by Garrett, but also of Obadiab Oldbuck and Bachelor Butterfly from Wilson and Company, and Ferdinand Flipper from Brother Jonathan - all of them also making use of the original printing plates. The inclusion of books from Brother Jonathan, Wilson and Company, and Garrett and Company all within the same promotional Peter Piper catalog from B.H. Day suggests that these early publishers of comic books had many over-lapping fields of interest, and that Dick and Fitzgerald became the inheritor/acquirer of all of it. Dick and Fitzgerald also reprinted in the 1870s the earlier William T. Peter published Ichabod Academicus (how that title might have connected, if at all, with B.H. Day's business remains unclear). We can now say, though, that an evolving group of a handful of publishers was responsible, over a span of 46 years, beginning with the very first graphic novel published in America in 1842, for keeping in print in America a cluster of slightly over half a dozen graphic novels.

Yankee Notions #1, January, 1852. This title began the first sequential comic strips in an American humor magazine, The Adventures of Jeremiah Old-Pot.

T e b b e l ' s History of Book Publishing in the US (vol. 1, pages 351-2) states that Burgess and Stringer was dissolved in late 1840s and became two firms, Stringer and Townsend, and Burgess and Garrett. Burgess retired in 1850 and his nephew William Brisbane Dick stepped into the partnership, whereupon the new company was renamed Garrett, Dick and Fitzgerald. Garrett retired in 1851 and the firm became Dick and Fitzgerald. The firm persisted under that name until 1917.

Collections reprinting cartoons from Punch saw print in the U.S., such as Merry Pictures by the Comic Hands, imported for the 1859 Christmas Season, plus various John Leech, George Du Maurier, and Phil May books which appeared from the 1850s through 1910s. Finally, many American weekly newspapers and weekly and monthly magazines, humorous and non-humorous, reprinted cartoons from Punch. Such inclusions often became a prelude to switching to original material by American artists, if that publication find's cartoon section find American cartoonists of sufficient talent.

Harper's Monthly, the leading American monthly, was a prime example. Soon after it commenced publication in November 1850, it began to carry a few pages of single panel cartoons reprinted from Punch at the rear of each issue. This evolved into reprinting sequential comic pages from the British periodical Town Talk, and then, starting December 1853, original sequential comics by the great Frank Bellew.

Bellew (1828-1888) should be regarded as the "Father of American Sequential Comics." Born in India, educated in France and England, he emigrated to America in 1850. His earliest work shows an influence from Doyle, but he rapidly developed his own unique art style. Bellew's comics, both sequential and single panel, graced nearly every American comic periodical published from the 1850s into the 1870s.

A month after the publication of the anonymous first installment of Jeremiah Old-Pot in Yankee Notions, Bellew began contributing his six-part, 18-panel comic series, "Mr. Blobb in Search of a Physician" to The Lantern, a New York comic weekly published from January 10, 1852 to July 2, 1853. The series ran in six of the nine issues published from January 31 through March 27, 1852. This was followed in April and May by the 16-panel, three-issue comic sequence "Mr. Bulbear's Dream", which concluded with the main character awakened from his dream by falling out of bed, exactly like Little Nemo would do five decades later.

These two series were just the beginning for Bellew, who contributed a voluminous amount of work to the New York Picayune (1850-1860) (which he also edited for a time in 1857-58), The Comic Monthly (1859-1881), Momus, an 1860 comic daily, The Phunniest of Aul (1864-1867) (which he also edited), Punchinello (1870), and Wild Oats (1870-1881), to name the most prominent.

The Comic Monthly deserves special mention. Started in March 1859 and published by J. C. Haney and Company, of 119 Nassau Street, New York, The Comic Monthly was a profusely illustrated 16-page folio, the same size as Harper's Weekly. It focused its graphic satire on politics, the theater, and the comedy of everyday life. A preponderance of the purely comic satire took the form of sequential art. Here are random samplings of highlights from issues from 1860:

- February: "A Day of Humiliation, Fasting, Supplication, and Prayer (four panels, unsigned), "New Year Calls under the Influence of Hard Times" (twelve panels, unsigned), "Young Trouble-some; or, Master Jacky's Holidays" (nineteen panels covering three and half pages, unsigned);
- April: "Four Years After Marriage" (sixteen panels, unsigned), "Our Masked Ball" (twelve panel centerspread, Bellew), "Trials of a Witness" (eight panels, Bellew);
- May: "Precocities of Young Springles" (seven panels, unsigned), "The Fight for the Championship" (twenty-four panel centerspread, Bellew), "Steam Applied to Music" (three panels, unsigned), "The Course of True Love" (four panels, Bellew);
- June: "Further Particulars of the Fight" (nine panel cover, Bellew), "The Man Who Went to See the Fight" (twelve panels, unsigned);
- July: "Explaining American Politics to an Intelligent Foreigner" (twelve panels, unsigned), "The Meerschaum Mania" (two panels, Bellew), "The Art of Stump Speaking" (ten panels, unsigned), "Our Little Friend, Tom Noddy" (three panels, unsigned); "The Japanese in New York" (twelve panel centerspread, Bellew), "The Observant Child" (three panels, unsigned), "Mr. Dibbs Goes to Pike's Peak and Comes Back Again" (fourteen panel back cover, unsigned);
- September: "The Zouave Fever" (four panel cover, unsigned), "Mr. Lupell" (two panels, Bellew), "The Prince of Wales in America" (twenty-four panel centerspread, J. H. Howard), "D'ye Think It's True?" (three panels, Bellew);
- October: "The Duties of the Wide Awake" (four panels, Bellew), "Our Charley (two panels, unsigned), "The Three Young Friends" (eighteen panel back cover, unsigned);
- November: "The Hanlon's (sic) At Home" (nine panel back cover, unsigned);

- December: "The Target Excursion" (seventeen panel centerspread, signed with an unidentifiable monogram); "The Sporting Critic" two panels, Bellew).

The Comic Monthly also published many multi-panel cartoons grouped under a single heading, which were not strictly sequential in nature. Bellew was the monthly's chief artist, assisted by Thomas Nast, A. R. Waud, and others. Some of the unsigned art was certainly by Bellew, some by journey-men artists, and some of it pirated from European journals.

The Comic Monthly was not the first folio-sized humor magazine. Those laurels go to The New York Picayune, which began as a newspaper, switched to a folio in 1856, adopted Punch's format for thirty-five issues in 1857-58, and returned to a folio for the remainder of its run.

Frank Leslie's Budget of Fun, the greatest of the folio monthlies, began in January 1859 and was published until June 1878. Its star cartoonist during the sixties was William Newman (c. 1817-1870), one of the founding artists of Punch. As we have noted, The Comic Monthly began two months later.

Frank Leslie was born Henry Cart in Ipswich, England in 1821. He became a very skilled engraver before coming over to America in 1948. He first worked as manager for P.T. Barnum's New York Illustrated News for several years. In 1850 he legally had his name changed to Frank Leslie. He died in 1880 and his wife continued the numerous publications he was publishing. Many of Frank Leslie's periodicals had a lot of sequential comic art.

Quarto-sized monthlies to compete with the successful Yankee Notions were also proliferating. Nick-Nax was the first (May 1856 to December 1875), followed by Phunny Phellow (October 1859- 1876) and Merryman's Comic Monthly (January 1863 to December 1875), to name the most prominent.

Enterprising publishers continued to attempt an American comic weekly in the style of Punch. The most notable efforts, Vanity Fair (1859-1863), Mrs. Grundy (1865), and Punchinello (1870), were distinguished but unsuccessful.

Nearly all of them, weeklies and monthlies, to varying degrees, featured sequential comic art. By the time of the American Civil War, sequential comic art was a part of the American graphic landscape.

While Bellew stood out for his sequential comics, Thomas Nast (1840-1902) brought a new style to American political cartoons, of which he is regarded the father. Even though he created several sequential strips early in his career (especially for Nick-Nax in 1859), Nast made his name in the pages of the national news periodical, Harper's Weekly, for which he worked from 1862 until 1886. Nast was influenced more by the dark wood engravings of Franco-German illustrator Gustave Dore than by the cartoonists of Punch. His somber cartoons were a novelty in American cartooning. Nast in the pages of Harper's Weekly (and Newman in the pages of the Budget of Fun) popularized the extravagant double-page folio-sized cartoon, which had no precedent in European or American cartooning, save for the separately published cartoon broadsides. This format would come to full maturity after 1876 in the pages of Puck (1876-1918) and then Judge (1881-1947).

As Nast grew in prominence and success, American cartoonists increasingly emulated him. U.S. humor publications evolved towards an amalgamation of Nast and Punch, rather than sheer imitation of the latter. After the War, with Nast's style of cartoons more entrenched in American readers' minds, efforts to launch Punch-like American periodicals floundered quickly. Mrs. Grundy, ironically most famous for its cover design by Nast, died after a mere twelve issues (running July 8 to September 23, 1865). Punchinello (April 2 to December 24, 1870) struggled nine months before its backers gave up. Punchinello had been financed by Tammany Hall politicians Tweed and Sweeney, as counter-propaganda against Nast's ongoing assault upon their corruption. They attempted to buy and threaten Nast into silence, to no avail.

American comics continued their pull away from Anglo-Franco imitation with the infusion of a third major European influence – the German humor magazine. The German-American community swelled significantly after the failed revolution of 1848. These émigrés brought with them a culture of humor, expressed most flamboyantly in their native humor magazines, the most famous being Kladderadatsch, Fliegende Blätter, and Münchener Bilderbogen. As high in quality, as were the graphic artists who contributed to them, one German comic artist in particular excelled beyond the rest, his stories breaking out and crossing over into English language translations, the demand for which resulted in numerous printings. This artist, of course, was Heinrich Christian Wilhelm Busch (1832-1908).

Busch's work appeared in English in the 1860s in both British and American periodicals, often uncredited. For example, four of Busch's strips appeared in English in the pages of Merryman's Monthly in 1864, while in 1879 his graphic story "Fipps der Affe" was serialized across a 10-issue run of Puck as "Troddledums the Simian." The earliest known English language appearance of Busch in book form was The Flying Dutchman, or The Wrath of Herr von Stoppelnoze, in 1862, from New York publisher G. W. Carleton. Carleton not only pirated Busch's strip, but went so far as to credit the entire story to American poet John G. Saxe, with Busch's cartoons mere illustrations accompanying Saxe's prose!

The next known English language Busch book was A Bushel of Merry Thoughts, an 1868 London-published anthology collecting various Busch strips. Some of these same stories later appeared in the U.S.-published The Mischief Book (1880), newly translated and with a few more Busch tales added. One of these additions was "Hans Hucklebein," a tale of a mischievous pet raven who in the end gets drunk and accidentally hangs himself. It became, at least in the States, Busch's second most popular sequential comic story. The unrepentant bird was promoted to title character in two later collections: the rare Hookeybeak the Raven and Other Tales in 1878 and Jack Huckaback, the Scapegrace Raven, circa 1888. There were also at least three trade card series in the 1870s and 1880s that reprinted the ending sequence, as Fritz Spindle-Shanks, The Raven Black.

The most popular Busch tale, though, was easily Max und Moritz, which in the U.S. saw print as Max and Maurice - A Juvenile History in Seven Tricks. Published in Boston in 1871, this English language version saw at minimum of 60 reprintings by the century's end, plus countless more printings thereafter. A separate British translation debuted in 1874, under the title Max and Moritz. It is well known that the later Rudolph Dirks comic strip series, Katzenjammer Kids, beginning in late 1897, was based on Max und Moritz.

According to documents found by comics historian Alfredo Castelli, Katzenjammer Kids may not have been pirated as has been assumed but was licensed by William Randolph Hearst instead. Hearst's New York Journal was published in different language editions for New York City's immigrant communities. In the German edition, the strip was published under its original name, Max und Moritz. Numerous other translations of Busch were published in America - too many to name in this article. Several can be found in the Victorian Age Price Index.

The most significant humor magazine of the 1870s, prior to the founding of the German-language Puck in 1876, was Wild Oats (1870-1881), which for part of its run also published a German-language edition, Schnedereddeng. In terms of the quality of its cartoons and comics, this New York City publication was in 1872 at an artistic level Puck would not achieve until 1880. Published by Winchell and Small (later Collin and Small) and distributed through the New York News Company, Wild Oats carried a cross-section of old and new generation comic artists, from the more established W. M. Avery, Frank Beard, Frank Bellew, E.S. Bisbee, Michael Angelo Woolf, and Thomas Worth, to up-and-comers such as Livingston Hopkins, Frederick Burr Opper, Palmer Cox, and James A. Wales.

Wild Oats began carrying sequential comic strips as early as #26, dated March 14, 1872, with the Livingston Hopkins strip pictured on the next page (we do not know anything yet about the first 25 issues). The very next issue has a Worth double-page spread titled "The Political Humpty Dumpty... Horace Greeley" told in eleven panels plus the sequential fictional "Graphic Account of the Assassination of Queen Victoria" and "Love As the Angels Love." "The Doings of the Japanese Embassy At Washington" related in twelve panels by W. M. Avery follows up in #28 April 11, 1872. An unknown hand drew "The Physiology of Moving" in six panels in #30. Hopkins returns with a beautiful intense 28-panel double-page spread in #31 May 23. Hopkins and Worth alternated for many issues with sequential comic strips on baseball, horse racing and other pertinent subjects of the day. In #45 December 5, 1872, E.S. Bisbee contributed his first sequential in seventeen panels and Worth showed up in "Humor and Pathos of a New England Thanksgiving" in eleven panels. Issue 47 expands the concept with a twelve-panel job by Bisbee, twenty-panel effort on one page by Hopkins and a three-panel effort by Worth. And on it goes through 1873 as well - comic strip after comic strip. Issue 58 June 5, 1873, includes a particularly humorous nineteen-panel double-pager drawn by someone still unknown titled "The Terrible Adventures of Messrs. Buster and Stumps, with the Indians" which begins with two white men heading out west in an effort to exterminate Indians - and their misadventures of not quite getting the job done. It reads across both pages in a unique evolution similar to Popeye #2052 (found in the Platinum listings). Issue 65 contains two nine-panel Thomas Worth strips "Only a Mad Dog Scare - Another Lesson For Nervous People" and "Only a Cholera Scare - Something For Nervous People to Read and Ponder Over." Issue 66 Sept 18, 1873, has the very funny Hopkins twelve-panel strip as well as two more ten-panel Worth strips on the delights of Hunting and Fishing plus one by Hopkins titled "The Adventures of Mr Old Party with Jersey Mosquitoes" in twelve-panels. All told, four comic strips in this issue. They obviously liked what they were doing, judging from the exuberance of the work.

The next issue has Worth's nine-panel report on "The Adventures of Young Muttonhead among the Free Lovers" which was all about the "free sex" convention recently held in Chicago. Issue 68 has a nine-panel "An Adventure with a New Jersey Mosquito" which smacks of Winsor McCay in subject and even art style. Maybe McCay was inspired by this for his later animated cartoon as well as earlier Rarebit Fiend. We'll never know for sure. On through 1875, Wild Oats presented sequential comic strips issue after issue. With #148, October 27, 1875, Frederick Opper contributes his very first Wild Oats cover, a political cartoon on inflation then rampant in the US. He does covers through at least #161 before a short break and then comes back with many more. In #158, January 5, 1876, Palmer Cox - some five years before inventing The Brownies - begins a wonderful series of 24-panel double page spread comic strips, with a couple sample titles being "The Adventures of Mr. and Mrs. Sprowl And Their Christmas Turkey-A Crashing Chasing Tearful Tragedy But Happily Ending Well" and "Bachelor Broke and Widow Snuggi: A Pictorial Account of Their Sleigh Ride and What Became of It."

Even though he had been contributing many covers and interior single panel jobs to Wild Oats for years, Frank Bellew does not show up with his first comic strip until #190, August 16, 1876, with a nine-panel effort he titled, "Rodger's Patent Mosquito Armour." By this time America's "Father of the sequential comic strip" had inspired many other cartoonists to try their hand telling stories with words and pictures.

Another highly desirable American graphic novel, sought especially by collectors of Western lore, is Quiddities of an Alaskan Trip by William H. Bell which debuted in 1873. Bell was Timothy O'Sullivan's assistant photographer on the 1871-74 expeditions of Lt. George Wheeler, surveying and mapping the western territories for the U.S. government. The story panels are laid out within ornate frames like those of stereograph cards, such as Bell was involved in creating on the expedition. It involves a parody of a trip from Washington, D.C., to survey the newly purchased territory of Alaska, which at the time was derisively referred to as "Seward's Folly." Bell published Quiddities in Portland, Oregon, in 1873, meaning that he drew it while he was on just such an expedition.

The seemingly disparate influences of Thomas Nast and German comics came together in the work of Austrian immigrant Joseph Keppler (1838-1894). Like many cartoonists in America, Keppler desired to rival Nast. Unlike most, he possessed the talent and drive to accomplish it. Keppler, trained as an artist but working as an actor, began contributing comic art to Kikeriki (1861-1923) in his native Vienna. He emigrated to St. Louis in 1868, where he took his first stab at starting a comic weekly, the German language Die Vebme (Aug 28, 1869 - Aug. 20, 1870). Seven months later, still in St. Louis, he tried again, launching another German language humor periodical, titled Puck. This German Puck began on March 18, 1871, joined by an English language version one

Keppler moved to New York City and began working for Frank Leslie. His cartoons appeared in Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper, Frank Leslie's Budget of Fun, and the Leslie-owned Jolly Joker and Day's Doings. (To capitalize on the 1876 Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia, Leslie published in that year a paperback collection of Centennial-related humor, Centennial Fun, most of which was Keppler's work.) Four years after the first Puck died, Keppler was ready to try again. He re-launched the German language edition of Puck in New York City on September 27, 1876.

This Puck was both familiar and exotic. Its format of an extravagant centerspread cartoon sandwiched between front and back cover cartoons had by this time become something of a comic periodical standard, certainly for the monthlies. But Puck was different from what had come before. The cartoons were lithographed, not engraved, which lent to them a softer, more pleasing quality, and they were in color, something virtually without precedent in American comic periodical literature.

Initially, the magazine's cartoons were tinted in just one color, but Puck appeared, ambitiously, every week, and the coloring set it apart from anything else on American stands. The parallel English language edition of Puck was launched six months after the German version, on March 14, 1877. This English edition of Puck was a money-loser for several years, kept afloat by the German edition's profits and the determination of the English edition's literary editor, H.C. Bunner, not to give up. By 1880, Puck was a huge success. It became the new model for American humor publications. In time, Keppler hired other artists, most notably Frederick Burr Opper, Eugene Zimmerman ("Zim") and F. M. Howarth, and added black and white sequential comics to the magazine's interior and then, with increasing frequency in the early 1890s to the magazine's back cover. Funny Folks by F. M. Howarth, 1899, collected many early sequential comics from Puck; one of the titles many consider bridges the Victorian and Platinum Ages of comics. Puck was the model that inspired William Randolph Hearst to add a color comics section to his Sunday Journal in 1895.

With the first issue dated October 29, 1881, Puck's chief rival, Judge, was born. Founded by Puck artist James A. Wales, it also featured the work of Thomas Worth and Livingston Hopkins. Judge made several forays into Puck's talent pool over the years. Its best capture was Eugene Zimmerman ("Zim"), who became for Judge the star artist that Frederick Burr Opper was for Puck.

several years, and likely would have ceased publication had it not been for Puck's powerful performance during the 1884 election. Puck's success galvanized Republican powerbrokers into recognizing the importance of the political cartoon weekly. They financed newspaperman W. J. Arkell's purchase of Judge in 1886 to turn it into a reliable Republican house organ.

Numerous other Puck imitators emerged in the 1880s but quickly died. Note should be made of two that did not: the Puck-like San Francisco Wasp, which debuted August 5, 1876 (too early for it to be considered a Puck knockoff), and the black and white Texas Siftings, which debuted on May 9, 1881. Though neither was as successful as Puck or Judge, both cut their own paths, managing to survive as cartoon humor magazines into the 1890s.

Also worthy of mention is the New York City newspaper The Daily Graphic (March 4, 1873 to Sept 23, 1889), which claims the distinction of being the first regularly illustrated daily newspaper in the world, published every day except Sundays and holidays. The majority of its illustrations were portraits or depictions of news events, but nearly every issue contained some comic drawing, many of them gracing the front cover.

With so many pages to fill on a daily basis, The Daily Graphic became a rotating door for many young American cartoonists in the early stages of their careers (making one suspect that it was not the best paying gig in town). Within its pages, like needles to be found in the haystack of its more than 4800 issues, is early work by Livingston Hopkins (who mysteriously appears, vanishes, reappears, etc., for months to whole years at a time, right up to his 1884 departure to Australia), pre-Life work by Kemble, pre-Harper's appearances by A.B. Frost and W.A. Rogers, pre-Puck and Judge Oppen, C.J. Taylor, Hamilton, and Gillam. Old hats, too, appear at times, such as Michael Woolf and Frank Bellew, Sr.

Further, The Daily Graphic regularly plundered British periodicals for its back and sometimes center pages, not only perpetrating the usual swipes of single-panel Punch cartoons, but also stealing sequential strips from Punch's two main rival publications, Judy and Fun. This included occasionally reprinting (albeit at random) episodes of continuing British strips "The British Workman" by James Sullivan, and "McNab of that Ilk" by James Brown, though, strangely enough, not Marie Duval's Ally Sloper, despite the fact that The Daily Graphic did reprint some of Duval's non-"Sloper" strips. ("Ally Sloper" was a continuing sequential strip character who debuted in 1867, lasting into the 1920s, and had very successful solo British book collections of his strip appearances published as early as 1873, more than two decades prior to Yellow Kid in McFadden's Flats).

Livingston Hopkins, whose art style changed like a chameleon from one year to the next, exhibited a definite Duval influence in his work within a year following the publication of the first Ally Sloper collection. Given that Hopkins worked for The Daily Graphic during the same period in which this newspaper was stealing cartoons from Sloper's home publication, Judy, this can hardly be considered coincidental. Hopkins contributed a daily comic strip to The Daily Graphic in 1874-75, complete with word balloons. By the time Hopkins was preparing to emigrate to Australia to become lead cartoonist for the Sydney Bulletin, his art style was an imitation of Kemble's, who was also working at The Daily Graphic.

Life debuted on January 4, 1883, founded by J.A. Mitchell, and modeled after the Harvard Lampoon. It quickly rose to become the third main pillar of late 1800s American humor periodicals. Smaller in size, black and white, and priced the same as Puck and Judge, it nevertheless succeeded by appealing to a more genteel audience. Its earliest artists included Kemble and Palmer Cox, but its foremost artist was Charles Dana Gibson, becoming world renowned as the hand behind the graceful, aristocratic "Gibson Girls."

Unlike Judge, which had to become a low-brow imitation of Life to survive in the next century, and Puck, which attempted but failed to become an American version of the highbrow European humor magazines, Life transitioned into the 20th century virtually unaltered, and thrived. By the mid-1880s, with Puck, Judge, and Life all solidly in place, American comics and cartoon humor had come very much into their own, no longer looking first at Europe to take their cues.

Almanacs began to appear in America starting in 1639. Humor was introduced as early as 1647 by Samuel Danforth. A very important one was Leed Almanac beginning in 1687. John Tulley produced the first humorous almanac in 1688. James Franklin, brother of Ben, began the Rhode Island Almanac in 1728 using the name "Poor Robin" and his younger brother began Poor Richard's Almanac in 1732. Farmer's Almanac began in 1792 and used some humor.

The first comic almanac totally devoted to humor was published by Charles Ellm in Boston in 1831 and featured the artwork of D.C. Johnston. Perhaps the most famous comic almanacs (certainly the most valuable) are the Davy Crockett series (1835-1856) which began in Nashville, Tennessee. The comic periodicals all ended up issuing comic almanacs beginning with Yankee Notions in 1856 and continuing into the 1890s with a one-shot comic almanac published by Judge for the year 1894.

Beginning in the 1850s, a new breed of almanacs appeared. Usually created by medicine and farm product companies, they were distributed for free to promote the company's product. Competition amongst companies, whose goal was to get customers to read the almanacs and the advertisements contained therein again and again, meant that attention-getting humorous cartoons soon found their way back into these giveaway pamphlets. Initially their cartoons were done cheap, either poorly drawn or pirated from elsewhere, such as those found in the Hostetter's and Wright's almanac series. More elaborate promotional almanacs eventually did evolve, though, and amongst the best of these was Barker's Illustrated Almanac, first produced for the year 1878, and annually into the 1930s. Each Barker's Almanac contained ten to twelve full page cartoons, wonderful and bizarre in design, frequently racist, but also comically manic and crammed with details in a manner similar to Outcault's much later Yellow Kid pages. The cartoons in Barker's Almanac were so popular that in 1892, The Barker, Moore, and Mein Medicine Company published their first edition of Barker's Comic Picture Souvenir, reprinting nearly 150 pages of cartoons from their almanacs.

This first Barker's Souvenir features a wraparound color cover depicting people headed towards the Columbian World's Fair Exposition, which was to be held in Chicago the next year. It is the earliest confirmed "premium" comic book, sent to customers who mailed in a box label and outside wrapper from two different Barker's products. The Souvenir album was Barker's most in-demand premium. It was reprinted as a thick unnumbered booklet three more times in the 1890s, with the contents reorganized each time. Later, between 1901 and 1903, Barker's broke the album into three separate "Parts," each of which required still more box labels and wrappers to obtain. The 3-part series of reprint albums expanded to four parts circa 1906 or 1907. Both the 3 and 4-part album series had multiple printings.

Also very American in character were the country's promotional comics, which flourished throughout the latter half of the 19th century. They trace their beginnings to Comic Almanacs, which flourished in England and the United States since they first appeared in the 1830s. The first promotional comics which did not double as almanacs began to appear in the 1870s. They included the aforementioned reprints of Cruikshank and Busch strips, reprints of strips lifted from American sources (A.B. Frost's strip "The Bull Calf" was a particular favorite), and original material placing the product being promoted as the focus of the story. These original short cartoon dramas were in many ways similar in storyline to those found in modern television advertisements, except that the clothing is Victorian, and the claims, pre-F.D.A. and F.C.C., were unabashedly wild, over-the-top, and blunt. Chewing tobacco and snuff saved romances, calmed crying babies, and made the sick well. Stove polish that propelled you to wealth and power. Corsets that brought you a husband. The objective, of course, in an era before TV or radio, was to make each comic handout so entertaining that customers would want to keep and read the advertisement again and again.

The more wonderful graphics and outrageous claims tended to come from tobacco companies, who were using comic books and strips to sell their products more than a century before cries against "Joe Camel." The most elaborate of these were printed full color, and unfolded into a single long strip, just like Cruikshank's The Tooth-Ache from the 1840s, though usually limited to just the cover plus seven panels.

Examples are the Jackson Chewing Tobacco comics How Adolphus Slim-Jim Used Jackson's Best and Ye Veracious Chronicle of Gruff and Pompey, and Durham Smoking Tobacco's Home Made Happy - A Romance for Married

Flag of Our Union, July 23, 1870, sample panels from Pt 1 of a 3 part comic strip depicting early baseball game.

Men. The artists of these comics are mostly unidentified, but their level of skill was equal to anything in Puck and Judge. The Home Made Happy Comic, in fact, was produced for Durham by The Graphic Company -- the publisher of The Daily Graphic, the aforementioned 1870s illustrated newspaper which included cartoons.

The earliest known anthology devoted to collecting the comic strips of a single American artist was A.B. Frost's Stuff and Nonsense in 1884. The next known American collection came in 1888, the very rare Frederick Burr Opper anthology, Puck's Opper Book. Both proved popular, so more Frost and Opper collections followed, to be joined within a few years by reprints collecting the cartoons and strips of Keppler, Kemble, Zim, Gibson, Mayer, Taylor, Frank Bellew's son "Chip," Howarth, Woolf, etc.

Puck, Judge, and Texas Siftings all began monthly Library series - 8-1/2" x 11" magazines, mostly black and white, which organized previously published material around one theme or one artist. For example, the first Puck's Library (July 1887) was titled "The National Game," and gathered beneath one cover Puck material poking fun at the game of baseball. The third (March 1888) and ninth (November 1889) issues of Judge's Serial (later named Judge's Library) were devoted entirely to the work of Zim.

Life tended more towards hardcover collections, such as its annual ten-issue series The Good Things of Life (1884-1893), which included cartoons and strips by Palmer Cox, T.S. Sullivant, Hy Mayer, and others. The Good Things of Life was published initially by the firm of White, Stokes, and Allen, but which by the fourth book, had become simply Frederick A. Stokes. Stokes published a number of other cartoon books in the 1880s and 1890s, the majority of them reprint collections. The experience he gained at this time with these reprint albums placed Stokes in the perfect position to pick up the wealth of material about to be created for the comics supplements of William R. Hearst's newspapers, making Stokes the first major publisher of the coming Platinum Age.

In 1892, Charles Scribner's Sons published A. B. Frost's Bull Calf and Other Tales. It contains sequential comic strip art on quite a few pages as well as single panel cartoons. By 1898, Charles Scribner's Sons also issued Kemble's The Billy Goat and Other Comicalities as a 112-page hardcover, which also has sequential comic strips.

In the early 1890s, the slum children cartoons of artist Michael Woolf (many of which were reprinted in the 1896 collection 99 Woolfs from Truth and in the posthumous 1899 collection Sketches of Lowly Life in a Great City were popular. Truth magazine, which followed Puck's format of color front cover, back cover and centerspread cartoons, but in style was more akin to the aristocratic Life, was initially unable to secure Woolf's services, creating an opportunity for the young cartoonist Richard F. Outcault, who desired to break into one of the weekly comic periodicals.

It was in his Woolf-inspired slum children cartoons for Truth that Outcault's prototype of the Yellow Kid first emerged. The bald, sack-clothed youngster made four appearances in Truth, starting with #372 on June 2, 1894, prior to his newspaper debut.

During the rise of Yellow Kid's popularity, he appeared in American comic magazines in parodies drawn by others, with politicians, even Hearst and Pulitzer, dressed up as the Yellow Kid. Such cartoons are known to have appeared in Judge, Life, The Bee, and Vim plus various newspapers across the country. More about the Yellow Kid's importance can be found in the Platinum Age section of this book.

While comics definitely have their roots in Europe, and the earliest American comic books either reprinted or emulated those of Europe, the direction of influence was by no means one way. By at least the 1870s, American cartoons were being published and seen in the Old World, as evidenced by the arrest in Spain of the on-the-lamb corrupt Tammany Hall politician Boss Tweed by Spanish police who recognized Tweed from a Nast cartoon.

European piracy of American cartoons was just as lucrative as the American piracy of Europeans. In the 1880s and '90s, the comics of Zim, Chip Bellew, and Charles Dana Gibson all saw reprint in Europe. In April 1899, Pictorial Comedy, a monthly magazine destined for a ten-year run, commenced publication in London. It was made up entirely of cartoons reprinted with permission from Puck and Life. F.M. Howarth's domestic comedies from Puck were favorites in France. American Hy Mayer was commissioned to create original comics work for Black and White (Britain), Le Rire (France), and Fliegende Blätter. Michael Woolf's slum children cartoons saw print in the British periodical Pick-Me-Up, during the same years that top British artist Phil May's first published work debuted in that publication. May later became famous for his Woolf-inspired street children cartoons as well as his influence on the development of comics in Australia.

As the 19th Century ended, American comics were coming to the fore world-wide, soon to explode into a position of dominance with the Platinum Age revolution brought about by the emergence of the color comic supplement in America's newspapers and the arrival of Richard F. Outcault's Yellow Kid.

END NOTE: Victorian Era comics were issued in many relatively obscure formats compared to what most of us are used to today. The Victorian Era section can only grow as there are many more heretofore undiscovered comics from the 1800s which have fallen off the radar of history. Some may wonder why some of the earlier items listed contain as of yet no prices. The reason is simple. These books are part of a relatively "new" market which is still establishing itself.

High-grade copies are almost unheard of in almost all instances. Some books may truly have only a handful left in existence. We are sure there are some known to have been published which no (as of yet) known copies have survived the ravages of time and neglect.

Each year expect another quantum leap in our ever-expanding knowledge of the fascinating earliest origins of the comic strip as it relates to North America. Your input in helping this section of the Guide grow and mature is most welcome!

Robert Lee Beerbohm first sold comics through the legendary RBCC beginning in 1966, set up at his first comi-con in 1967, helped found the northern California Comics & Comix chain of stores in August 1972, co-hosted Berkeleycon 1973, the first UG creator-owned comix con and operated comic book stores from 1972-1994. He now owns Robert Beerbohm Comic Art that specializes in buying and selling scarce comics and related material from the 1840s-1980s. He has been compiling a detailed history book of the business of the American comic book for some time now and hopes to complete it soon.

COLLECTOR'S NOTE: Most of the books listed in this section were published well over a century before organized comics fandom began archiving and helping to preserve these fragile popular culture artifacts. With some of these comics now over 160 years old, they almost never surface in Fine+ or better shape. Be happy when you simply find a copy.

This year has seen price growth in quite a few comic books in this era. Since this section began growing almost a decade now, comic books from Wilson, Brother Jonathan, Huestis & Cozans, Garrett, Dick & Fitzgerald, Frank Leslie, Street & Smith and others continue to be recognized by the more savvy in this fine hobby as legitimate comic book collectors' items. We had been more concerned with simply establishing what is known to exist. For the most part, that work is now a fait accompli in this section compiled, revised, and expanded by Robert Beerbohm with special thanks this year to Terrance Keegan plus acknowledgment to Bill Blackbeard, Chris Brown, Alfredo Castelli, Darrell Coons, Leonardo De Sá, Scott Deschaine, Joe Evans, Ron Friggle, Tom Gordon III, Michel Kempeneers, Andy Konkryku, Don Kurtz, Richard Olson, Robert Quesinberry, Joseph Rainone, Steve Rowe, Randy Scott, John Snyder, Art Spiegelman, Steve Thompson, Richard Samuel West, Doug Wheeler and Richard Wright. Special kudos to long-time collector and scholar Gabriel Laderman.

The prices given for Fair, Good and Fine categories are for strictly graded editions. If you need help grading your item, we refer you to the grading section in this book or contact the authors of this essay. Items marked Scarce, Rare or Very Rare we are still trying to figure out how many copies might still be in existence. We welcome additions and corrections from any interested collectors and scholars at robert@BLcomics.com

Extremely unique comic book, put together by gathering 145 independent single illustrations and cartoons, by various artists, and stringing them together into a sequential story. The majority of panels are by Grandville. Also included are at least 19 signed Charles Martin, reprinted from 1847 issues of Yankee Doodle, 5 panels from D.C. Johnston, plus other panels by F.O.C. Darley, T.H. Matheson, and others. The story also contains several panels of Gold Rush content. Printed by E.A. Alverds. The 1851 date is derived from an advertisement found in the Oct-Dec 1851 issue of the Brother Jonathan newspaper. It is possible, however, that it actually came out even earlier.

NOTE: Radical Republican politics distributed by Great American News Company; owned by Frank Bellew's wife as a front for her husband. When the Civil War ended, the brutal anti-Confederate comic strips and jokes switched to frogs and began attacking France. Funny thing, history says without France's help in the 1700s, there just might not have been a United States.

But, the above is the only version which unfolds as a strip of attached cards. The cards from all the unattached versions are smaller sized, and thus distinguishable.

NOTE: Earliest known original sequential comic book by an American creator; directly inspired by Töpfer's Obadiah Oldbuck and Bachelor Butterfly The New York and Cincinnati editions were both published in 1849, one soon after the other. Antiquarian Book sources have traditionally cited that the Cincinnati edition preceded the New York, but without referencing their evidence. Conflicting with this, the Cincinnati edition lists the New York publishers' 1849 copyright, while the New York edition makes no reference to the Cincinnati publishers. Such would indicate that the New York edition was first. Both are very rare, and until resolved both will be regarded as published simultaneously. A New York copy with missing back cover, detached front cover, and G/VG interior sold for $2000 in 2000. Two copies sold at auction in 2006 for $11,500 and 12,000. (Prices vary widely.)

Contains two sequential comic booklets: THE ADVENTURES OF MR. TOM PLUMP, and OLD MOTHER MIT-

Hees printing, Oswego, NY, contains an ad for the upcoming October 1865 issue of Merryman's Monthly, thus placing that printing in September 1865). Modern facsimile editions have been produced.

Seminal inspiration for William Randolph Hearst to acquire as a "new comic" (following the wild success of Outcault's Yellow Kid) to license M&M from Busch and hire Rudolph Dirks in late 1897 to create a New York American newspaper incarnation. In Hearst's English language newspapers it was called The Katzenjammer Kids and in his German language NYC newspaper it was titled Max & Moritz, Busch's original title. At least 50 other reprints versions are reputed to exist printed thru 1900. Translated from the 1865 German original. We are still sorting out the edition confusion.

Early 19th century books are often found rebound, with original cover and/or title page gone. To distinguish editions having no cover or title page: the British oblong editions (published by Tilt & Bogue) use Roman Numerals to number pages. American oblong shaped editions use Arabic Numerals. British are printed on one side only. This is the earliest known English language sequential comic book. Has a new title page with art by Robert Cruikshank.

NOTE: Art by Joseph Keppler, F. Oppen, F.M. Howarth, C.J. Taylor, W.A. Rogers. This was a separate, parallel run of Puck, published during the 1893 Chicago World's Fair from within the fairgrounds, and containing all new and different material than the regular weekly Puck. Smaller sized and priced the same, this originally sold poorly, and had not as wide distribution as Puck, and so consequently issues are much more rare than regular Puck issues from the same period. Not to be confused with the larger sized regular Puck issues from 1893 which sometimes also contained World's Fair related material, and sometimes had the words "World's Fair" appear on the cover. Can also be distinguished by the fact that Puck's issue numbering was in the 800's in 1893, while these issue number 1 through 26.

THE PLATINUM AGE

by Robert Lee Beerbohm and Richard D. Olson, PhD ©2012

(This article was originally created by Robert L. Beerbohm and Richard D. Olson beginning in CBPG #27 1997 and is revised annually as new information comes to light.)

The story of the success of the modern comic strip as we know it today is tied closely to the companies who sponsored and bought licenses from the copyright holder for the purpose of advertising products. Platinum Age comic books have come back into their own after languishing mostly forgotten for a few decades. With this series of comics history research updates now marking its first decade, these historically important books are seen by many now as very collectible. Online sources such as eBay and bookfinder.com have demonstrated that many of these Platinum books are actually not scarce at all as previously thought, though they are in any type of higher-grade condition. Even so, most Platinum Age books are much rarer than so-called Golden Age comic books, yet despite this scarcity, Mutt & Jeff, Bringing Up Father, The Katzenjammer Kids, and many more were more popular than say Superman and Batman when they were introduced. Recent research has come up with some more amazing rediscoveries. There is much that can be learned and applied to today's comics market by a simple historical examination of the medium's evolution over more than 160 years.

It should be noted that "ages" are applied to historical periods in the history of comics for convenience. In fact, ages typically overlap and there is no discrete beginning or ending for any given "age." This is the case with the

The Brownies' first book, 1887 by Palmer Cox, set a precedent for the Platinum Age, collecting and reprinting previously published material.

Platinum Age, which clearly began with Palmer Cox's creation of The Brownies in 1883 even though it overlaps with the Victorian Age which ran through the end of the 19th Century. Cox introduced a qualitative change to the field, not an incremental quantitative change. Specifically, he produced art and verse for children in children's magazines and then merchandised those characters. He published work for children not only in books but in magazines and newspapers, and he merchandised his creations to an extent that had never been done previously.

Palmer Cox was born in 1840 near Granby, Quebec. He journeyed to Oakland, California in 1863, and began publishing cartoon, prose and poems in the local press and media outlets such as The San Francisco Examiner wherein by 1867 it has been reported he also began creating sequential comic strips, though none have yet surfaced.

His first book, Squibs of California, was published in 1874. He subsequently moved to New York in 1875 and almost immediately began working for the magazine Wild Oats, of which more is written about in the preceding Victorian Age history introduction as well as a sample of his sequential work. He drew dozens of sequential comic strips for Wild Oats, a humor magazine so scarce only one issue has been offered on eBay in the past six years.

Soon thereafter he became a major contributor to the Scribner publications, including The St. Nicholas, an illustrated magazine for young folk. His first cartoon for them was "The Wasp And The Bee," published in the March 1879 cover-date issue. While it is now clear that Cox used elves and brownie-like characters in his art for several different magazines as early as 1877 in Harper's Young People magazine as well as using Brownies-type characters beginning in the Feb

The Brownies in the Philippines by Palmer Cox, Oct 1904 - scarce original art from the book. President Roosevelt is pictured within these multitudes of Brownie madness, a Cox "signature trademark." Cox's stories are comic strip-oriented in nature of time sequence as he boldly took his Brownies around the world.

1881 issue of Wide Awake, the first true appearance of the Brownies in their own story using that title, a combination of art and verse was February, 1883, in St. Nicholas. Palmer Cox's The Brownies were the first North American comics-type characters to be internationally merchandised. Even though Cox was continuously doing sequential comic strips in magazines like Wild Oats, he left the popular medium of comics when he hit paydirt with The Brownies. For over a quarter of a century, Cox deftly combined the popular advertising motifs of animals and fairies into a wonderful, whimsical world of society at its best and worst.

The Brownies' first book was issued in 1887, titled The Brownies: Their Book; many more followed. Cox also added a run of his hugely popular characters in Ladies Home Journal from October 1891 through February 1895, as well as a special for December 1910. With the 1892-93 World's Fair, the merchandising exploded with a host of products, including pianos, paper dolls and other figurines, chairs, stoves, puzzles, cough drops, coffee, soap, boots, candy, and many more. Brownies material was being produced in Europe as well as the United States of America.

Cox tried out The Brownies as a newspaper strip in the San Francisco Examiner during 1898, where he had begun his newspaper career over 30 years before, and then in the New York World in 1900. It was then syndicated from 1903 through 1907. He seems to have retired from regularly drawing The Brownies with the January 1914 issue of St. Nicholas when he was 74. A wealthy man, he lived to the ripe old age of 84, spending his last decade in his home he affectionately called Brownie Castle, back in Granby, Quebec.

By the mid-1890s, while keeping careful track of steadily rising circulations of magazines with graphic humor such as Harper's, Puck, St. Nicholas, Judge, Life and Truth, New York based newspaper publishers began to recognize that illustrated humor would sell extra papers. This is what The Yellow Kid taught these publishers. Thus was born the Sunday "comic supplement." Most of the super star favorites were under contract with these magazines. However, there was an artist working for Truth who wasn't. Roy L McCardell, then a staffer at Puck, informed Morrill Goddard, Sunday Editor of The New York World, that he knew someone who could fit what was needed at the then-largest newspaper in America.

Richard F. Outcault (1863-1928) first introduced his street children strip in Truth #372, June 2, 1894, somewhat inspired by Michael Angelo Woolf's slum kids single panel cartoons in Life which had begun in the mid 1880s. The interested collector should seek out a copy of Woolf's Sketches of Lowly Life In A Great City (1899) listed in the Guide for comparison study. Edward Harrigan's play "O'Reilly and the Four Hundred," which had a song beginning with the words "Down in Hogan's Alley..." also likely provided direct inspiration.

It's also probable that Outcault's Hogan's Alley cast, including the Yellow Kid, was inspired by Charles W. Saalburg's The Ting Lings, which began in the Chicago Inter Ocean Jr supplement post-dated May 1, 1894 in the April 29, 1894 edition of Chicago Inter Ocean.

That first episode is titled: "The Brownies Welcome The Ting-Lings."

There is also a definite similarity in Mickey Dugan's appearance and clothing style to Saalburg's creation which we will now examine in more detail thanks to welcome, on-going research by long time comics historian Allan Holtz supplemented by living comics history legend Bill Blackbeard.

Charles Saalzburg was an artist who was also the genius behind color printing in newspapers. He seems to have pioneered the concept from whom all others learned their craft.

On June 23, 1892 the Chicago Inter Ocean introduced a section with mostly editorial cartoons titled the Illustrated Supplement, commemorating the Democratic National Convention held in that city. Early regulars included Thomas Nast and Art Young. Starting June 26, the Inter Ocean began steadily issuing this weekly four page supplement, typically featuring full page editorial cartoons on its front and back covers. In May 1893 the supplement began coming out twice a week, and even greater frequency to daily during the World Columbian Exposition held in Chicago later that same year as it was used as a wrapper to attract sales from fair goers. Art Young did some of the color cover art and comic strips for the early Fair supplements, printing them right at the Fair to goggle-eyed fair tourists. Thomas Nast did some art as well during a visit he made to the Fair.

By September 10, 1893 the Inter Ocean introduced color, a multi-panel editorial comic strip by Charles Saalburg. The supplement used yellow ink, a further nail in the coffin of various Yellow Kid myths which had clouded serious comics scholarship in earlier decades before being proven wrong.

On October 1, Tom E. Powers introduced their first sequential non-political comic strip in color, a humorous pantomime.

As the Exposition ended in November, the contents were soon aimed more at children, enhanced with color added to the center as well by December 24, 1893, then changing its title to Inter Ocean Jr in January 1894. This was accomplished easily by folding the single four page sheet into eight pages.

In the January 1894 Saalburg began using Brownies-inspired characters in his color comic strips. The present theory is the Ting-Ling characters took over solo five months later in response to a presumed cease and desist letter which inevitably must have been issued from Palmer Cox to the Inter Ocean.

However, on July 8 1894, the Inter Ocean Jr stopped color and full page comics-type work in this supplement, devolving back to simple small spot art works. By mid-1894, color comics printing genius Saalburg had been lured to Pulitzer's New York World, becoming Art Director in charge of coloring for the new color printing press at the New York World. The color supplement was soon to be unleashed in the largest city in America.

By the November 18, 1894 issue of the World, Outcault was working for Goddard and Saalburg. Outcault produced a successful Sunday newspaper sequential comic strip in color with "The Origin of a New Species" on the back page in the World's first colored Sunday supplement. Long time pro Walt McDougall, a famous cartoonist reputed to have turned the 1884 Presidential race with a single cartoon that ran in the World, handled the cartoon art on the front page. Earlier, The World began running full page color single panels on May 21, 1893. McDougall did various other page panels during 1893, but it was Jan. 28, 1894 when the first sequence of comic pictures in a New York World newspaper appeared in panels in the same format as our comic strips today. It was a full page cut up into nine panels. This historic sequence was

The second page to appear in panels was an eight panel strip from February 4, 1894, also lacking words except for the title. This page was a collaboration between Walt McDougall and Mark Fenderson titled "The Unfortunate Fate of a Well-Intentioned Dog." From then on, many full page color strips by McDougall and Fenderson appeared; they were the first cartoonists to draw for the Sunday newspaper comic section. It was Outcault, however, who soon became the most famous cartoonist featured. After first appearing in black and white in Pulitzer's The New York World on February 17, 1895 and again on March 10, 1895, The Yellow Kid was introduced to the public in color on May 5, 1895.

Some have erroneously reported in scholarly journals that perhaps it was Frank Ladendorf's "Uncle Reuben," first introduced May 26, 1895, which became the first regularly recurring comics character in newspapers. This is wrong, as even Outcault's "Yellow Kid" began in Pulitzer's paper a good three months before Uncle Reuben. Until firm evidence to the contrary comes to light, that honor will forever be enshrined with Jimmy Swinnerton's Little Bears cartoon characters, found all over inside Hearst's San Francisco Examiner beginning October 14, 1893 with the first one called "Baby Monarch. Though never actually a comic strip, they nonetheless were the earliest presently-known recurring comics-type characters in American newspapers. In June 1895, a semi-regular "Little Bears" feature began. On January 26, 1896, children were introduced, the title eventually changed to "Little Bears and Tykes," forever confusing some scholars decades later. There never was a strip titled Little Bears and Tigers, as the Tigers were strictly for New York consumption when Hearst ordered Swinnerton to move to the Big Apple to compete better in the brewing comic strip wars.

The Yellow Kid's importance is widely recognized today as the first newspaper comic strip to demonstrate without a doubt that the general public was ready for full color comics. The Yellow Kid was the first in the USA to show that comics could increase newspaper sales, and that comic characters could be merchandised. The Yellow Kid was the headlining spark of what was soon dubbed by Hearst as "eight pages of polychromatic effulgence that makes the rainbow look like a lead pipe."

Ongoing research suggests that Palmer Cox's fabulous success with The Brownies was a direct inspiration for Richard Outcault's future merchandising work. The ultimate proof lies in the fourth Yellow Kid cartoon, which appeared in the February 9, 1895 issue of Truth. It was reprinted in the New York World eight days later on February 17, 1895, becoming the first Yellow Kid cartoon in the newspapers. The caption read "FOURTH WARD BROWNIES. MICKEY, THE ARTIST (adding a finishing touch) Dere, Chimmy! If Palmer Cox wuz t' see yer, he'd git yer copyrighted in a minute." The Yellow Kid was widely licensed in the greater New York area for all kinds of products, including gum and cigarette cards, toys, pinbacks, cookies, postcards, tobacco products, and appliances. There was also a short-lived humor magazine from Street & Smith named The Yellow Kid, featuring exquisite Outcault covers, plus a 196-page comic book from Dillingham & Co. known as The Yellow Kid in McFadden's Flats, dated to early 1897. Check out the covers in "The Platinum Age" three-page comic strip elsewhere in this Guide. In addition, there were several Yellow Kid plays produced, spawning other collectibles like show posters, programs and illustrated sheet music. (For those interested in more information regarding the Yellow Kid, it is available on the Internet at www.neponset.com/yellowkid.)

Mickey Dugan burned brightly for a few years as Outcault secured a copyright on the character with the United States Government by September 1896. By the time he completed the necessary paperwork, however, hundreds of business people nationwide had pirated the image of The Yellow Kid and plastered it all over every product imaginable; mothers were even dressing their newborns to look like Dugan. Outcault, however, kept regularly utilizing images of The Yellow Kid in his comics style advertising work confirmed as late as 1915. Outcault soon found himself in a maelstrom not of his choosing, which probably pushed him to eventually drop the character. Outcault's creation went back and forth between newspaper giants Pulitzer and Hearst until Bennett's New York Herald mercifully snatched the cartoonist away in 1900 to do what amounted to a few relatively short-run strips. Later, he did one particular strip for a year—a satire of rural Black America titled Pore Li'l Mose His Letters to his Mammy, and then his newer creation, Buster Brown, debuted May 4, 1902. Mose had a very rare comic book collection published in 1902 by Cupples & Leon, now highly sought after by today's savvy collectors. Outcault continued drawing him in the background of occasional Buster Brown strips for many years to come.

William Randolph Hearst loved the comic strip medium ever since he was a little boy growing up on Max & Moritz by Wilhelm Busch in American collected book editions translated from the original German (these collections were first published in book form in 1871, serving as the influence for highly successful 23-year-old humor magazine Puck from the heirs of founder Joseph Keppler. With Puck and its exclusive cartoonist contracts, he commanded, among others, the very popular F. M. Howarth and Frederick Burr Opper's undivided attention. Opper first burst upon the comics scene in America back in 1880. Within a year Hearst had expanded this National Lampoon of its day into the colored Sunday comics section, Puck-The Comic Weekly. At first featuring Rudolph Dirk's The Katzenjammer Kids (1897), Happy Hooligan and other fine strips by the wildly popular Opper and a few others including Rudolph's brother Gus Dirks, the Hearst comic section steadily added more strips. For decades to come, there wasn't anything else that could compete with Puck. Hearst hired the best of the best and transformed Puck into the most popular comics section anywhere.

THE ADVENTURES OF FOXY GRANDPA

The Adventures of Foxy Grandpa, late 1900, cover for the rare earliest known first edition of Carl "Bunny" Schultze's famous creation. He was one of the newspaper comics' first superstars.

Outcault, meanwhile, followed in Palmer Cox's footsteps a decade later by using the nexus of a World's Fair as a jumping off venue. Buster Brown was an instant sensation when he debuted as the new merchandising mascot of the Brown Shoe Company at the 1904 St. Louis World's Fair in a special Buster Brown Shoes pavilion. The character has the honor of being the first nationally licensed comic strip character in America with this time Outcault in almost full control. Many hundreds of different Buster Brown premiums have been issued. Comic books by Frederick A. Stokes Company featuring Buster Brown & His Dog Tige began as early as 1903 with Buster Brown and His Resolutions, simultaneously published in several different languages throughout the world.

After a few years, Buster and Outcault returned to Hearst in late 1905, joining what soon became the flagship of the comics world. Buster's popularity quickly spread all over the United States and then the world as he single-handedly spawned the first great comic strip licensing dynasty. For years, there were little people traveling from town to town performing as Buster Brown and selling shoes while accompanied by small dogs named Tige. Many other highly competitive licensed strips would soon follow. We suggest getting Hake's Price Guide to Character Toys for info on several hundred Buster Brown competitors, as well as several pages of the more fascinating Buster Brown material.

Soon there were many comic strip syndicates not only offering hundreds of various comic strips but also offering to license the characters for any company interested in paying the fee. The history of the comic strip with wide popularity since The Yellow Kid has been intertwined with giveaway premiums and character-based, store-bought merchandise of all kinds. Since its infancy as a profitable art form unto itself with The Yellow Kid, the comic strip world has profited from selling all sorts of "stuff" to the public featuring their favorite character or strip as its motif. American business gladly responded to the desire for comic character memorabilia with thousands of fun items to enjoy and collect. Most of the early comics were not aimed specifically at kids, though children understandably enjoyed them as well.

Comic books have generally been associated with almost all of the licensed merchandise in this century. In the Platinum Age section beginning right after this essay, you will find a great many comic books in varied formats and sizes published before the advent of the first successful monthly newsstand comic magazine, Famous Funnies. What drove each of these evolutionary format changes was the need by their producers to make money so more books could be issued.

A very significant format was F. M. Howarth's Funny Folks, published in 1899 by E. P. Dutton and drawn from color as well as black and white pages of Puck. This rather large hardcover volume measured 16 1/2" wide by 12" tall. It contains numerous sequential comic strip pages as well as single gag illustrations. Howarth's art was a joy to behold and deserves wider recognition.

By Oct. 1900, Hearst had already caused Oppen's Folks In Funnyville to be collected by publisher R. H. Russell, NY in a 12x9 hard cover format from his New York Journal American Humorist section. At the end of 1900, Carl Shultze had a first edition of Vaudeilles and Other Things published by Isaac H. Blanchard Co., NY. It measures 10 1/2" wide by 13" tall with 22 pages including covers. Each interior page is a 2 to 7 panel comic strip with lots of color.

There were also recently unearthed format variation second and third printings of Vaudeilles with the inscription "From the Originator of the 'Foxy Grandpa' Series" at the bottom of its front cover of the third printing. This note is lacking on the earlier first two editions, and it also switches format size to 11" tall by 13" wide. Discovered last year was a heretofore undocumented The Adventures of Foxy Grandpa - also issued in 1900 - new to the Platinum listings. The second number dated 1901 drops the words "The Adventures of..." from the title.

E. W. Kemble's The Blackberries had a color collection by 1901, also published by R. H. Russell, NY, as well as a few other comic-related volumes by Kemble still to be unearthed and properly identified. An earlier one was titled Coontown's 400 (1899) newly listed this year. While the title is definitely not "PC" by today's standards, Kemble's drawings are excellent slices of African-American life in the USA with some humor injected. Kemble did a good job documenting aspects of life.

HUGO HERCULES MISSES THE FOOTBALL, BUT—

The Chicago Tribune introduced a straight super hero with obvious super strength called "Hugo Hercules" by the unknown artist J. Koerner. This Sunday strip ran September 7, 1902 through January 11, 1903 and ran only in this one paper. It is entirely possible a very young Chicago-resident named Philip Wylie read "Hugo" since that was the same name he gave his super-heroic main character in his much-later book The Gladiator (1930). Other appearances have Hugo running with almost super speed.

Confirmed is the exact format of Hearst's 1902 The Katzenjammer Kids and Happy Hooligan And His Brother Gloomy Gus. They both measure 15 5/16" wide by 10" tall and contain 88 pages including covers. Confirmed also is the fact that there are two separate editions with different covers for the pictured 1902 first edition and a 1903 Frederick Stokes edition of Katzenjammer Kids and Happy Hooligan with differing contents. They both are two different books entirely, and what confuses many collectors is that they have identical indicia title pages, but so does an entirely different KK from 1905.

Settling on a popular size of 17" wide by 11" tall, comic books were soon available that featured Charles "Bunny" Schultze's Foxy Grandpa, Rudolph Dirk's The Katzenjammer Kids, Winsor McCay's Little Sammy Sneeze, Rarebit Fiend and Little Nemo, and Fred Opper's Happy Hooligan and Maud, in addition to dozens of Buster Brown comic books. For well over a decade, these large-size, full-color volumes were the norm, retailing for 60¢. These collections offered full-size Sunday comics with the back side blank per page.

Though not the first daily newspaper strip, the very rare Brainy Bowers and Drowsy Dugan by R. W. Taylor is now crowned the first collection of strip reprints from a daily newspaper published in America. There are now four different collections of Brainy Bower known to exist.

The Outbursts of Everett True by A. D. Condo and J. W. Raper was first published by Saalfield in 1907 in an 88-page hardcover collection. It qualifies as the second daily comic strip collection as it predates the first Mutt & Jeff collection from Ball by three years. Condo & Raper's creation began its regular run several times a week in 1905 daily newspapers and lasted until 1927, when Condo became too sick to continue. This same Everett True collection was later truncated a bit by Saalfield in 1921 to 56 strips in just 32 pages measuring the standard 10"x10" Cupples & Leon size.

By 1908 Stokes had a large backlist of full color comic books for sale at 60¢ each. Some of these titles date back to 1903 and were reprinted over and over as demand warranted. Note the number of titles in the advertisement pulled from the back of The Three Fun Makers shown below.

With the ever-increasing popularity of Bud Fisher's new daily strip sensation, Mutt & Jeff, a new format was created for reprinting daily strips in black and white, a hardcover book about 15" wide by 5" tall, published by Ball starting in 1910 for five volumes. In 1912, Ball also branched out with at least the now-obscure Doings of the Van Loons by Fred I. Leipziger, a rare comic book in the same format as the *Mutt & Jeff*s.

Cartoons Magazine also began in 1912 and ran through 1921 before undergoing a radical format change. It is notable as a wonderful source for information on early comics and their creators. See also the Platinum index.

The next significant evolutionary change occurred in 1919, when Cupples & Leon began issuing their black and white daily strip reprint books in a new aforementioned format, about 10" wide by 10" tall, with four panels reprinted per page in a two by two matrix. These books were 52 pages for 25¢. The first ones featured Bringing Up Father and Mutt & Jeff; there were about 100 others.

By 1921, the last of the oblong (11"x15") color comic books were issued, with Cupples & Leon's Jimmie Dugan and The Reg'lar Fellers by Gene Byrne, and EmBee's The Trouble Of Bringing Up Father by self publisher George McManus. Of special historical interest, Embee issued the first 10¢ monthly comic book, Comic Monthly, with the first issue dated January 1922. A dozen 8-1/2"x9" issues were published, each featuring solo adventures of popular King Features strips. The monthly 10¢ comic book concept had finally arrived, though it would be more than a decade before it became truly successful.

Skippy by Percy Crosby debuted in the long-running humor magazine Life in the March 22, 1923 issue. By 1924 the first hard cover collection, Life Presents Skippy, was published. The newspaper comic strip debuted June 23, 1925 with the McClure syndicate. Hearst soon picked up a Sunday page a year later in mid-1926, then added a daily strip in 1929. By the 1930s it was red hot - think Calvin & Hobbes or Peanuts in popularity. In its day, it was one of the most popular comic strips ever created. Read the Modern era essay for more on Skippy's immense popularity.

In 1926, Cupples & Leon added a new 7" wide by 9" tall format with Little Orphan Annie, Smitty, and others. These were issued in both softcover and hardcover editions with dust jackets, and became extremely popular at 60¢ per copy.

Dell began publishing all original material in The Funnies in late 1929 in a larger tabloid format. At least three dozen issues were published before Delacorte threw in the towel. Even the extremely popular Big Little Book, introduced in 1932, can be viewed as a smaller version of the existing formats. The competition amongst publishers now included Dell, McKay, Sonnet, Saalfield and Whitman. The 1930s saw a definite shift in merchandising comic strip material from adults to children. This was the decade when Kellogg's placed Buck Rogers on the map, when Ovaltine issued tons of Little Orphan Annie material. Merchandising from such pioneers as Sam Gold and Kay Kamen spearheaded this next transformation of the comics biz beginning in the early 1930s.

Upwards of a thousand of these Funnies On Parade precursors, in all formats, were published through 1935 and were very popular. Towards the end of this era of once-popular comic book formats, beautiful collections of Popeye, Mickey Mouse, Dick Tracy, and many others were published which today command ever higher prices on the open market as they are rediscovered by the advanced collector who appreciates and enjoys truly great classic comics.

END NOTE: Each year we strive to add to the many 1930s variant formats. This Platinum Age section has grown as a result of advanced collectors who continue to report in with new finds. We encourage interested collectors and scholars to help with this section of the book, as each new data entry is very important for recovering our history. COLLECTOR'S NOTE: The books listed in this section were published many decades before organized comics fandom began archiving and helping to preserve these fragile popular culture artifacts. Consequently, copies of most all of these comics do not often surface in Fine+ or better shape. eBay has proven after more than a decade that many items once considered rare actually are not, though they almost always are in higher grades. For items marked scarce, we are trying to ascertain how many copies might still be in existence. Your input is always welcome.

Most Platinum Age comic books are in the Fair to VG range. If you want to collect these only in high grade, your collection will be extremely small. The prices given for Good, Fine and Very Fine categories are for strictly graded editions. If you need help grading your item, we refer you to the grading section in the front of this price guide or contact the authors of the Platinum essay. Most measurements are in inches. A few measurements are in centimeters. The first dimension given is Height and the second is Width.

For ease of ascertaining the contents of each item of this listing, there is a code letter or two following most titles we have been adding in over the years to aid you. A helpful list of categories pertaining to these codes can be found at the beginning of the Victorian Age pricing sections. MICKEY MOUSE BOOK nn - First Disney licensed publication (a magazine, not a book-see first book, Adventures of Mickey Mouse). Contains story of how Mickey met Walt and got his name; games, cartoons & song "Mickey Mouse (You Cute Little Feller)," written by Irving Bibb; Minnie, Clarabelle Cow, Horace Horsecollar & caricature of Walt shaking hands with Mickey. The changes made with the 2nd printing have been verified by billing affidavits in the Walt Disney Archives and include: Two Win Smith Mickey strips from 4/15/30 and 4/17/30 added to page 8 & back-c; "Printed in U.S.A." added to front cover; Bobette Bibb's age of 11 years added to title page; faulty type on the word "tail" corrected top of page 3; the word "start" added to bottom of page 7, removing the words "start 1 2 3 4" from the top of page 7; music and lyrics were rewritten on pages 12-14. A green ink border was added beginning with 2nd printing and some covers have inking variations. Art by Albert Barbelle, drawn in an Ub Iwerks style. Total circulation : 97,938 copies varying from 21,000 to 26,000 per printing.

1st printing. Contains the song lyrics censored in later printings, "When little Minnie's pursued by a big bad villain we feel so bad then we're glad when you up and kill him." Attached to the Nov. 15, 1930 issue of the Official Bulletin of the Mickey Mouse Club notes: "Attached to this Bulletin is a new Mickey Mouse Book that has just been published." This is thought to be the reason why a slightly disproportionate larger number of copies of the first printing still exist

NOTE: Theater/advertising copies do not qualify as separate printings. Most copies are missing pages 9 & 10 which had a puzzle to be cut out. Puzzle (pages 9 and 10) cut out or missing, subtract 60% to 75%.

Golden Age & Beyond

The American Comic Book 1938–Present

STILL, IT'S HARD TO IGNORE WHAT FOLLOWED.

AND IT'S HARD TO IGNORE THE VALUE ATTACHED TO SOME OF THE COMICS LISTED IN THIS SECTION.

THE BRONZE AGE

GOING FOR THE BRONZE: LIFE AFTER THE SILVER AGE

by Michael Eury

It was 1970, and the Silver Age was over.

The Silver Age's innovations, the Julie Schwartz-edited revamps of Golden Age favorites and the Lee/Kirby/et al.-constructed House of Ideas, had grown familiar, and in some cases, stale. The bottom had dropped out of the TV Batman superhero boom and the Big Two and its competitors, reeling from declining sales, scratched their heads and pondered, "What do we try next?"

Their answer: Try everything! The 1970s was the decade of excess, after all, when there was no such thing as "too much" and nothing we, as a culture, wouldn't try. Hair got longer, music got louder, lapels got wider, bras got burned, movies got bloodier, drugs got mainstreamed . . . and Mom wore pantsuits while Dad sprouted muttonchops. Marvel and DC also got "with it," trying new genres, new ideas, and new formats, all in a hungry pursuit of the one thing there could never be too much of: money.

Today, Mom's pantsuits may have elastic waistlines and Dad's muttonchops-and hair-may be a distant memory, but the decade we now call the Bronze Age-1970-1979-was, arguably, the most influential of all of comics' landmark eras. It could have been comics' last dance, but instead it became a decade of renaissance, when through trial and error inroads were made that paved the way for the innovations of the 1980s, the 1990s, and the comic book industry we know today.

In their quest to find the next big thing, the first place publishers looked was outside of comics. For a mere $200 licensing fee ($50 beyond tight-fisted publisher Martin Goodman's budgeted $150), Marvel Comics writer/editor Roy Thomas landed the publication rights to Robert E. Howard's famed swordsman Conan. And while Marvel's Conan the Barbarian #1, written by Thomas, drawn by newcomer Barry (Windsor-) Smith, and cover-dated October 1970, didn't instantly ignite the comics world (Conan didn't look or read like the other material available, and early issues suffered from distribution challenges), before long the series developed a growing audience, and proved to publishers that they could sell material other than caped crusaders and lovesick all-American teens.

Sword-and-sorcery comics soon cut a swath through the stands, with licensed acquisitions Kull, Red Sonja, Thongor, and Solomon Kane joining Marvel's line, and DC countering with its acquisition of Fritz Leiber's Fafhrd and the Grey Mouser, in a 1973 series that made no attempt to hide the craze upon which it was capitalizing: Sword and Sorcery (original characters like the Warlord, Starfire, Stalker, Claw the Unconquered, IronJaw, and Wulf the Barbarian also premiered). Yet DC had already ventured into licensed terrain with its April 1972 cover-dated first issue of Tarzan (#207, continuing the numbering from previous publisher Gold Key). "[The estate of Tarzan creator Edgar Rice Burroughs] wanted their creative people on Tarzan," Carmine Infantino, at the time DC's Editorial Director, revealed, a request to which he responded, "No, I want my guys on the book"—actually his "guy," Joe Kubert, whose heralded stint as writer/artist/editor produced some of, perhaps the, finest illustrated Tarzan stories ever.

Tomb of Dracula (TOD), first seen in (cover date) April 1972, was not a licensed property but might have been had Bram Stoker's 1897 vampire novel not fallen into public domain. TOD and Werewolf by Night, which preceded it into print by two months in Marvel Spotlight #2, were Marvel's response to the 1971 lifting of the Comics Code Authority's prohibition against the depiction of vampires, werewolves, and the undead (although Morbius the Living Vampire, who debuted in October 1971's Amazing Spider-Man #101, was first out the gruesome gate), and spawned one of the decade's most popular trends. Frankenstein, Swamp Thing, Man-Thing, Bog Beast, Brother Voodoo, the Demon, and the Living Mummy were among the macabre protagonists in 1970s comics ("I pray that you will discontinue this corruption of impressionable young minds. . ." penned one concerned mother in response to Marvel's hellspawned super-hero, the Son of Satan). Some of them have resurfaced in the 2000s and have achieved acclaim beyond the four-color pages, including Ghost Rider, the star of a 2006 motion picture starring Nicolas Cage—who was weaned on Bronze Age comics (and chose his stage name from Marvel's own Hero for Hire, Luke Cage, another product of the 1970s).

Fu Manchu, the fictional "Yellow Peril" mastermind and subject of a series of novels by Sax Rohmer, brought his claw-fingered menace to comics in Special Marvel Edition #15 (December 1973), the first appearance of his created-for-comics son, Shang-Chi, better known as the Master of Kung Fu. Steve Englehart and Jim Starlin's response to the TV hit Kung Fu (1972–1975)—which itself was television's response to the trend of Hong Kong-born martial-arts movies and their patron saint, Bruce Lee—Master of Kung Fu became a long-running success for Marvel (most notably under Doug Moench and Paul Gulacy's tenure), and encouraged a gaggle of companions and imitators, including Sons of the Tiger, Iron Fist, Bronze Tiger, Lady Shiva, Karate Kid, and Richard Dragon, Kung Fu Fighter, as well as Seaboard/Atlas' 1975 copycat title The Hands of the Dragon.

Martial arts aside, Rohmer's Fu Manchu novels represented another 1970s' comics trend: pulp heroes. Doc Savage returned to spin racks in the form of a Marvel series in 1972. Dennis O'Neil and Michael Kaluta brought The Shadow to DC in 1973 (Jim Steranko, Alex Toth, and Bernie Wrightson were considered as the Shadow artist before then-newcomer Kaluta was signed). In 1975 DC also published four issues of Justice, Inc., starring the chalk-skinned globe-trotter the Avenger, and Howard Chaykin's mid-1970s' Dominic Fortune (for Marvel) and the Scorpion (for Seaboard) mined this pulp vein.

Beyond the world of pop literature, Marvel found mass media a ripe market for exploitation. Rock stars KISS became super-heroes, even fighting Dr. Doom (premiering in a magazine-formatted comic featuring the audacious stunt of mixing the band's blood with the printer's ink!), and comics based upon popular sci-fi films Logan's Run, Planet of the Apes, Godzilla, and 2001: A Space Odyssey invaded the racks. DC was less ambitious in adapting cinematic properties, although its "DC TV Comic" line, including Welcome Back, Kotter, is noteworthy if for no other reason than the utter strangeness of it all.

No 1970s' screen property was more popular as a comic book than Star Wars, which premiered a few months before the May 25, 1977 release of the film, an anticipation-building maneuver brainstormed by Jedi master George Lucas. Roy Thomas was at the writing helm, and as he told BACK ISSUE in 2005, Lucas "had in mind the idea of Howard Chaykin as the artist." Star Wars' success title paved the way for other popular late-1970s' Marvel titles based upon sci-fi and toy properties, such as Battlestar Galactica, The Micronauts, and Rom.

Chaykin as Lucas' go-to artist illustrates another hallmark of 1970s' comics: the emergence of young talent. Comics publishing houses had been the exclusive domain of stuffed shirts in elbow-patched tweed jackets, but while looking outside of the field for new properties, the medium also looked within its fan base for the next talent wave. The transition, however, was not without its bumps in the road. As one of the “long-hairs” who broke the barrier, writer Denny O’Neil revealed, reflecting upon his visits to DC’s headquarters, that “Steve Skeates and I were told by one of the functionaries not to walk past the Big Boss’ office ‘looking like that,’ to take the long way around.” “DC had been a closed shop,” concurred Carmine Infantino, who “put aside a room for the freelance artists and writers, a place for them to go and discuss and enjoy each other’s work.” Another such site was Continuity Associates, the studio co-founded in 1971 by Neal Adams and Dick Giordano. Following the lead established in the late 1960s by visionaries Adams and his contemporary Steranko, who demonstrated that comics storytelling was not restricted to stodgy panel layouts or stereotypical dialogue, new artists and writers stormed the medium, daring to

Not to rest on their laurels, established talent became energized by this exciting new climate: John Buscema, Nick Cardy, Gene Colan, Gil Kane, Jack Kirby, Joe Kubert, Stan Lee, and John Romita, Sr. produced some of their best work in the 1970s, as did Curt Swan and Murphy Anderson with their “Swanderson” pairing on Superman. Marvel and DC took chances with traditional characters and with new characters existing within their universes. The coming of Kirby’s Fourth World, Green Lantern/Green Arrow, Swamp Thing, Jonah Hex, the Punisher and Wolverine, Howard the Duck, Warlock, ethnic characters, and the new X-Men, plus the Joker’s return to his homicidal roots and the deaths of Gwen

Stacy and the Green Goblin, suggest that the most significant innovation of the 1970s might have been a willingness to explore new directions with icons.

With new properties, new talent, and new characters bombarding the reader at a dizzying pace, little stability was to be found in the shapes of the comic books themselves. Publishers experimented with a variety of formats, in a move initially inspired by that perennial enemy of the long-time comic-book reader: the price increase.

Two years after jumping from a 12- to a 15-cent cover price, the 25-cent comic originated in the summer of 1971, as DC's titles, with their August cover dates, were now 48 pages (52 counting covers), hyped as "bigger and better" with roughly 22–25 new story pages backed up by 6–12 pages of Golden and Silver Age reprints. Marvel sucker-punched DC, delaying their price hike by one month (while blurb-ing their covers "Still 15¢"), then matching DC's price the next month, but trumping their original page count with 34–35 new story pages—and then undercutting their competitor by reverting to the standard 32–page format the following month, but at the cover price of 20 cents. DC, however, offered its readers something that Marvel's streamlined package could not: history. Newer readers sampled adventures of long-retired characters like Starman and Sandman, or more recently cancelled heroes including Deadman, keeping them alive in the fandom consciousness and inspiring budding writers and artists to, in later years, resuscitate them.

Is there any format that "says" the 1970s more than DC's 100-page Super Spectacular? In June and July 1971, DC published a trio of 100-pagers—Weird Mystery Tales, Love Stories, and World's Greatest Super-Heroes—each priced at 50 cents and reprinting material from the publisher's rich past. By 1973, 100-pagers returned as reprint specials, following in the footsteps of the Silver Age's beloved Annuals and 80-page giants. Before long several of DC's regular titles were converted to a bimonthly 100-page format, with new lead feature (or features) backed up by classics from yesteryear. (In December 1976 DC similarly converted some of its character-heavy titles like Superman Family into its new "Dollar Comic" format, featuring all-new stories in an 80-page [later a 64-page] package.)

smaller size, the digest-sized comic (which began in the late 1960s at Gold Key) gained prominence in the 1970s in an attempt to broaden comics' availability. DC experimented with a 1972 Tarzan digest, announcing but never releasing a Laurel and Hardy digest (DC did, however, release a Laurel and Hardy one-shot comic). By decade's end, DC, Marvel, and Archie were publishing a host of reprint digests, aggressively fighting for rack space in supermarkets' highly visible checkouts. DC's and Marvel's digests were cancelled by the mid-1980s, but Archie's remain a durable fixture today, and the digest has morphed into a popular format for manga.

Comics reprints gained a bookstore presence throughout the 1970s, including Bonanza's trio of hardcovers, Batman: From the 30's to the 70's, Superman: From the 30's to the 70's, and Shazam: From the 40's to the 70's, the latter of which, not experiencing reprintings like the Batman and Superman editions, being quite scarce in today's collectibles market. Fireside's full-color trade paperback collections of Marvel and DC material were popular, particularly the Stan Lee-sanctioned line of super-hero trades beginning with Origins of Marvel Comics (1974). Near the end of the decade, Tempo Books' black-and-white paperback reprints of 1950s and 1960s DC material could be found in bookstores and K-Marts, as could Pocket Books' full-color line of reprints of early Marvels.

The biggest reprint format of the 1970s, bar none, was the tabloid, measuring approximately 10 1/4" x 13 1/4" and called "Treasury Editions" by Marvel and "Limited Collectors' Editions" by DC. Offering the added bonus of printing comics art close to full size (the standard dimensions of comics artboard of the day was 10" x 15"), these oversized comics soon housed all-new as well as classic material, and became the spotlight format for influential projects, including DC and Marvel's first super-hero team-up, Superman vs. The Amazing Spider-Man (1976).

Tabloids were envisioned as a doorway for comics to hop off the claustrophobic, kid-centric spin rack and be shelved alongside compatibly sized periodicals, but the black-and-white (B&W) comics magazine was most attractive to publishers as a means of luring the older, more discerning reader to the comic-book art form. While the medium had previously dabbled in this arena, E.C.'s "Pictofiction" B&Ws of the 1950s being an early example, during the 1970s almost every comics house tried its hand at it, following the lead of publisher James Warren, the indisputable champ of black-and-whites since his 1964 launch of Creepy. Skywald's Psycho, Ross Andru and Mike Esposito's Up Your Nose and Out Your Ear, and Charlton's TV-licensed The Six Million Dollar Man were among 1970s' B&W comics magazine fare, but Marvel successfully milked this trend for several years, most notably with its long-running Savage Sword of Conan. A single issue each of Jack Kirby's ill-fated "Speak-Out" black-and-whites In the Days of the Mob and Spirit World, DC's 1971 attempt to stick an apprehensive toe in the B&W waters, was released under the banner of "Hampshire Distributor's Ltd." Always the trailblazer, Kirby had high hopes for finding a new audience with these magazines (he was developing two other titles, True Divorce Cases and Soul Love, but they were not produced), but spotty distribution of Mob and Spirit intimidated the publisher from releasing additional B&Ws.

The graphic novel was also born in the 1970s, thanks to Will Eisner's A Contract with God (1978). The biographical "comix" found in the undergrounds motivated Eisner to return to the fold after a hiatus, and at a time when he could have easily retired, Eisner essentially re-created the comics art form by producing this pioneering collection of intensely personal stories.

The final, but widest-reaching, breakthrough of the Bronze Age was merchandising. While popular comics stars had long been licensed for various products, comic-book characters became household names during the 1970s due to a ubiquitous barrage of Saturday-morning TV cartoons and primetime live-action dramas, action figures, records, coloring books, 7-11 Slurpee cups, lunchboxes, electric toothbrushes, Colorforms, clothing patches, View-Master reels, and Halloween costumes, culminating in Superman: The Movie's elevation of the comic-book film to blockbuster status in 1978. While the innovations of 1970s publishing rebuilt the industry from within, the non-comics retailing of its characters cemented their statuses as cultural institutions.

The correct title listing for each comic book can be determined by consulting the indicia (publication data) on the beginning interior pages of the comic. The official title is determined by those words of the title in capital letters only, and not by what is on the cover. Titles are listed in this book as if they were one word, ignoring spaces, hyphens, and apostrophes, to make finding titles easier. Exceptions are made in rare cases. Comic books listed should be assumed to be in color unless noted "B&W".
